TAX VALUATION BOOST CAN'T BE APPEALED, SAYS COUNTY OFFICIAL

Equalization Board
Head Cites Monday
Filing Deadline — Realty Owners Don't Have Definite Data.

St. Louis county real estate taxpayers will not be able to appeal this year's increases in their assessments which will become necessary under Wednesday's State Tax Commission order, Jean Mason, chairman of the County Board of Equalization, said today.

Next Monday has been set by the board as the deadline for filing of appeals from assessments, but taxpayers as yet have no idea how the state commission's order for an over-all 68 per cent assessment increase will affect their individual properties.

In any event, Mason said, "legally there can't be any appeals this year because of the statutory deadline of July 30 for hearing them. We do not plan to extend the Monday deadline for filing.

"There is no practical reason for doing so. Appeals simply defeat the purpose of the State Tax Commission, which is to raise valuations."

Board Gets Copy of Order. Meanwhile, the equalization board met this morning with County Clerk Leo E. Sievers to receive from him a copy of the State Tax Commission order which was delivered to him yesterday. Under state law the county clerk gives copies of the order both to the board and to the assessor.

The board voted unanimously to ask the state body to rescind its order, but at the same time took steps to comply with the order. The resolution seeking the rescission pointed out that the county is planning a comprehensive parcel-by-parcel revaluation of real estate.

Equalization board members refused to say after today's meeting that they definitely would comply with the commission order. But they adopted unanimously a motion requesting Sievers to furnish a breakdown of present valuations on acreage, town lots and improvement.

Mason said this information would give the board a better idea of "how to accomplish the most equitable distribution of the increase ordered by the State Tax Commission." Sievers said he would put a crew to work Monday on the board's request.

Singer Makes Motion. The board's request to the commission to rescind its order was on motion of County Council Chairman James A. Singer, who serves as a member of the board. He said: "The effect of the tax commission's order would be to assert an oppressive tax on many thousands of people in St. Louis county."

Informed of the board's action, State Tax Commission chairman, James M. Robertson said in Jefferson City that his agency could not rescind the order.

"The order has been issued and the State Tax Commission stands on the order," he said. "We are complying with the state laws and constitution, as we must."

An example of how emotions have been aroused among county officials by the state order was provided just after the equalization board meeting ended, but before members had left.

County Supervisor Luman P. Matthews, who is on record for a blanket assessment increase in order to carry out the commission order, entered the room and, learning that the board had asked the commission to reconsider, said sharply:

"Why? I want to know why."

FORMER BOOKIE
HERE QUESTIONED
IN KOENIG KILLING

Everett (Warpy) Smith
Arrested in E. St.
Louis — Ernest Noe
Quizzed Again.

Questioning of former associates of J. Fred Koenig, murdered East Side gambler, continued today in an effort to develop clues to his mysterious murder.

Everett (Warpy) Smith, former St. Louis handbook operator and race track figure, was taken into custody shortly after midnight by Detective Sgt. Charles Lewis and Detective Elmer Hill of the East St. Louis police in an effort to determine whether Koenig had been supplying Smith's handbook with racing results.

After officers talked to Smith for several hours he was released. They said Smith, who lives at 33 Vieux Carre drive, East St. Louis, told them he knew Koenig only socially and gave no information which would help them in the investigation.

Smith was permitted to drive his Cadillac to the East Side police station and then was booked for investigation in the Koenig murder. He had $8 in his pocket when arrested.

Police said Smith and his wife, Frances, owned horses running at Fairmount race track. He was fined $500 in June 1950 for operating a handbook in St. Louis. A similar charge against Mrs. Smith was dismissed at that time by the circuit attorney's office.

Ernest Noe Recalled.

Ernest (Red) Noe, a former "runner" for Koenig's handbook operations who was questioned at length earlier this week, was called in again today. He was questioned briefly and then placed in a cell while officers resumed the interrogation of Smith.

Sgt. Lewis said Noe was asked to give more details about a man named "Gordon Richards" who, Noe had told police, came to Koenig's apartment last April 1 and informed Koenig that his

HOUSE GROUP RECOMMENDS
20 PCT. FUND CUT
IN FOREIGN AID

Committee Complains of 'Chaotic Fiscal Situation' in Military Part of Program,
Slashes Arms Budget.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee today recommended a 20 per cent cut, amounting to $627,900,000, in funds requested by President Eisenhower to finance the foreign aid program.

In sending to the House floor for debate next week a $2,638,741,750 money bill, the committee complained of a "chaotic fiscal situation" in the military aid part of the program. It voiced concern over last-minute obligation of funds in what it said was an obvious move to prevent them from being rescinded.

Funds provided in the bill are for use during the fiscal year that started July 1. They would supplement an estimated $8,717,100,000 in unexpended balances from previous appropriations.

Cut in Military Aid.

The biggest cash cut imposed by the committee was $420,000,000 chopped from the $1,125,000,000 requested for military assistance. The $705,000,000 approved, the committee said, "should prove adequate" for requirements of the program during the year.

The total in the money bill as it came from committee was more than $647,000,000 below the amount allowed in a compromise authorization bill which went through both houses of Congress yesterday.

The authorization figure was $3,285,800,000. This merely set a ceiling on the amount that could be appropriated.

Mr. Eisenhower gave quick approval to the authorization bill, signing it today.

For military aid the authorization bill had permitted $1,133,000,000.

The committee commented in a report drafted by Representative Passman (Dem.), Louisiana, that estimates of unobligated balances in the military part of the program on June 30 ranged from $100,000,000 to $952,000,000. It said the Defense Department had obligated $951,000,000 during June despite a written understanding with the committee that $420,000,000 of unobligated balances should not be released for "reservation" by the department.

De-obligated.

The committee objected to the practice of reserving, or obligating, funds at the last minute in order to carry them forward into the new year. It said these funds often are de-obligated in the new year and then used for another purpose.

It called for a reappraisal of all obligations to free large sums of money for future programs.

For direct forces support, the committee recommended $305,000,000, a cut of $122,200,000. This program is designed to give friendly nations military equipment other than tanks, guns and planes.

For defense support—economic aid to countries maintaining military forces—the committee allotted the full $700,000,000 requested for Europe and the entire $102,500,000 asked for the Middle East and Africa. It cut $52,800,000 from the $277,800,000 requested for Asia, noting that on April 30 this program had $1,056,800,000 in unexpended balances.

For development assistance—economic aid for underdeveloped countries—the committee recommended Middle East and Africa, $73,000,000 as requested.

Asia, $61,000,000, a cut of $10,000,000 in funds requested for India.

American republics, the entire $38,000,000 requested.

It allotted $125,000,000 for the $146,500,000 requested for technical co-operation of underdeveloped areas and approved the entire $24,000,000 asked for United Nations technical programs.

WHITE HOUSE SUGGESTS VOTE

MEN DISPUTE

Comptroller Suggests 'Conflict of Interest' in Case of St. Louis Zinc Firm Head in Unpaid U.S. Post.

By GEORGE H. HALL,
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Howard I. Young of St. Louis, president of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co., has become the key figure in a controversy over whether to continue the Government practice of assigning industry executives to serve without pay in high federal posts.

A report by Comptroller General Joseph Campbell suggests an apparent "conflict of interest" in Young's activities as deputy administrator of the defense materials procurement agency from Sept. 1951 to May 1953 while at the same time serving as head of the private concern.

Young, identified as to title but not by name, was the subject of a report by Campbell to Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, Senate floor manager of a bill to extend the defense production act. After receiving the report Fulbright called a meeting of the Senate Banking Committee for this afternoon to consider it.

Amendment Bars Practice.

The Senate meanwhile held up consideration of the legislation which, as it emerged from the Banking Committee, carried an amendment prohibiting the government from engaging the so-called "W.C.C." (Without Compensation) for government jobs with executive authority.

The Eisenhower Administration has sought continuation of the authority to retain industry and business leaders as unpaid consultants. The "conflict of interest" statutes have been waived in these cases. Under the new amendment business leaders could be used only as consultants or minor officials.

Campbell sent Fulbright reports on contracts awarded by the Defense Materials Procurement Agency for payment of subsidies to three companies to produce zinc for the Government's stockpile of material that might be needed in the event of war.

'Serious Objections.'

Campbell said in the letter: "These reports show that after the emergency need, if any, for these programs had ceased, zinc production contracts were made and Government funds were made available to these companies, all marginal producers, notwithstanding serious objections by certain officials as to the legality and propriety of such action."

"There appears to be established certain 'conflict of interest' in connection with these contracts on the part of the then deputy administrator of D.M.P.A. serving without compensation (Young) and who at the same time was head of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co., which was beneficially interested in the program of the three companies."

"Laxities in the administration and control of these contracts were likewise found. In none of the cases has there been any substantial production. Thus most of the total amounts furnished by the Government will be required to be accounted as lost."

The names of the companies and the amounts involved were not given.

Young's Comment.

In St. Louis, Young said the report was "all news to me. I know nothing about it, but intend to find out about it." He flew to Washington today on a trip that was scheduled before the report was made public.

The legislation before the Senate would extend for two years the Defense Production Act, which gives the Government authority to mobilize the nation's economy for defense. During the last war, industry executives who served the Government virtually without pay were called "dollar-a-year men."

OPPOSITION PLANS TO HURL
CAT OR PIGEON AT NEHRU

NEW DELHI, July 8 (UP)—A Government opposition leader has suggested to his party members that they throw a cat or pigeon at Prime Minister Nehru when he delivers his next speech in Parliament.

The Praja-Socialist party scheme, designed to create disturbance and confusion, was revealed by a member of the party's executive committee.

He said the plan to disturb the Indian Parliament was the idea of Praja-Socialist Leader Rammanohar Lohia.

REDS 'POSTPONE' RELEASE OF 3
TURNCOAT G.I.'S

LONDON, July 8 (UP)—Red China announced tonight that it has "postponed" the release of three turncoat American prisoners of war.

The announcement was made by Communist Peiping radio and monitored here.

The broadcast said the postponement was ordered because Hong Kong authorities had not replied to a Peiping request for arrangements to transport the men.

The Chinese Red Cross had announced earlier that the three would be handed over to American and British authorities at Hong Kong tomorrow.

"No reply had been received from the Hong Kong authorities up to 6 p.m. today (5 a.m. St. Louis time) and consequently the departure of the three former U.N. soldiers had to be postponed," the Peiping broadcast said.

MRS. HOBBY SEES
HAS NOT RESIGNED

WASHINGTON, July 8 (UP)—The White House said today that Mrs. Oreta Culp Hobby has not submitted a resignation as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

"There is no resignation before us," White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters after Mrs. Hobby had conferred with President Eisenhower.

Mrs. Hobby, who has been under fire for her handling of the Salk polio vaccine program, conferred alone with the President for a brief period this morning before the weekly Cabinet meeting.

When she left the White House after the Cabinet meeting, Mrs. Hobby said flatly that she had not submitted her resignation. She also said she had been visiting in Houston, Tex., this week with her husband, former Texas Gov. William P. Hobby. She said that while he still is suffering from several ailments, he is feeling better.

Published reports had quoted an unidentified Administration source as saying last night that Mrs. Hobby's resignation was "virtually certain" to be submitted in the near future.

RUMBLING MT. ETNA SPURTS FLAMES TWO MILES INTO AIR

CATANIA, Sicily, July 8 (UP)—Mount Etna spurted giant flames two miles skyward today and volcano experts perched on the rim of the crater to watch for indications of a major eruption.

The flames, shooting upwards at six-second intervals in the pre-dawn hours, cast an eerie light over Catania some 30 miles away. A heavy rumbling shook the mountain.

Experts of the volcanological observatory on Mount Etna said the flames were not indicative of any danger of eruption unless the lava level began to rise.

CONGRESSMAN
TEXAS SCANDAL

John J. Bell Accused of Plot to Steal $154,000 in Veterans Land Program.

SEGUIN, Tex., July 8 (UP)—A grand jury indicted Representative John J. Bell (Dem.), Texas, and two other men on charges they conspired to steal more than $154,000 from the state of Texas.

The grand jury returned the indictments last night, but they were not made public until today. The indictments charge Bell and the other two men conspired to steal the money in a land transaction in Guadalupe county, Seguin is the county seat.

The indictment is a part of the still-growing scandal in the $100,000,000 veterans land program in Texas.

The exposure of the Texas land scandals was the work of Kenneth Towery, small-town newspaper man from Cuero, who was awarded a Pulitzer Prize this year for his first big story.

The details of the transaction were not set forth in the indictment. Bell told a legislative investigating committee he received $3500 from T. J. McJarry of Denver, formerly of Cuero, in a deal involving 24 veterans' land parcels.

In Washington, Bell issued this statement: "I'm shocked and surprised. I deny any guilt. I violated no law. I represented Mr. (T. J.) McJarry as an attorney before duly authorized agents of the veterans land board." Asked what plans he had for returning to Texas, Bell said, "Of course, I'm going to return as soon as practicable."

The deal involved 3701 acres of land for which the state paid $177,530 under the program. The way the plan works, veterans who want to purchase land must first apply for a blank application form to the state, then the state buys the land and sells it to the veterans.

Then the veterans repay the state on extended payments. The way most of the scandals have worked is that the supposed sellers merely pass around blank application forms to veterans, many of them Negroes and Latin-Americans, and then, without their knowledge, filled in the blanks to indicate the veterans wanted to buy land.

Many of the veterans had never seen the land and had no intention of buying any land. Often the land was appraised at excessive amounts.

Winged Ants Black Out City.

TOKYO, July 8 (UP)—A huge flock of winged ants forced officials to order a 30-minute blackout in Fuku city last night. The ants crowded around lights and neon signs and invaded homes. All attempts to chase them failed and the blackout was ordered.

Still another ended: "We have a number of really nasty houses going cheap."

"We're now doing four times the business we were doing just after the war," says Brooks.

ACTION WOULD
RESPONSIBILITY FOR OWN POWER

Hagerty Cites This as Example of Assurance
President Wants
Before Canceling Disputed Contract.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (UP)—The White House suggested today that the Mayor and City Council of Memphis, Tenn., vote to assume sole responsibility for providing the city's own power.

President Eisenhower said Wednesday he would cancel the controversial Dixon-Yates contract if there were proper assurances that the City of Memphis will build its own power plant and thus eliminate the need for the disputed $107,000,000 Dixon-Yates power project.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said today "an example of such assurance would be a vote by the Mayor and City Council of Memphis that the city assumes the sole responsibility for providing its own power."

Hagerty said Budget Director Rowland H. Hughes is continuing his review of the Dixon-Yates plan with Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., the Atomic Energy Commission and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Mr. Eisenhower ordered the review last week to determine whether the contract will be canceled.

"All are concerned, of course, that there be proper assurance of responsibility for supplying the power needs of the Memphis area," Hagerty said.

He said his remarks were prompted by newspaper stories and inquiries.

The Mayor of Memphis has said that the city will be ready to go ahead with plans for its own plant within 90 days, rather than buy power from the Dixon-Yates plant. The city now is served by TVA.

The Administration plan, under a contract between the Dixon-Yates group of private utilities and the Atomic Energy Commission, has been to use the Dixon-Yates current in the Memphis area, as replacement for power the AEC takes from TVA at other points.

Wenzell's Dual Role.

The White House put forth its suggestion for Memphis action as a next step in banker Adolphe H. Wenzell waited to testify before Senate investigators to explain his dual role in the Dixon-Yates negotiations, a "fairly big" conference at the AEC.

Wenzell, former vice president of the First Boston Corp., told a special Senate monopoly subcommittee that "eight or 10" persons met on the Dixon-Yates matter Feb. 8, 1954, in the office of former AEC General Manager K. D. Nichols.

Not in Official Report.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, brought out that the conference was not mentioned in the Administration's report on the contract. The report was made at President Eisenhower's direction that all pertinent information on the contract be made public.

Wenzell went before the Senate investigators to explain his dual role in the contract negotiations. The investigators already have received testimony and evidence that Wenzell advised the Dixon-Yates utility combine at the same time he was Budget Bureau consultant on the matter.

Wenzell testified that he went to the Feb. 8 meeting with Edgar H. Dixon, one of the principal officers in the utility combine. Wenzell also testified that his conferences on Dixon-Yates included a brief one with AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, Jan. 18, 1954.

Strauss testified before the joint atomic energy committee last November that he did not know whether former Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge had brought in any outside consultants in the matter.

EDEN SAYS WEST CAN GUARANTEE RUSSIA AGAINST GERMAN THREAT

Asserts Big 3 Will Agree to 'Any Reasonable Arrangement,' Cites WEU Plans for Arms Control.

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden, in a preview of British policy for the Big Four meeting at Geneva, last night assured Moscow that the West is willing to guarantee the Soviet Union against any threat from a free, united Germany.

He said the United States, Britain and France will "agree to any reasonable arrangement" to ease Russian fears of an attack from the West.

In line with this, he cited the seven-nation Western European Union, set up last winter to limit West German rearmament, and added:

"We have already begun to elaborate and apply a number of schemes for control and limitation of our armament in western Europe. We have placed certain definite restrictions upon ourselves. The West German government has undertaken these engagements, too, with us."

Eden declared, in a speech to the English-Speaking Union, that "there is no reason why the Soviet bloc eventually should not be brought into the WEU's arms control and weapons pool."

He said "it is reasonable to look for real, if modest, progress" at the coming Big Four conference at Geneva. However, he emphasized that Britain would go to the meeting of heads of government dedicated to three principles:

"We are not prepared to break up NATO."

"We will not be parted from the United States."

"We will work for the unification of Germany."

Eden urged the Russians to agree to the unification of Germany through free elections, and declared "there will be no security nor lasting peace in Europe unless we do."

Admitting "there are risks for everybody" in an attempt to solve the German problem, Eden said:

"I can quite understand that the Russians fear that a free Germany would probably unite with the West. I think that it would."

Need Not Be Dangerous.

"The Russians may even consider this dangerous to their security. But the answer is that it need not be so. We are certainly ready, and believe that the western nations, including Germany are also ready to agree to any reasonable arrangements which will give Russia reassurance on this point."

The prime minister said the West should approach the Geneva talks with a blend of care, confidence and courage.

"Care because diplomacy that is thorough and thoughtful, and takes account of reality, and takes time, is the best diplomacy," he said. "In a tangled problem such as this you must beware of the snap solution. You must get down to fundamentals."

"And then with care goes caution, because it is right that we should be wary and not drop our guard. There is nothing warlike in such reserve, it is mere prudence."

"Some say there is a new look in the policy of Soviet Russia. It may be so—I trust it will prove so. But I hope that nobody will accuse us of having back if we take a good look at the new look before we pronounce upon it."

"And then there is confidence, because we are united as a nation and united with our friends."

"And then the third element, courage. Courage because if opportunity opens up at Geneva as we all pray it may, we must not fear to seize it."

"I am sure that we shall not. Chance for Modest Gains."

"It is not wise to expect too much of an international meeting like this, which will be, we hope, the first of a series of varying levels."

"And yet it is reasonable to look for real if modest progress. I will tell you what I hope—that by frank talks in private meetings we can allay suspicions of the intentions, to take one example, of the free nations of the West."

"Our first aim will be to allay mistrust on either side, and I hope that we might then agree to outline for the foreign secretaries detailed talks on which they can be engaged."

"They might have a number of directives."

"First to bring about the unity of Germany. As part of that instruction, to work out plans for the security of Europe and—if possible—for the physical limitation of armaments on the spot. If we could agree on this, we should certainly beget an increased measure of confidence for the future."

Eden declared:

"The problem of Europe is the problem of Germany. As long as Germany is divided, Europe will be divided. I said this at Berlin last year—it is just as true today."

"What then can we do to bring about the unity of Germany? There must be free elections throughout the whole country. This also we proposed at Berlin. When the elections are over it will be for the united Germans to determine her own future. It is natural that many in Europe feel that there are risks in this. Of course, there are."

"The Germans understand them. There are risks for every-

U.N. HEAD THINKS ATOMIC CONGRESS WILL BE FRUITFUL

Says Geneva Scientific Meeting Will Create 'Favorable Atmosphere for Negotiation.'

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., July 8—Expectation that the international "atoms-for-peace" conference to begin next month at Geneva will fortify United Nations efforts toward universal disarmament and abolition of nuclear weapons was expressed today by U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld.

The Big Four "summit meeting" opens there July 18. Hammarskjöld told reporters at U.N. headquarters today that it is something more than just hope that the scientific congress to discuss peaceful uses of atomic energy will open a new approach to the problem of outlawing atomic bombs and other weapons of mass destruction.

"I have the firm conviction that it is something more than just hope that the scientific congress to discuss peaceful uses of atomic energy will open a new approach to the problem of outlawing atomic bombs and other weapons of mass destruction," Hammarskjöld told reporters at U.N. headquarters today.

"I do not mean that the solution is imminent but that the meeting will create a favorable atmosphere for negotiations."

Meanwhile, it was announced that 66 states, including the Vatican, plan to send delegations to the atomic conference. Abstracts of 1084 papers submitted for the meeting have already been distributed among participating governments, including those formulated by 32 countries, the World Health Organization, the Food and Agricultural Organization, the International Labor Organization, the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, all United Nations specialized agencies, and the one contributed by the world organization itself.

"New Approach."

Hammarskjöld said fulfillment of the atoms-for-peace program which was originated by President Eisenhower and approved by the U.N. General Assembly, placing the conference "under the U.N. aegis" as the President proposed, would put the problems of the nuclear discovery "in focus."

"It would permit experts to build up a new approach toward control, he said. "The meeting tends to give the entire atomic picture a new perspective," the Secretary General said. "It will introduce an entirely new notion of the sources of power in the world. It may well be that it will make clear we are on the verge of an unusual stage in economic development, perhaps as fundamental as the Industrial Revolution inspired by the introduction of coal and steel."

The scientific conference may mark the beginning of "a new kind of international co-operation" toward a "highly dynamic development in world economy," Hammarskjöld continued.

"All of this tends to contribute toward creating a world atmosphere of international collaboration in developing atomic power for benevolent purposes," he concluded. "It will be a much more hopeful atmosphere in which again to try to tackle the atomic weapon problem directly."

Disarmament Issue.

Hammarskjöld said he thought disarmament would be the main issue when the General Assembly convenes in September.

Besides expressing the hope that the renewed debate would establish means of "removing the threat of the atomic bomb," the Secretary General also declared the Assembly might find some solution to the problem of membership in the world organization.

body in any attempt to solve this problem, but we have to solve it all the same, because there will be neither security nor lasting peace in Europe unless we do."

"But that does not mean that we ought not all of us, including the Germans, to try to work out methods which will reduce the dangers so far as we can."

U.S. COURT BARS SEGREGATION IN VIRGINIA PARKS

Rules No Lease May Be Made With Private Operator That Would Bar Any Race.

NORFOLK, Va., July 8 (AP)—A United States district judge has ruled Virginia cannot continue racial segregation in a state-owned park hitherto reserved for whites—whether operated by the state or under private lease.

Judge Walter Hoffman ruled yesterday the state cannot deny Negroes the use of Seashore State Park near Cape Henry and cannot make any lease with a private operator that would discriminate against any race.

Legal authorities indicated the ruling, unless upset by higher courts, would work to prevent the lease—or possibly even the sale—of public schools for private, segregated operation.

Judge Hoffman said in a 13-page opinion he was aware of "the impact of this decision on the state park system in Virginia." The state operates eight parks exclusively for whites and a ninth exclusively for Negroes.

The judge said the "contention that a normal lessor-lessee relationship should be permitted in leases of public property must give way to the constitutional rights of the citizens as a whole."

Virginia Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond Jr. said in Richmond he had expected the state to be enjoined from excluding Negroes from Seashore park under state operation. A precedent had been set earlier this year by the fourth United States circuit court of appeals ruling out segregation in Maryland public parks.

But Almond indicated he regarded as highly debatable whether the state could be prevented from leasing the property to a private operator who might operate it as he saw fit. Almond was unable to say whether the state would appeal.

He turned back against the Soviet Communists their often repeated boast that their economic system would collapse and said that it was their system that was over-extended.

"The Secretary was not speaking in terms of any immediate crisis confronting the Soviet government or forecasting that their posture at the Geneva conference would be one of weakness."

Principles of the Hoffman ruling, applied to the school situation, would seem to prevent renting or leasing public school buildings for private operation to continue segregation—a course that has been suggested as a possible method of avoiding integration under the Supreme Court's anti-segregation decisions.

The President, according to tentative plans, will leave here July 15 at 10:30 p.m. (9:30 p.m. St. Louis time) in the Columbine III, the White House Super Constellation. His plane will be accompanied by a press and Secret Service plane.

The Chief Executive plans to land the next morning at the United States Air Force base in Keflavik, Iceland, where he will remain for about two hours before continuing to Geneva.

The White House said it is conceivable that weather conditions next weekend might force the Columbine to take the southern route, with a fuel stop in the Azores.

Meantime, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty left for Geneva today to confer on mechanics of American press, radio and picture coverage of the conference which opens July 18.

NEW ATTEMPT TO BE MADE TO GET COUNTY OK ON EXPRESSWAY

Rejected Daniel Boone Route Through Richmond Heights to Be Brought Up Again
Before Council.

A new attempt to obtain approval of the St. Louis County Council for extension of the Daniel Boone Expressway through Richmond Heights will be made by Councilman L. Gordon Davis of Kirkwood, he told the Post-Dispatch today.

The council, at its meeting Wednesday, rejected a proposed agreement with the Missouri Highway Department for the Richmond Heights route, causing further delay in development of an expressway system in the county. The proposal was voted down 5 to 2.

Davis, one of two council members who supported the proposed agreement, said he will bring the matter before the council whenever it appears to have a chance for passage. He added that he thought a majority of the council favors completion of the Daniel Boone Expressway, which now dead-ends at Brentwood boulevard in Richmond Heights.

Meanwhile, a meeting of Richmond Heights residents held Tuesday at 8 p.m. to protest the council's rejection of the plan. The meeting will be held in the council chambers at the Clayton courthouse.

Calls Program Imperative.
Councilman Davis said he plans to call the question up for council action again because "it is imperative that we get started on the expressway program" in the county.

"This is the only metropolitan area of this size in the United States which is doing nothing about expressways," he declared. "The matter is squarely in the lap of the council. The council must rise to its responsibilities."

Councilman Frank L. Martini, Republican, in whose district (the Fifth) the Richmond Heights extension would be constructed, led the fight against the agreement. He was supported by Councilman Harold D. Carey of the Sixth District, Republican, and by the three Democratic members, Councilmen Thomas C. Dunne, First District; James H. McNary, Second, and Maurice M. Abramson, Third.

Davis, a Republican, charged that Martini and the three Democrats were "making a political football out of this important matter." He said the county expressway program had strong non-partisan backing, and was not made a "partisan issue" until it came before the council.

Live Along Route.
One of the leaders of the group sponsoring the protest meeting next Tuesday night is Benjamin W. Lowell, 7819 Harter avenue. He said the group includes more than 150 Richmond Heights residents who live east of Hanley road along the route of the proposed expressway extension.

"Everyone in our neighborhood is fed up with the lack of action by the council on this matter," Lowell declared. "The main purpose of the meeting is to get prompt approval of the agreement so the state can begin to acquire the right-of-way." Until this "cloud of indecision is removed," he said, the residents cannot repair or improve their homes without knowing whether the state will acquire their property. He said he doubted any homes along the proposed right-of-way could be sold until a final decision has been reached.

Lowell, head of a loud speaker manufacturing firm, said Councilmen Martini and Davis had accepted invitations to attend the meeting. He said R. L. Hyder of Jefferson City, chief counsel of the State Highway wire service was going to be taken over by some one else. Under questioning today, Lewis said, Noe insisted the story of the visitor was true but that he had made up the name "Gordon Richards" because of the pressure of interrogation. He said he did not know who the man was.

Noe was released later after he made a written statement. Chief of Police George Dowling refused to release the contents, saying he would not make the statement public until after the Koenig investigation had been completed.

A race track hanger-on was taken into custody early today by St. Louis police and questioned briefly about the Koenig case. East St. Louis officers, who talked to him, said they were seeking additional information about Smith's connections with Koenig.

Koenig, a former St. Louis politician who moved to the East Side after pleading guilty of dealing in black market whisky in World War II, disappeared last June 20. His body, with bullet wounds in the head and body, was found two days later in the trunk of his automobile, which was parked on an East St. Louis street.

John J. Vitale, notorious St. Louis gangster, was arrested yesterday by county police and questioned at length about reports he and two associates backed a racing-results service for Koenig in competition with the Frank (Buster) Wortman syndicate.

He was released from custody after stoutly denying the reports to Superintendent Albert E. DuBois of the county department and Police Capt. Frank Cook of East St. Louis. The questioning was at Ladue police headquarters.

Vitale, a convicted narcotics dealer, declared he knew nothing about the Koenig murder, had no connection with it, and had not seen Koenig in about three years. Police arrested him in front of his home in the 3700 block of Avondale avenue, Arbor Terrace, as he was preparing to leave to play golf.

DuBois said he asked Vitale about affairs of the Anthony Novelty Co., 3635 Kielen avenue, Pine Lawn, which distri-

Department, also would attend to answer questions of residents concerning acquisition of the right-of-way.

Several council members who voted against the agreement told the Post-Dispatch they did so because they did not think the proposed route, which would use the Express Highway in the city, was feasible.

Carey said he thought the project would be a "waste of money" because the Express Highway would be unable to handle the increased traffic.

McNary said he voted against the Richmond Heights route because he thinks it would create additional traffic hazards on the city's Express Highway. He also contended it would not be practical because the Express Highway is frequently closed by inclement weather and accidents.

Abramson said he still has an "open mind on the question. He reported he plans to make a close study of the problem and may "change my mind."

Martini said he voted against the Richmond Heights extension because he thought that Martini and others in Martini's district who opposed the route know more about the wishes and desires of persons affected by the project.

Wants Differences Settled.
Dunne declared he was not opposed to the Richmond Heights route, but voted against it because he believes that differences over the proposed extension should be settled before the council approves it. He said there should be an agreement before a bond issue is submitted to pay the county's share of the work, so the bond proposal can be passed.

Martini said he opposed the Richmond Heights extension because most residents of his district think it would be a "mistake." He said the southern route should have been approved because it would avoid feeding additional traffic on the Express Highway and establish a new east-west highway artery.

Council Chairman James A. Singer of the Fourth District, a Republican, was the other member who voted for the proposed agreement. He said he supported it to remove the uncertainty facing Richmond Heights residents.

UNION ELECTRIC TALKS RESUMED, STRIKE DATE SET

Engineers Authorize July 17 as Negotiating Deadline After Rejecting Offer.

Negotiations were resumed today between AFL Operating Engineers and Union Electric Co. in an effort to avert a strike set for midnight of July 17 unless a wage contract is agreed on in the meantime.

Establishment of the negotiating deadline was authorized last night at meetings of Local 148 of the operating engineers representing 1225 power plant workers at seven plants. The men rejected a company offer of a 4 per cent increase. Current average scale is $2.21 hourly for a 40-hour week.

James Flanagan, president of the local, said that the vote, taken by secret ballot, was "overwhelming." About 450 day shift union members met last night at Teamsters Hall, 4141 Forest Park avenue, after an earlier meeting attended by 250 night shift workers at 422 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis.

Other Meetings Held.
Similar meetings were held by the union at Bagnell Dam and at Keokuk, Ia., where the company has plants. Although results of the voting at those places had not been tabulated, Flanagan said the vote in this area in any event would determine the negotiating policy.

In event the union receives what he described as "a reasonable offer" from the company before July 17, Flanagan said a special membership meeting would be called to consider it. After rejecting the company's offer, the union withdrew a compromise proposal calling for an increase of five per cent and reverted to its original demand of a 10 per cent increase, or about 22 cents an hour.

He is now starting from scratch again," Flanagan told the Post-Dispatch.

The union membership meetings were held after negotiations had broken down the previous evening. Speakers at the meetings, it was learned, discussed the Missouri King-Thomasson Act under which the Governor can seize and operate a struck utility. The act would apply to power plants within the state but would not affect operations elsewhere.

Electric power for St. Louis is derived from the seven plants of the Union Electric Co. managed by the operating engineers. Three of the plants are in Missouri, three on the East Side, in Illinois, and one at Keokuk, Ia.

Contract Expires.
The previous wage contract between the company and union expired eight days ago. The power house employees have been working under an extension which could be terminated at any time.

Company officers have described the company's offer as "fair" and said that the company is willing to submit the wage issue to arbitration. Federal arbitrators are participating in the negotiations.

The company is also in negotiations with two other electrical workers unions, one representing outside distribution employees and the other clerical and office workers.

butes coin-operated devices. Rumors of any friction with gang boss Wortman were denied by Vitale. Wortman is interested in a rival pinball and automatic phonograph firm, the Plaza Amusement Co., which operates in St. Louis.

St. Louis area authorities also have been asked to arrest Anthony J. (Tony) Giardano and Ralph Calico, notorious gangsters, for questioning about reports they participated with Vitale in giving Koenig's venture backing.

Participating in the arrest of Vitale with DuBois were Chief of Detectives James Chapman of the St. Louis department and James W. Connor, operating director of the St. Louis Crime Commission.

An examination of tax records in the St. Clair county courthouse at Belleville showed that the Board of Review granted Wortman a $7750 reduction in the assessed valuation of his pretentious home at No. 2 Summit drive, Caseyville Township, earlier this year.

The home, reported to have been built at a cost in excess of $100,000, was assessed at $32,790 in 1953. Wortman paid a $922 tax bill on this valuation last December and then filed a protest.

Acting on the protest, the Board of Review reduced the assessed valuation to $25,040. The tax bill for 1954, which Wortman has not yet paid, amounts to $728.

Wortman's home is located in a subdivision near Collinsville, which is in Madison county. The house, however, is just across the St. Clair county line.

WILL OF MAN WHO LEFT $2,000,000 TO TOWN CONTESTED

Suit to contest the will of George Bode Jr., 86-year-old St. Louisian who died May 11, leaving his $2,000,000 estate to the city of St. Joseph, Mo., for parks and related purposes, was filed in circuit court at Clayton today by four relatives.

They alleged Bode was of unsound mind "within the meaning of the law," and that they had a pecuniary interest of great value" in an earlier will of Bode's. Plaintiffs were Mrs. Meta Bode Long, a sister; Mrs. Charles A. Peters, a niece, and her husband, all of St. Joseph, and Mrs. Eleanor L. Thieloff, another niece, Kansas City.

Wants Differences Settled. Dunne declared he was not opposed to the Richmond Heights route, but voted against it because he believes that differences over the proposed extension should be settled before the council approves it. He said there should be an agreement before a bond issue is submitted to pay the county's share of the work, so the bond proposal can be passed.

POLICE MAY HAVE TROUBLE GETTING 95 PATROLMEN

Crime-Fighting Measure
Signed by Governor, but Force Is Under-strength Now.

The St. Louis Police Department, which has had difficulty obtaining qualified recruits in recent years, will employ 95 additional patrolmen, authorized by a bill signed by the Governor yesterday, as soon as possible under the present training program, L. A. Long, president of the Board of Police Commissioners, said today.

Long said, however, it would be some time before any of the 95 can be added to the present force of commissioned officers because the department is still 50 men short of its previous authorized strength.

The bill signed by the Governor was approved by the Legislature to provide St. Louis with the means of combating a sharp increase in major crimes.

Forty-six prospective patrolmen are in training at the police academy here now and if all successfully pass their examinations the department will still be below its previous authorized personnel strength of 1915 men.

Recent pay increases for policemen have stimulated the recruiting program, Long said, but candidate classes will not be increased or speeded up.

"The quality of the training would suffer if we enlarged the classes," he said. "We could not obtain enough qualified instructors. All of our present instructors are graduates of the national FBI training school."

It was originally introduced in the 1953 Legislature by the 18 St. Louis House members, the bill authorizing the additional men would have required the police board to make the appointments. It specified they must be used exclusively on police beat duty, rather than assignments as needed.

The bill was amended, at the request of the police commission, to make authorization of additional strength and the assignments discretionary.

LAMBERT FIELD JET TEST FLYING MAY BE STOPPED

McDonnell and Navy Seek New Site for Trials—Inquiry Into Fatal Crash Opens.

(Pictures in Everyday Magazine)

Plans to abandon Lambert-St. Louis Field as the site for testing jet planes it produces for the Navy were stepped up by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. today as the company and the Navy started an investigation of the crash of a jet fighter just after a takeoff yesterday.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration did not start an inquiry because the plane was a military one, an official explained.

David E. Leigh, manager of the airport, said he could not see that any safety regulation was violated in this, the first takeoff crash of a jet aircraft at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

The jet crashed and burned beside the thirteenth green of the Bellerive Country Club golf course, and the pilot, Albert Seawell Jr. was killed instantly.

James S. McDonnell, president of the company, paid high tribute to him, saying it was evident that when engine trouble developed as soon as he was in the air he made sure he would crash in an open space and not on homes in the residential area southeast of the airport.

Came Apart in Explosion.
The plane clipped the tops of some trees near houses north of the golf course, on Geiger road, hit the ground at the fourth green, demolished a large elm and bounced over to the thirteenth green, where it came apart in an explosion. It was burning as it came in.

It was only about 100 feet from much-traveled Florissant road, and a group of spectators gathered quickly as a huge plume of smoke rose from the fiercely flaming ruins. Firemen from several nearby municipal departments and from the McDonnell plant were on the scene quickly, and Seawell's body was removed a few minutes later.

McDonnell said it was the first time one of his company's planes crashed near a residential area in the 16 years it has been making aircraft.

This was an outmoded Demon F3H-1N, which has been superseded by the F3H-2N. The 1N is no longer in production, and this one was being used to test an automatic pilot rather than the airplane.

Last November the Navy can-ceded orders for 200 of the earlier model and went ahead with the 2N, in which a different engine is used.

"Sacrificed Himself."
The company president said of Seawell: "He deliberately sacrificed himself to save others. He could have handled the plane in such a way as to have had a better chance of personal survival. But he made a masterful effort to avoid hitting any homes or crashing on the crowded highway."

McDonnell disclosed that he and the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics have been working for several months on plans for an airport in some sparsely settled area within 100 miles of St. Louis for testing of new planes. It is to be owned by the Navy, but so far there is no appropriation for it.

No site has been decided upon, McDonnell said.

A golf foursome was playing about 75 yards from where the plane first hit the ground, about two and one half miles from the airport. One of them, Paul Johansen, of 17 Fair Oaks drive, Ladue, said: "I heard a hissing sound, and saw the plane coming through trees on the west side of the fourth fairway. It bounced off the green and pancaked over to the thirteenth. The nose was tilted up, as if the pilot was trying to gain altitude."

Another player, J. W. Israel, of 520 East Polo drive, Clayton, added that the plane was burning as the tail struck the trees.

The crash was only a few hundred feet from Mt. Providence Boarding School, 8351 Florissant road, Normandy, where about 40 boys and 75 sisters were in residence.

Austria Rejects Red Bid.

4 MORE GAMBLING TAX STAMPS SOLD

Two St. Louisans Among Buyers—Total for Area Now 12.

Four more persons, including two St. Louisans, purchased $50 federal wagering tax stamps today from the Internal Revenue Service here for the year ending next July 1.

This brings to 12 the number of persons in eastern Missouri who have purchased the gambling stamps for the new fiscal year. A total of 36 persons bought the stamp for the last fiscal year.

St. Louisans who bought stamps were William J. Smith, who gave as his business address 3351 1/2 Olive street, and William H. Wheeler, who listed 4455 Kennerly avenue as his business address. Both men held stamps last year.

Smith, who has been arrested and fined on gambling charges previously, purchased the stamp as a "principal," which means he must also pay the Government 10 per cent of his gross income from bet-taking. Wheeler, buying his stamp as agent for a gambling operator, does not need to pay any additional gambling tax.

The others who bought stamps, both as "principals," were Clifford Alfred James, Kirksville, and Warren Napier, Bragg City, in southeast Missouri. They held stamps last year.

Names of stamp-buyers are made available to city and state authorities. St. Louis police have made it a practice to interrogate purchasers, as well as to keep their places of business under surveillance.

OWNER OF BOAT IS CHARGED WITH SPEEDING ON RIVER

The long arm of the landlocked law can reach out over water, Arthur M. Neer of East St. Louis, who is charged with speeding and reckless motorboating on the Illinois river, has learned. He was scheduled to appear in court at Jerseyville, on the charge today.

Neer, who lives at 1915 Ohio avenue, was arrested Wednesday by Illinois State Police near Pere Marquette State Park on the complaint of another boater. He charged that Neer, while boarding School, 8351 Florissant road, Normandy, where about 40 boys and 75 sisters were in residence.

Illinois laws are similar for both rivers and highways. No speed limits are prescribed, but an operator must not exceed speeds that are "reasonable and proper under existing conditions" or operate in such a manner that would endanger life or property.

MOVE TO BAR MAKING EX-G.I.S JOIN RESERVES

Senator Russell Would Offer $400 Bonus Instead for Veterans Who Volunteer.

WASHINGTON, July 6 (AP)—Senator Richard Russell (Dem., Georgia), moved today to prevent compulsory reserve training for veterans.

Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, proposed instead a $400 "bonus" for any veteran who volunteers for three years of active reserve training with "combat units of the Army or Marine Corps."

Russell thus proposed a drastic change in President Eisenhower's program for strengthening the nation's military reserves. The program is aimed at building the present 700,000-man reserve to a force of 2,900,000 by 1960.

As passed by the House, the bill would provide that any reservist who fails to keep up with his prescribed training schedule may be recalled for 45 days of active duty. This provision is intended to enforce reserve obligations.

Under present law, a service man is supposed to serve a total of eight years divided between active and reserve duty, but reserve training has not been enforced. The House-passed bill would cut the over-all total to six years.

In opening hearings yesterday on the reserve legislation, Russell said he questioned the "propriety, or the equity, of imposing the major part of the reserve responsibility on the shoulders of our prior service men."

Russell and other opponents of compulsory reserve training for men who already have served on active duty, contend that 800,000 World War II veterans were recalled in the Korean war, while many young men with no prior military service escaped duty altogether.

"Better Reserve." Russell said he offered his bonus enlistment plan because he believes it will produce a better reserve than the Administration's compulsory plan.

"One man who comes in voluntarily is worth several men who are grabbed by the nape of their neck and pushed into the ready reserve after they have already done their regular service," he told the United Press.

Announcing details of his new plan, Russell said he also would propose that trainees under the new reserve program could "be assigned to National Guard units."

This could raise a new fight over segregation.

House leaders dropped all reference to the National Guard from the reserve bill after Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem., New York), won approval of an anti-segregation amendment that stalled the legislation for six weeks in the House.

Powell, a Negro Congressman, failed in another effort to attach an anti-segregation rider to the revised bill which finally was passed by the House last week after urgent appeals by Eisenhower and defense officials.

Many Witnesses Listed. Among a score or more of witnesses listed for this second day of hearings was Clarence Mitchell, spokesman for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People who has been pressing for anti-segregation amendments to reserve, school and housing legislation.

American Legion national commander Seaborn P. Collins, said yesterday the country should recall what happened in the call-up of reserves for the Korean fighting.

George D. Riley, AFL legislative representative, said the federation was supporting the program, in the belief it would not be seized upon as an opening wedge for developing a full scale universal military training. Riley called for another look in two years to see how things were working out.

Farmers Union Objects.

An opposition witness, President James G. Patton of the National Farmers Union, asked that the entire program be delayed and the Pentagon instructed to "correct ills of the present reserve program." Patton said few farmers could attend 48 drill periods and 15 days of field training each year, as the reservists would be required to do.

Edmund Claxton, testifying for the National Association of Manufacturers, supported the program. He asked, however, that a limited number of young scientists and engineers be screened and distributed among "both the military and essential industry." Claxton said this could be done under the bill as passed by the House.

Russell said he has not discussed his new proposals with Pentagon officials or with other Senators.

"I expect defense officials to discuss the reserve bonus plan for combat units when they testify Monday," he said.

Russell said his bonus plan would not apply to the Air Force or Navy reserves "because they have testified they can get all the men they need through volunteers."

Air Force, Navy Excluded. Similarly, it would not apply to non-combat units of the Army and Marine reserves, or to commissioned officers, "only to experienced non-coms and enlisted men for combat units such as the infantry, tank corps and similar outfits," Russell said. Under the Russell proposal all service veterans with at least 18 months active duty behind them would be placed in the standby, or inactive, reserve unless they volunteered for active reserve training.

The staff of the Armed Services Committee estimated that about 400,000 veterans would join reserve combat units in the next three years under the Russell plan. At $400 a head, that would cost $160,000,000.

"That would be a small price for a really effective reserve," Russell said.

A key feature of the Administration's plan—and the House bill—calls for enrollment of up to 250,000 teen-age volunteers a year to undergo six months of intensive training, to be followed by 7½ years in active reserve units.

Russell did not touch on this in his proposals, but presumably it would be acceptable to him since it involves the volunteer principle and does not call for the use of veterans.

SEVEN-MILE PUSH WRECKS STALLED AUTO, KILLS RIDER

FRANKLIN, Neb., July 6 (AP)—A stalled automobile was pushed so fast by a helping motorist that it went into a ditch and a passenger was killed, Sheriff Albert Jelkin said today.

Sheriff Jelkin said Luke Stahl told him his car stalled near Riverston Wednesday night. Another motorist drove up and offered to push the Stahl car.

Stahl related, the Sheriff said, that the driver of the second car finally reached a speed at which Stahl lost control of his vehicle and the car went into a ditch. Harry Stahl, father of Luke, was killed.

The driver of the second car, whose name Stahl did not obtain, did not stop after the crash. He was being sought by Jelkin who said as near as he could determine the Stahl car had been pushed about seven miles. Luke Stahl and his wife are in a hospital here with injuries.

MOVE TO BLOCK DIXON-YATES FEE IF DEAL IS OFF

Senate Group Asks Comptroller to Hold Up Payment Pending Further Inquiry.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The Senate special anti-monopoly subcommittee asked Comptroller General Joseph Campbell yesterday to block any cancellation fees by the Government on the Dixon-Yates contract, pending further investigation by the subcommittee.

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tenn.), the chairman, said that the subcommittee was of the unanimous opinion that testimony showed that Dixon-Yates was not entitled to a cancellation fee.

One reason cited by Kefauver in his announcement was that he called "a highly questionable relationship" between the Government and the First Boston Corp. of New York, which has handled the financing for Dixon-Yates.

Kefauver was referring to testimony that Adolph H. Wenzell, when a vice president of First Boston, was, as the corporation's representative, in contact with Edgar H. Dixon about financing arrangements at the same general period, in February 1954, that he was acting as a paid consultant to the Bureau of the Budget on the Dixon-Yates contract.

The President last week ordered a study of the possibility of cancelling the controversial Dixon-Yates contract because the City of Memphis had notified the Government of its intention to build its own power plant. A main reason cited for building the Dixon-Yates plant, on which work is already being started at West Memphis, Ark., was that the Memphis area needed power.

Copy to Comptroller.
Kefauver said that the subcommittee had voted to write to the Comptroller General, enclosing a copy of the testimony in the hearings so far and declaring that the subcommittee felt that Dixon-Yates is not entitled to a cancellation fee.

Other members of the subcommittee are Senators William Langer (Rep., North Dakota), and Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyoming).

The whole question of what Dixon-Yates might be entitled to and whether it should be reimbursed for legal, engineering and construction fees already paid is complicated.

Kefauver said the committee acted for these reasons:

"1. The testimony before the committee shows a highly questionable relationship between the financial agent, the First Boston Corp., and the Government.

"2. There is in fact no contract since it has been testified that even at this time the debt-money arrangement has not been finally acted upon.

"3. It has also been testified that under Section 815 of the contract, regulatory bodies must act. Even the equity financing is still pending on appeal from the Securities and Exchange Commission. The bond financing is being considered by an examiner and has not even reached the commission."

"If it isn't an effective contract," a reporter asked, "how can the contract be canceled?"

"I don't know," Kefauver replied.

The contract, he added, would not become effective until the public regulatory bodies have acted on all provisions requiring their action.

Strauss to Be Called.

He said the subcommittee decided that it would call Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, chairman, and other officials of the Atomic Energy Commission, which entered into the contract with Dixon-Yates on behalf of the Government.

He said also that the subcommittee would want to question officials of the Budget Bureau, other than Budget Director Rowland H. Hughes, even though, he said, the President has indicated that he would not permit subordinate officials to testify. Hughes already has been on the stand.

"I am in a mood," Kefauver told reporters, "to do anything we legally and responsibly can do to get the evidence in line with what the President had to say in August, 1954."

In this connection he accused the President of reversing the policy he adopted last August of making information about the contract available to public inspection.

Yesterday's hearing was taken up by questioning Paul L. Miller, assistance vice-president of the First Boston. The examination produced largely an elaboration of his testimony Wednesday about the relations between Wenzell, who is now an employee of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and Dixon-Yates. omment, and Dixon-Yates. mittee has asked Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. to testify about the use of Federal Bureau of Investigation agents to ascertain the facts about the Memphis plans for a power plant—a "shocking misuse," in Kefauver's words. No answer has been received from the Attorney General.

HENNINGS BECOMES ACTING DEMOCRATIC WHIP IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP).—Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. of Missouri, has assumed the responsibilities of acting Democratic whip in the Senate.

Senator Clements of Kentucky, who held that position, has taken over the duties of Majority Leader during the illness of Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas.

Hennings will continue to serve as secretary of the Senate Democratic Conference, and on the Democratic steering and policy committees.

for the Dixon-Yates utility group made its first definite contract proposal.

Wenzell said he attended other AEC meetings on the Dixon-Yates matter on Jan. 19, Jan. 20, Feb. 23 and April 3—all in 1954.

He said he resigned as Budget Bureau consultant in March.

Wenzell said he first was brought into the Budget Bureau in May 1953 to make a "careful, complete, objective" study and report on the Tennessee Valley Authority. One of the alternatives recommended by him to supply additional power needed in the TVA area was a Dixon-Yates type contract with private utilities.

He said he saw no reason why the report should not be made public.

Mr. Eisenhower recently refused a request of the subcommittee for the report on ground it was a confidential document of the Executive Department and did not have anything to do with the Dixon-Yates contract.

Senator John Marshall Butler (Rep., Maryland), who sat beside Wenzell, said he personally would ask Mr. Eisenhower to reconsider and release the report to the subcommittee.

Arthur Dean Testifies.

Arthur H. Dean, attorney for the First Boston, testified earlier that the bank's top officials were "very surprised" to learn last February that Congress did not know about the bank's part in the power plant.

Dean said he and three top officials of the company held an extraordinary three and one-half hour conference after a Senate speech by Senator Lister Hill (Dem., Alabama).

Hill questioned Wenzell's dual role of advising both the Budget Bureau and the Dixon-Yates group at the same time.

Dean was head of the United States delegation to the Korean truce negotiations. He is a partner in Sullivan and Cromwell law firm. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles formerly was a partner in it.

Dean testified he was called to the apartment of George D. Woods, First Boston chairman, on a Saturday holiday following Hill's speech. Wenzell and James Coggeshall Jr., First Boston president, also were there.

'Very Surprised.'

Dean said they were "very surprised" to learn that it was not a matter of public knowledge that First Boston was the financial agent that had arranged for loans of about $100,000,000 to finance construction of the Dixon-Yates steam power plant at West Memphis, Ark.

He said there had been no attempt on the company's part to conceal anything. He said that they also were surprised "there was all this suspicion" about Wenzell's services to the budget bureau.

The four drafted a short news release at the conference, stating that the First Boston did not enter into the transaction until after Wenzell ended his Budget Bureau services and that the company was not taking its usual fee. Company officials have testified the fee was waived because they wanted to avoid the possibility of being accused of profiting by Wenzell's connection with the Budget Bureau.

'First Team' Blamed.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem., Tennessee), said today the Eisenhower Administration's "first team" was responsible for the Dixon-Yates contract and that Democrats plan to make this a prime issue in the 1956 campaign.

"The Dixon-Yates contract was the bellwether of the Administration power policy," Gore told a reporter.

"The decision was only reached after a full dress conference" which Gore said included President Eisenhower, Republican leaders in Congress, Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Budget Director Hughes "and others on the first team."

"President Eisenhower and his entire first team are now running from the Dixon-Yates contract, and will be running from the so-called power policy until November, 1956. We will be hot in pursuit and vigorous in attack."

MEMPHIS TO ACT, MAYOR INSISTS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 8 (UP).—Mayor Frank Tobey said today "We certainly don't propose to use any power from the Dixon-Yates facilities, as we are determined to proceed immediately to construct our own plant."

"This, we feel, is necessary in order to continue to provide the people of this community with adequate power service at assured low rates."

Thomas H. Allen, president of the city-owned Light, Gas & Water Division, said "all action has been taken that is necessary."

"I see no reason for adding additional assurances that have no more value than what's been given already."

Allen and Tobey said they already have given "assurances" to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"Short of getting out a gold shovel and having a barbecue, I don't know what else we could be doing," Allen said. His reference apparently was to a ceremony held a month ago at West Memphis, Ark., by the Dixon-Yates officers on the site of their proposed plant.

Tobey said the city commission has recently passed a resolution instructing the board of commissioners of the Light, Gas & Water Division "to immediately commence work on plans and specifications and to do everything necessary to get the Memphis plant started at the earliest possible moment."

"We are going to build the plant," Tobey said. "We have only that one thought in mind."

Tobey said he believed an engineering contract would be let within 30 days from June 30.

you are asking them to reconsider. Isn't there going to be an end to this thing?"

age of 18 per cent of actual value to 30 per cent.

The State Tax Commission order to Sievers included also a statement of its valuations on distributable property of public utilities in the county. There were decreases, most of them minor, on properties of 12 utilities as certified to the commission by the county council, and increases on properties of three.

Seeks Early Decision.
Clerk Sievers expressed hope the equalization board would decide its action under the state order "as soon as possible," so he could begin preparation of approximately 240,000 real estate tax bills, and also of real estate and personal tax books for the municipalities. The state commission also ordered minor changes in personal taxes.

"I can do nothing on these matters until the valuations are fixed," Sievers said.

Under normal procedure, the Board of Equalization hears appeals until July 30, then certifies its findings to the county clerk, who has until Oct. 31 to turn over tax bills to the collector's office for collection.

The County Council, which under the county charter has the power to "provide for the assessment, levy, equalization and collection of all taxes," and "to prescribe a method or system to facilitate the assessment, calculation, extension and collection of taxes," has instructed the county counselor to be prepared to resist the state order, under which real estate assessments must be increased from an average of 18 per cent of actual value to 30 per cent.

The State Tax Commission order to Sievers included also a statement of its valuations on distributable property of public utilities in the county. There were decreases, most of them minor, on properties of 12 utilities as certified to the commission by the county council, and increases on properties of three.

Valuation of Public Service Co. property was reduced from $2,554,211 to $2,196,438, reflecting a decline in company property in the county as a result of service cuts. Union Electric Co. property valuation was increased from $22,374,002 to $25,229,963. Figures certified to the commission by the county council were identical with the valuations fixed by the commission last year.

55 Pct. in St. Charles.

In St. Charles county an order was received by County Clerk Ralph Dierker from the State Tax Commission today calling for a 55 per cent increase in overall real estate assessment, from $22,872,525 to $35,515,458. St. Charles and St. Louis counties were among 26 counties where assessment increases were ordered.

The increase amounted to 70 per cent for rural and 40 per cent for urban properties in St. Charles county.

Dierker indicated the order would not be resisted and said a blanket increase in assessed valuations would be necessary. As in St. Louis county, however, taxing agencies have indicated an amount sufficient to provide the same revenue as before.

The tax commission also ordered a 20 per cent increase in assessed value of cattle in St. Charles county, or from $525,400 to $630,380. This represented an increase of about $39 to $47 per head.

Jasper County May Test Legality of Tax Order.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 8.—Cowgill Blair Jr., Jasper county prosecuting attorney, said last night the county might try to test the legality of a State Tax Commission order to raise tax assessments up to 30 per cent of market value.

He said the possibility of legal action had not been ruled out during an afternoon of conferences between a Jasper county delegation, Attorney General John M. Dalton and the tax commission.

With Blair were Rolland Shadley, presiding judge of the Jasper County Court, and former Senator Arnold Leonard, chairman of a county committee on tax readjustment.

The group asked Dalton for a new opinion as to whether the

PRAVDA INSTRUCTS RED SCIENTISTS TO LEARN FROM WEST

LONDON, July 8 (AP)—Pravda told Soviet scientists today to stop their boasting and try to learn something from their capitalist colleagues.

As quoted by the Moscow Radio, the organ of the Communist party of the Soviet Union declared:

"Armed with Marxist-Leninist theory, the workers of scientific research establishments in our country must carefully follow the developments of science abroad, critically estimate its achievements, assimilate what is best and reject everything that is unscientific and mistaken."

Pravda asserted that conceit is "foreign to Soviet people" but declared it has made Russia lag behind western production of new, economical high productivity machines.

The paper specifically attacked the All-Union Scientific Research Institute of Agricultural Machinebuilding, the Coal Research Institute, the Railway Transport, Transport Machinebuilding and Electrical Industry Ministry research bodies, the Ministry of Petroleum Industry, that of automobile, tractor and agricultural machinebuilding, and "certain other ministries."

"Cases exist," Pravda said, "in which scientific staffs are engaged in 'solving' questions which were solved long ago."

SLOVAK RED GOVERNMENT OUSTS ITS LABOR CHIEF

VIENNA, July 8 (AP)—The Czechoslovak Red government has ousted a member of the 17-man provincial government of Slovakia and reshuffled four others, the Prague radio reported yesterday. No reason for the changes was given.

Ousted was Josef Hojc, member in charge of labor. The Prague radio said he was given another position but did not say what it was.

NEW $100 BILLS LEAD TO ARREST OF TWO

Men Gambling in Las Vegas Have $87,000 — Link to Bank Robbery Sought.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 8 (AP)—Two men brightening the dice tables with new $100 bills touched off a transcontinental police investigation of their possible connection with the biggest cash bank robbery on record.

New York police summoned victims of the bank robbery to view photographs of the two men today, and experts are checking their fingerprints in search of a link with the gunmen who took $305,000 from the Chase Manhattan Bank in Queens, N. Y., last April 6.

Police here arrested Frank Ellsworth and Ray Wilson after casino cashiers reported they moved from one gaming table to another, buying chips with crisp $100 bills.

Detective Lt. B. J. Handlon said that Ellsworth had 61 $100 bills and Wilson 91 when they were picked up yesterday.

Ellsworth said he sold magazine subscriptions and Wilson said he was a clothier. Police searched their room. All told they found more than $87,000.

Ellsworth was freed last night on a writ of habeas corpus. Wilson remained in jail.

While officers in Las Vegas checked the serial numbers on the bills, New York authorities checked photos and fingerprints of the pair.

Of the total found when police searched the men and their room in an expensive hotel, $66,200 of the money was in $100 bills, $21,000 in $10 bills and several thousands more in negotiable casino chips.

Lt. Handlon said that Ellsworth was free on bond in bank robbery cases at Memphis, Tenn. and Tulsa, Okla., and has a robbery charge against him at Wichita, Kan.

He said that Wilson said he had served time in the Oklahoma prison at McAlester.

In Tulsa, police files showed that Ellsworth was sentenced there to eight years for his part in a $31,500 fur burglary and fight with police which followed it. He was sentenced to six years on a charge of assault with intent to kill and two years on a second degree burglary conviction—but was freed under $13,500 appeal bond.

Omaha police said that Ellsworth and Kenneth Kitts, now in Alcatraz, were charged with a 1950 bank robbery in Granville, Ia. The charges against Ellsworth were dismissed following a mistrial.

INTOXICATED DRIVER FINED $100 AFTER PLEADING GUILTY

Don L. Poole, 3665 Laclede avenue, was fined $100 today by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd after Poole pleaded guilty to a charge of driving when intoxicated. In addition, Poole was fined $35 on a charge of leaving an accident scene and $30 on careless driving charges. Poole, who was arrested May 22 after his automobile struck parked cars, has sold his machine, he said.

Willard McHugh, 3707A St. Louis avenue, was fined $125 by Dowd after McHugh entered pleas of guilty to drunken driving and careless driving charges. He was arrested Wednesday. Charles Davis, 1440 Chouteau avenue, who was arrested April 29, paid a $65 fine in Judge Dowd's court after pleading guilty to a driving when intoxicated charge.

William B. Kavanaugh, 3805 Kossuth avenue, was fined $75 on drunken and careless driving charges after being found guilty by Provisional Police Judge Richard L. Daly. Kavanaugh, who denied being drunk, was placed on probation when he agreed to surrender his driver's license. He was arrested June 29 after the automobile he was driving sideswiped another.

STRATTON VETOS $1000 PAY BOOST FOR LEGISLATORS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 8 (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton vetoed a $1000 annual pay increase for Illinois legislators yesterday.

The bill would have boosted the present $5000 salaries of Representatives and Senators to $6000. It would have cost an extra $235,000 a year.

The Governor earlier said he would veto the bill because it was not included in his budget recommendations.

45,000,000-YEAR-OLD ANIMAL LIFE FRAGMENTS ARE FOUND

WASHINGTON, July 8 (UP)—The Smithsonian Institution announced today several scientists have found fragments of animal life approximately 45,000,000 years old in Central Mexico.

During the period to which these bones belong—the late Eocene or early Oligocene geological eras—mammals were relative newcomers on earth. The finding of the bones of an iguana, some ratlike creatures and a tapirlike animal tends to bridge a long geographical gap which may prove of "considerable importance" in reconstructing ancient geological history, the institution said.

The discoveries were made by Carl Fries Jr. of the United States Geological Survey. Later collecting was done by Dr. D. S. Dunkle of the United States National Museum.

Nehru Denies Soviet 'Friendship' Campaign Is Due to Weakness

Indian Premier Says Anybody Who Thinks So Is 'Suffering Under a Completely Erroneous Impression.'

ROME, July 8 (UP)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru today scoffed at the idea that Russia's current "friendship" campaign was due to weakness.

Anybody who believes the Soviets' present policy was prompted by weakness is suffering under a "completely erroneous impression," Nehru told a press conference.

He made the statement in reply to questions concerning his current tour of Asian and European countries. Among the countries he visited were Russia, Poland and Yugoslavia.

Some western diplomats believe Russia's recent peace overtures stem from internal economic weaknesses, including the high cost of modern arms and failures in the Soviet farm system.

"Point of Collapsing." Only yesterday United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was revealed to have told Congress that Russia's economy is "on the point of collapsing." Dulles made the statement June 10 in testimony before a House subcommittee.

Dulles told the group his analysis of the world situation shows the Russians are "over-extended" and are seeking for new policies.

Nehru met newspaper men at his hotel after being received in a private audience by Pope Pius XII. The audience concluded the Premier's whirlwind visit to Italy, a country outwardly cool to his coexistence policies.

It was Nehru's first meeting with the Pope, although he has passed through Rome several times since World War II.

Following the press conference, Nehru left for London for pre-Geneva talks with British leaders. He arrived here yesterday from Yugoslavia.

Nehru told his press conference that he "came away from Moscow with the impression that there is more chance for peace and peaceful settlement than existed before. I found a very strong desire for peace wherever I went."

Under existing circumstances, coexistence is "an inevitable necessity," he said. "People who believe they can do without coexistence," he said, "are not living on this earth but on the moon."

Talks With Segni.

In his stay here, Nehru had short conferences with new Italian Premier Segni, pro-Western Foreign Minister Gaetano and President Giovanni Gronchi.

A brief Italian announcement at the end of Nehru's talk with Segni merely said the two men exchanged views on the main current international problems with special reference to relations between the two nations.

Informed Indian sources said Nehru neither sought nor expected Italy to sign a formal coexistence declaration in the visit. Italy, for its part, made it clear that while Nehru was an honored guest, it wanted no part of his neutrality policy.

Rome's pro-government newspaper Giornale d'Italia, in a frontpage editorial yesterday, noted that Nehru, widely acclaimed as the "apostle of peace" had made himself the "zealous apostle" of neutralism which Italy regarded with "suspicion."

By the Associated Press.

Nehru said after his audience with the Pope that the Pontiff agreed with him that the future of Portuguese Goa is "a political question, and not a religious one." Nehru's government wants to take over the ancient Portuguese colonies on India's coast, Nehru told his press conference.

ence "You can be quite assured Goa will be Indian Territory," Portugal is a Catholic nation, while India's people are mostly Hindus and Moslems.

Nehru accused Portugal of wanting to make Goa a religious issue. He said "as far as the Catholic church is concerned, there are seven to eight million Catholics in India." There are only 200,000 Catholics in Goa, Nehru said.

INJUNCTION TO CLOSE ALTON SHEET METAL FIRM GRANTED

An injunction ordering the Canhan Sheet Metal Corp., of Alton, to cease doing business for allegedly violating an oral agreement with six other companies on union contract negotiations was granted today by City Judge I. H. Streeter of Alton.

The six other firms, all sheet metal companies, charged that Canhan signed a contract with AFL Sheet Metal Workers, Local 268, in violation of a previous agreement to maintain a united front in negotiations. The defendants further charged that Canhan, by signing individually in order to resume business, was engaging in unfair competition.

tion. The other six firms are out on strike.

Contracts between the union and companies expired June 30. The union is demanding a 15 cent-an-hour increase above its current scale of $3.20 an hour.

DONNELLY APPROVES SCHOOL BUS MEASURE

Bill Sets Referendum on Increasing State Aid for Oct. 4.

Jefferson City Correspondent.
JEFFERSON CITY, July 8—More liberal state aid to public school districts of Missouri in the transportation of school pupils between their homes and school is proposed in a bill approved yesterday by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

The act, which would increase state payments to the schools for bus transportation from the present level of about $3,500,000 a year to about $4,500,000, would become effective if voters of the state approve a new, more liberal state foundation program for support of public schools, in the statewide referendum election next Oct. 4.

The state now contributes a maximum of $3 a month to public school districts operating school buses, for each pupil carried 2 miles or more. The local school district pays the remainder of the cost of operating its buses.

Under the new act, if it becomes effective, the state would make graduated payments up to $4 a month per pupil, depending on the distance between home and school.

Donnelly approved another bill, effective Aug. 31, which would return the control of quarantine measures for rabies from the State Department of Agriculture to local municipal and county officials.

Issuance of quarantine orders when rabies develops among dogs in an area formerly was in the hands of mayors of cities and towns and the county court for areas outside a municipality. The 1953 Legislature transferred the authority to the Department of Agriculture and the state veterinarian. The 1955 Legislature repealed the transfer act and re-enacted the former law.

Charles Faulkner Bryan Dies. PINSON, Ala., July 8 (AP)—Dr. Charles Faulkner Bryan, composer and authority on American folk music, died unexpectedly at his home yesterday. He was 43 years old.

HUNGARY ORDERS FULL DELIVERY OF GRAIN OUTPUT

VIENNA, July 8 (AP)—The Budapest radio announced today that Hungary's farmers must deliver their entire grain production to government collection points.

The broadcast said the Communist government's decree was necessary to "safeguard bread supplies." Previously Hungarian peasants had been able to sell their surplus grain on the free market after fulfilling government-set quotas. The broadcast said free markets sales now are prohibited.

A Vienna newspaper said earlier this week that growing political uneasiness in Budapest had prompted the Red government to reinforce police squads patrolling the capital.

TITO AND NEHRU AGAIN CALL FOR DISARMAMENT

Urge Using Atom for Peace Only, Coexistence and Formosa,
Reich Solutions.

BELGRADE, July 8 (AP)—
Yugoslav President Josip (Tito)
Broz and Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru published a joint declaration today again advocating world disarmament, use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes only and peaceful coexistence of all nations.

They also called for peaceful solution of "the questions relating to Germany and Taiwan"
"Formosa" and a United Nations seat for Communist China.

The two neutralist government chiefs worked out the statement in Nehru's week-long state visit to Yugoslavia. The Indian Premier flew to Rome yesterday.

The Tito-Nehru declaration in general followed the lines of statements each made earlier this year jointly with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin. Tito and Nehru also issued a joint declaration last December, during the Yugoslav president's state visit to India, but it was confined to advocating peaceful coexistence of all nations and noninterference in internal affairs.

The new statement said Tito and Nehru had agreed to exchange economic missions to foster more trade between their countries. Such trade, the statement said, "is not on a scale commensurate with the close relations" between India and Yugoslavia.

The two leaders also agreed to promote scientific and technical co-operation between their nations.

Nehru and Tito expressed "earnest hope" that the Big Four conference in Geneva later this month "will make a new contribution toward the improvement of the international situation."

"The creating of an atmosphere of greater confidence and co-operation in international relations," the statement continued, "will lead to increasing possibilities for the constructive solution of outstanding international problems and for security in the world."

Chief among such problems, they said, is "the question of disarmament and the prohibition of nuclear weapons with effective international control."

They called also for "broad international co-operation in the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes" and in formulation of "effective measures" to develop underdeveloped countries.

TERMS SOVIET JET ENGINES MORE POWERFUL THAN OURS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8
(AP)—The Russian bombers recently paraded over Moscow apparently have jet engines more powerful than any now used by American aircraft, says President John R. Allison of the Air Force Association.

Allison, also president of Northrop Aircraft Co., said pictures of the Russian engines indicate they develop 15,000 or more pounds of thrust... more than any American jets flown operationally.

He addressed Bay area civic

On Her Toes.

MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—A diamond ring valued at $300 slipped from Oice Deborn's finger while he was swimming in Shadow Lake Sunday. Skin divers were employed to search the bottom of the lake. They had no luck.
Wednesday night while Deborn and others hunted in deep water,
Mrs. Deborn waded near the shore, felt something hit her big toe and lifted her foot from the water. There, on the toe, was the diamond ring.

U.N. TRUCE CHIEF URGES BUILDING GAZA 'OBSTACLE'

GAZA, Egypt-held Palestine, July 8 (AP)—Representatives of Egypt and Israel met for six hours yesterday with Maj. Gen.
E. L. M. Burns, Canadian chief of United Nations truce observers in Palestine, for an initial examination of Burns's proposals for ending border tension in the Gaza area.

It was decided to adjourn until July 13, so both sides could give detailed consideration to a number of questions, a communique said.

The communique noted that Burns presented the conference with a proposal to build a "physical obstacle" along part of the line marking the border.

CABINET AID DEFENDS BAR ON DOCUMENT

Interior Under Secretary
Davis Clashes With House Committee.

—Under Secretary of the Interior Clarence A. Davis yesterday defended his department's refusal to supply a document to a congressional committee.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Davis told a House government operations subcommittee that neither Congress nor any other parties have a right to see certain types of interdepartmental documents and communications.

That practice was established by George Washington and has been upheld by Presidents since that time, Davis said. At issue was a request by the committee for the original copy of an order by Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay changing regulations for the issuance of power line rights of way across public grounds. The department refused to produce it.

Demands Original. James D. Lanigan, committee counsel, said the committee wanted the original as it would show what officials in the department indicated their approval of the changes by writing their names in the upper right-hand corner. He conceded that the committee had an exact copy of the regulation changes signed by the Secretary with the exception of the names of any approving officials.

During an hour long, shouting match, Davis maintained the executive departments have the right to refuse to produce for congressional committees recommendations or suggestions by department employees which precede official actions taken by the responsible executive. Davis conceded that congressional committees have the right to obtain information on policy changes, but that this should be ascertained by questioning of officials.

It was only after long addi-

RUSSIA REJOINS WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION

GENEVA, July 8 (AP)—The Soviet Union announced today its return to membership in the World Health Organization after an absence of six years.

The Russians announced also a gift of 2,000,000 rubles ($500,000 at the official exchange rate) to the United Nations Children's Fund.

Soviet Delegate Pavel Kumykin disclosed the actions at a meeting here of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

The Soviet Union, one of the founder members of WHO, walked out of the organization in 1949—accompanied by all its satellites—on the ground that WHO's activities were "inadequate."

The WHO constitution contains no provision for withdrawal of a member, and the action was never formally recognized. The Soviet bloc countries have been considered "inactive" members since their withdrawal.

Kumykin made his announcement during discussion of the WHO annual report. He said the report showed that WHO was doing valuable work, and that the Soviet Government "for this reason has decided to become a member of the organization."

tional arguments over the issue that Representative Robert H. Mollohan (Dem.), West Virginia asked Davis just who had endorsed the original copy of the changes by writing in their names in the corner.

Davis replied he doubted it was endorsed by any except himself and James D. Geissinger, former assistant to Davis when the latter was department solicitor.

The document in question which the secretary had signed eliminated a regulation requiring private utilities obtaining right of way across public land to agree to move Government-generated power if excess line capacity was available.

The subcommittee is inquiring into the revisions which chairman Earl C. Chudoff (Dem.), Pennsylvania, said are favorable to private power utilities.

OLIN MATHIESON BUYING PAPER MILL

$90,000,000 for Louisiana
Firm With Large Timber Holdings.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp. will acquire Brown Paper Mill Co., Inc., West Monroe, La., for about $90,000,000, it was announced today in New York by Thomas S. Nichols, Olin Mathieson president.

The Brown company, which has large timber holdings, is being purchased for $50,000,000 in cash and 725,000 shares of Olin Mathieson common stock worth about $45,000,000, Nichols said.

Legal details of the transaction are scheduled to be completed in about 60 days.

Nichols said the acquisition of the Brown company will double timber resources of Olin Mathieson. He said Brown has 465,000 acres of pine and hardwood forest in Louisiana, east Texas and Arkansas, adjacent to Olin Mathieson's 435,000 acres of timberland in the three states.

He added that his company will increase its forest products operations as a result of the purchase. Brown manufactures paperboard boxes and paper bags. Olin Mathieson has several lumber operations in the area.

Olin Mathieson was formed last summer with the merger of Mathieson Chemical Corp. with Olin Industries Inc. of East Alton.

BRAZIL SETS UP PAYMENTS ACCORD FOR REICH TRADE

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 8 (UP)—The Brazilian Foreign Ministry released texts today of protocols establishing a new commercial payments agreement with Germany which is expected to open a new era of South American-European trade.

The plan paves the way for multilateral relations outside the dollar area. It has been under study for five years.

RUSSIANS WEIGH NON-TITLE CHESS BOUT BY CHAMPION

MOSCOW, July 8 (UP)—The Russians loosened up at a free-drinking jam session last night and agreed to consider a non-title chess match between their world champion, Mikhail Botvinnik, and America's ace, Samuel Reshevsky.

The Americans whose title challenge was vetoed by the Russians, said a non-title match was better than nothing at all. The Americans contended Reshevsky was entitled to a championship challenge because he defeated the Russian master in the team competition just completed.

The Russians pointed out that International Chess Federation rules state that challengers can earn the right to a title match only by winning interzonal qualifying rounds.

United States team manager Rosser Reeves, of Larchmont, N.Y., issued the non-title challenge at the conclusion of last night's farewell banquet for the Americans who were to leave for home in the morning. He proposed that Reshevsky and Botvinnik play 20 games within a year.

The official team match between the Russians and the Americans ended Wednesday with the Soviets on top, 25-7.

$1042 STOLEN FROM SAFE OF MAPLEWOOD AUTO FIRM

A safe at the Cotter Buick Co., 2337 Big Bend boulevard, Maplewood, was robbed of $1042 Wednesday night, Maplewood police reported today.

Police believe the burglars crawled under an 8-foot metal fence at the rear of the firm's lot, then entered through an open garage window. The money was in a metal box inside the safe. Stamps worth $15 also were taken.

Office manager Gerald Overhoff said he locked the safe and office at 10 p.m. Wednesday. Patrolman Percy Harrison said he found an open basement window while making his rounds after midnight, but it locked automatically after he closed it.

PRISONERS SPEND NIGHT IN YARD

Jammed Locks, Weapon Shakedown Keep Washington, Convicts Outside.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 8 (AP)—Most of the 1700 inmates at the Washington State prison were forced to stay outdoors last night—and did not like it—as a result of their two-day revolt.

Meanwhile, officials of the battered penitentiary collected dangerous weapons found hidden in prison cells. The damage to the prison may total $150,000.

Jammed cell locks and other damage plus the slow job of shaking down the whole prison for hidden weapons kept the prisoners out of doors last night, milling about on an old athletic field within the prison's walls.

Surrounded by Guards. Around them stood guards and state patrolmen carrying guns and clubs, alert against any revival of the revolt which started Tuesday morning with the seizure of nine hostages and control of most of the prison.

The prisoners were herded outdoors yesterday after wary guards objected to making a cell check with prisoners in them. At first, the outdoor interval was considered a lark by the inmates but by the time supper—a few sandwiches and coffee—was served, discontent had set in and boos and catcalls were heard.

Meanwhile, officials ordered the 33 tough convicts who sparked the revolt into a section where cells are equipped with new locking devices. They will be kept there until they can be confined to a new maximum security building designed to minimize possibility of a repetition of the rebellion.

All of the leaders face prosecution under a state law making it a felony to incite or participate in such uprisings or to hold hostages, despite previous assurances they might be treated leniently.

Piles of Weapons. The cell shakedown produced several large piles of assorted weapons ranging from clubs to meat cleavers and long kitchen knives. A personal search of each of the 1700-odd prisoners will be conducted before they are returned to cell blocks.

Damage to the prison includes ruined locking devices, valued in one wing at $10,000, scores of broken windows, damage to cells and fixtures, broken plumbing, loosened bricks and battered doors and machinery.

Warden Lawrence Delmore Jr., who was away from the prison when the riot started, said he did not think anyone escaped although many obviously tried leaving through plumbing tunnels and ventilators. This cannot be determined finally until a recount is completed—difficult while the men are out of their cells.

SAFeway STORES PRESIDENT DENIES MONOPOLY CHARGES

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 8 (AP)—The President of Safeway Stores Inc. says the food store chain has not violated anti-trust laws "unless meeting competition in good faith has become a crime."

A federal grand jury here yesterday indicted Safeway and two of its officers on charges of anti-trust violations in Texas and New Mexico.

One of the officers indicted—company president Ligan A. Warren of Oakland, Calif.—charged that the grand jury did not give Safeway opportunity to present evidence about the "true picture of its operations or the competitive pricing practices and situations."

The store chain was accused of engaging in a conspiracy to monopolize retail grocery business in parts of Texas and New Mexico by resorting to price wars and selling some groceries below invoice costs to drive out competition.

Convict Who Confessed Murder He Didn't Commit Is Released

Freed After Completing Term for Burglary in Texas — 'Admitted' Killing in Hope of Making Jail Break.

BELTON, Tex., July 8 (AP)—Eugene Padgett, who confessed a murder he did not commit and then had a hard time getting out from behind bars, has won his freedom.

That leaves unanswered a 24-year-old mystery: Who, then, did beat Will Sanderford to death with a tire tool in a burglary in February of 1931 at nearby Little River, Tex.?

Padgett walked from jail a free man yesterday after persuading authorities he didn't really mean it when he "confessed" in 1940.

At that time Padgett was serving a 20-year burglary sentence in the Texas state penitentiary.

The reason he confessed killing Sanderford, he explained again and again to the state parole board, was that he had a "plan."

His plan: He would be taken from behind the high walls of the state prison to a small-town jail while being tried for Sanderford's murder. And a small-town jail, he figured, would be much easier to get out of.

It didn't work out that way. Padgett, who had pleaded guilty to murder, waived his right to jury trial and got a 99-year sentence, was returned to state prison.

There he read some law books and began writing a series of appeals, in Longhand, to the state court of criminal appeals.

He brought up a matter of law, that you can not waive a jury trial in Texas when there is a possibility of capital punishment. The judges were listening by this time but said they could not act on his appeals until he had finished his 20-year burglary sentence—the one he was in for originally.

Last May the burglary sentence ran out and the appeals court heard Padgett's murder appeal. District Attorney Raymond Thornton recommended dismissal of the murder indictment. Among other things, Thornton pointed out that Sanderford's survivors believe Padgett is innocent.

Who did kill Sanderford on that night 24 years ago? There was a thunderstorm at the time. Someone pried a window open at Sanderford's store. There had been a series of neighborhood burglaries and Sanderford was sleeping in his store, with a shotgun at his side.

But the burglar with the tire tool got in his licks before Sanderford got hold of his shotgun.

ITALY IS 'DYNAMIC' DESPITE ITS REDS, MRS. LUCE SAYS

NEW YORK, July 8—Despite the presence of strong Communist elements, postwar Italy is "emerging as a vibrant and dynamic nation," Ambassador Clare Booth Luce said at a luncheon of the Overseas Press Club yesterday.

"We must remember," she said concerning the heavy Communist vote in Italy, "that these misguided millions are the very examples of those whose right desires for a better and fuller life have been wrongly channeled by the false prophets of the new Soviet order."

Nevertheless, she continued, the country is moving toward a sound recovery in spite of its many internal difficulties. She pointed out that Italy is still firmly within the framework of the Western alliance and concluded that "if we ourselves do not fail Italy, Italy will not fail us, or the West."

JAPAN DELAYING BUILD-UP DEFENSE CHIEF ASSERTS

TOKYO, July 8 (AP)—Japan's defense chief said last night the government is temporarily shelving its six-year defense plan, regarded as a blueprint for building Japanese ground forces to the point where the United States Army can leave.

a complete outline of the plan. Japanese officials have long talked about a tentative military buildup plan, based on increasing the 130,000-man army to 180,000 and outfitting an air force and navy. In recent negotiations with the United States they pledged steady increases.

188-hp Buick SPECIAL 6-Passenger, 4-Door RIVIERA, Model 43

This 4-Door Beauty is the Newest Hit in Hardtops

YOU certainly ought to come in and see for yourself why this new kind of hardtop is headed for the best-seller list.

It's a Buick Riviera, of course.

Which means the low and rakish look of a Convertible—a solid steel roof overhead—and no center posts in the side window areas to obstruct your view.

But that's only the beginning.

Here you get two extra doors. They open to the rear compartment. So no one in the front has to move when someone gets into or out of the rear.

Here you get massive half-pillars on either side on which the front doors latch and the rear doors hinge. (That's why you see no center posts above the door line.)

Here, too, you get wholly new structural principles in body design and strength that give this beauty the extra safety of rock-firm solidity at the top, sides and bottom.

And here—bless those Buick engineers!—you get a lot more room in the rear compartment.

For the 4-Door Riviera gives you over 9 inches more hiproom and 5 inches more legroom—yet with no increase in wheelbase or over-all car length.

So we repeat—you certainly ought to come in and see this stunning new kind of hardtop.

It's the very last word in beauty, comfort, convenience. It's available in Buick's two lowest-priced Series—the SPECIAL and the CENTURY. And it's all Buick—with Buick power, Buick ride, Buick handling—and the spectacular performance of Buick's Variable Pitch Dynaflo.*

MAN WHO CAUSED SENATE INQUIRY FIRED BY AGENCY

Small Business Administration Says He Was Dropped in 'Reduction in Force.'

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—The Small Business Administration has fired Clarence E. Clarke, the former investigator whose complaints touched off a Senate investigation of the agency's security program.

An SBA spokesman said today that Clarke was notified last night that he was dismissed in a "reduction in force."

Clarke was suspended a month ago after he carried to a Senate Civil Service subcommittee a complaint that SBA was mismanaging its loyalty-security program.

The suspension was on allegations that Clarke had been in subordinate, had removed government documents and had struck a secretary. He denied the charges, saying they were reprisals for his complaint to the Senators.

There was no announcement from the SBA of the decision to fire Clarke.

An SBA spokesman, after the firing, became known, insisted the dismissal was not based on the earlier accusations, but refused to say what the basis was.

"It's a very complicated situation, and I can't go into any further details," said the agency's information director, Arthur Hachten. "The agency has eliminated his job."

An earlier reduction-in-force notice had been served on Clarke, but it was dropped after he was charged with misconduct.

His complaints to the Senate group against George V. McDavitt, SBA security director, prompted the questioning of McDavitt which led to yesterday's "Miss X" revelations.

McDavitt declined to answer Senators' questions as to whether he had formed "liaison" with a German girl in 1951 while working for the United States Government in Germany. He acknowledged he had sponsored the girl, mentioned in testimony only as "Miss X," as an immigrant to this country.

RESCUES WOMAN IN ATLANTIC, FINDS SHE IS A NEIGHBOR

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 8 (AP)—John J. Vandertoll flew to Nassau over the July 4 holiday for deep sea fishing.

The Louisville business executive, finding his fishing luck poor, directed the fishing boat's captain to return him to shore the shortest way. The shortest way was over a course boats rarely sailed, but the captain complied.

As they cruised, Vandertoll spotted a white object. Investigating, they found two men and two women clinging to their overturned sailboat as it drifted out to sea.

One of the rescued persons was Mrs. Jane S. Clark, daughter of Vandertoll's next-block neighbor who was honeymooning in Nassau.

CHARGE DROPPED AGAINST MAN WHO PAWNS HIS MONEY

CHICAGO, July 8 (UP)—Judge Emmet Morrissey dismissed a disorderly conduct charge today against a man who pawns his money.

Police had felt sure there was something illegal about the fact that Joseph K. Johnson, a butcher, had hocked between $750 and $1000. But Johnson insisted that he pawns his funds and pays interest to pawn brokers solely because he has a "sentimental attitude" toward his money and likes to get the same bills back.

"Everybody has a sentimental attachment for money," commented the judge.

Johnson said: "I'm not trying to gyp anybody, Your Honor." City Prosecutor Marvin Goldberg commented that Johnson was "just giving money away" because of the interest he pays to pawn brokers.

The judge said some day Johnson will walk into a pawn shop to collect his money and the pawn broker will hand him bills with different serial numbers. "Then I'd like to see what happens," the judge said.

TEEN-AGER KILLS HIS CHUM, THEN HIMSELFThird Youth Says Earlier Threat Had Been Ignored.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 8 (UP)—Russell Hyland, 16 years old, shot Jerry Anderson, 17, in the head with a revolver yesterday, then walked a few steps and shot himself in the mouth, police reported. Both boys died.

Jack Muessehl, 16, witnessed the shooting in the Anderson living room.

Officers said Muessehl told them he had been with Hyland most of the day, driving around town looking for a job. They quoted Muessehl as saying that Hyland had threatened once during the day to kill Anderson and Hyland's own brother, Ronald, 18.

Muessehl said he did not take Hyland's threat seriously, even though Hyland "acted funny" all day.

Hyland's brother had been in the Anderson living room with the other three youths until shortly before the shootings, when he left to have a key made for his car.

Muessehl told police that Hyland then left the room for a moment. When he returned, he pulled a pistol from his pocket and pointed it at Anderson's head as Anderson sat in an easy chair reading a book, Muessehl said.

Muessehl said Hyland told Anderson to "look up" and then shot him.

Hyland then walked out of the door to a stairway and shot himself, Muessehl said.

Police said there was no apparent motive for the shootings, and there was no evidence of an argument or trouble among the boys.

Haircut With a Dull Knife

MRS. JAMES M. WATERS, before and after.

CUTS WIFE'S HAIR
AS SHE SOURS ON A MOVING STORY

HOUSTON, TEX., July 8 (AP)—About a month ago James Milton Waters mentioned to his wife that he planned to move to Oklahoma City. Mrs. Waters said she wasn't going.

Then, according to Mrs. Waters' testimony yesterday in county court-at-law, Waters grabbed her and started whacking at her hair with a dull butcher knife.

Mrs. Waters, 22 years old, was proud of her hair. It was red and waist-length.

The butcher knife was too dull and Waters switched to a double-edge razor blade, said Mrs. Waters. "He cut it a curl at a time and dropped it on the floor."

Waters, 23, a tile setter, admitted he cut her hair but said, "I just wanted to hurt her feelings."

He mentioned offhand in court that her hair is really blonde.

she dyed it red.

"My hair," snapped Mrs. Waters, "is not dyed. It is naturally red."

Waters was fined $250 on aggravated assault charges. Mrs. Waters is asking for a divorce.

AUGUSTA MAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT BY SQUIRREL HUNTER

Ray Kessler of Augusta, Mo., was in serious condition at St. Francis Hospital in Washington, Mo., today with shotgun wounds in the face, head and chest as the result of a hunting accident Wednesday on Klondike Hill, near Augusta.

Kessler, 34 years old, a section hand on the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, was struck by a shot fired by another squirrel hunter, Layton E. Holt of Augusta. It was reported, Holt told St. Charles county authorities he thought he saw a squirrel, looked a second time and fired his shotgun. He then heard Kessler's cries.

The men have hunted together previously, but neither knew the other was on the hill until the accidental shooting occurred.

G.O.P. TO FIGHT $1 WAGE SCALE ON HOUSE FLOOR

Republicans Think Southern Democrats Will Back President's 90-Cent Proposal.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—House Republican leaders said today they still have a good chance to salvage President Eisenhower's proposal to boost minimum wages from 75 cents to 90 cents an hour.

The House Education and Labor Committee yesterday defeated the Eisenhower plan on a 15-to-15 tie vote and approved instead, 21 to 9, a Democratic bill to increase the minimum to $1 an hour.

Key Republicans predicted a lively House floor fight next week between advocates of the rival proposals. They said they expected strong support from southern Democrats for the 90-cent figure.

If Administration officials put up a vigorous fight, these Republicans said, they probably will be able to pass the lower figure the White House requested.

Compromise Possible.

The Senate already has approved an increase to $1 in the minimum wage, which applies to 24,000,000 workers in interstate commerce.

Republicans suggested an eventual compromise could put the 90-cent minimum into effect next year, and the $1 level in later years.

G.O.P. leaders said they expect to raise the threat of another round of inflation against the Democratic drive to enact a $1 level now.

They said there already is grave concern about inflation as a result of recent wage boosts in the auto and steel industry, and a steel price increase.

Further, they noted, the stock market has been shooting up rapidly, especially in certain fields.

Democratic supporters of the $1 minimum wage said they will argue this is little enough increase to try to uplift substandard living conditions for many workers, especially in the South.

$1.25 Plan Advanced.

The $1 is a compromise between the Administration proposal and a plan advanced by some Democrats to raise the minimum all the way to $1.25.

Republicans in the House said White House officials have expressed concern that raising the minimum to more than 90 cents in a single step would impose a harsh burden on some industries and could drive many small firms out of business.

In the Labor Committee yesterday, three Southern Democrats jumped party lines to support a move by Representative Samuel K. McConnell (Rep.), Pennsylvania, for the 90-cent minimum. After that was defeated, several Republicans then backed the $1 figure.

But Republican committee members said they would renew the fight for a 90-cent level on the House floor.

A House Public Work subcommittee decided today on a 24-billion-dollar, 12-year interstate road building program and on a big boost in highway user taxes to help pay for it.

Members of the subcommittee, headed by Representative George H. Fallon (Dem.), Maryland, said a majority reached general agreement along these lines, but postponed formal action.

The subcommittee was appointed to try to end a stalemate that had blocked action on any of numerous rival proposals for a vast new road building program.

The President has advocated the multi-billion-dollar construction plan but proposed financing it largely through bonds, outside the federal debt. The Senate discarded the bond proposal and passed a similar bill by Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, without precise provision for financing.

Reclamation Construction.

A bill to appropriate $145,541,000 for reclamation construction was ready for final congressional action today.

Since neither House nor Senate will be in session, however, the report of the conference committee on the public works money bill can not be brought up before Monday. The report must be approved by both houses before it can be sent to the White House.

Together with the new funds approved by the conferees late yesterday, there will be an expected $6,000,000 carryover from past appropriations. This would provide a $151,541,000 construction program during the current fiscal year.

The compromise bill would provide—among other things—$4,000,000 to begin work on the Yellowstone dam on the Big Horn river in Montana; $900,000 to start the Owl Creek project of the Missouri basin development in Wyoming; $300,000 to begin the Deer Creek power plant of the Provo River project in Utah; and $475,000 to begin work on the Roza division power plant of the Yakima project in Washington.

Wind Blows Boxcars 27 Miles.

CARMAN, Man., July 8 (AP)—Violent winds started two empty boxcars rolling at Stephenfield early this week and pushed them through an open switch onto a Canadian National Railways branch line. They sailed along 27 miles to Sperling before being derailed. No damage resulted.

Vierheller Scoffs at Churchill Lion Cub Being 'Very Dangerous'

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
Lamb-like lion cub, brother of an allegedly fierce cub sent Sir Winston Churchill as a gift, being held by MIKE KUSZLAK of the staff of the zoo here.

Keeper Carries 5 Still Here in His Arms — One That Went to London Was One of Gentlest.

Zoo director George P. Vierheller today scoffed at comments by London zoo officials that Sir Winston Churchill's new 3-month-old lion cub, born at the zoo here, "is very dangerous."

"Oh my," was all Vierheller could say at first, when told that London zoo keepers could not remove the cub from its cage when the animal arrived there yesterday, because it became so enraged.

The cub, one of sextuplets, was sold last month to the Forest Park, Ill., Lions Club, a community service organization. The club then gave it to Sir Winston as a replacement for his pet lion Rota which had to be destroyed because of old age.

1,200,000 CHILEAN WORKERS RETURN AFTER DAY'S STRIKE

SANTIAGO, July 8 (AP)—An estimated 1,200,000 Chilean workers returned to work today after a 24-hour general strike. But the Central Labor Union threatened to call an unlimited walkout unless demands for higher pay are met.

Yesterday's stoppage was called

REVOKING DRIVERS LICENSES EASIER

Governor Signs Law Which Closes Loophole for Habitual Offenders.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 8—Judges and state license officials will have increased powers to revoke or suspend licenses of reckless drivers and other traffic offenders under an amended state drivers' license law signed yesterday by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

Some provisions which had enabled habitual traffic law violators to keep their licenses despite repeated offenses were removed from the statutes by the new bill.

Circuit judges and magistrates are given authority to revoke or suspend state licenses under the act, a power which previously had been limited in many instances to the director of the state department of revenue.

The old law had been so written that officials had found it difficult to revoke or suspend licenses when the drivers appealed convictions to higher courts.

Under the new law, a driver upon being convicted of certain driving offenses may have his license revoked immediately whether or not he appeals.

WITHDRAWAL OF WHITFIELD NOMINATION CALLED LIKELY

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, said today he was informed there is a strong "probability" that President Eisenhower will withdraw the controversial nomination of Allen Whitfield, Des Moines attorney, to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Republican appointment for a five-year term ending June 30, 1960, has been under fire from some members of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee. Whitfield has been summoned to appear before the committee July 18.

Gore, a member of the group, said it is his understanding that Whitfield has written Chairman Clinton Anderson (Dem.), saying he will "have to take under advisement" the question of whether he will reply to some questions by Anderson. Gore said Anderson in a letter to Whitfield asked some "penetrating questions."

today by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

A delegation opposing a bus route through the third addition of Country Club Heights subdivision was present for the hearing. Walter W. Elliot, a member of the group, said, "The bus service is not desired in the first place by our area. We have narrow roads with no curbs and children all over the place."

Jack Wellenhorff, president of the coach company, said he believed the objections could be "worked out."

CIVIL DEFENSE CONTROL CENTER SHORT OF HELP

Lack of Trained Personnel Called Key Weakness Shown Up in Exercise Here.

A shortage of trained personnel to operate the St. Louis-St. Louis county civil defense emergency control center was one of the principal weaknesses revealed by the exercise here June 15 in the theoretical explosion of a hydrogen bomb. Capt. Joseph Gallagher of the St. Louis police department said yesterday.

He was one of 30 civil defense officials who participated in a critique of the exercise as it developed in this area. The discussion was held at civil defense headquarters in Forest Park.

"The various civil defense services have not trained nearly enough people for 24-hour work at the control center on a day-after-day basis," Capt. Gallagher said.

Hour and a Half to Move.

"It took our personnel an hour and a half to move from police headquarters to the emergency control center," he added. The center is at Howard Bend pumping station on the Missouri river.

Capt. Gallagher said he would "strongly suggest that consideration be given to the emergency operation of the control center by a group of people who could get there the quickest."

Robert M. Hanson, civil defense operations officer, said that "most of the people at the control center at Howard Bend were inadequately briefed. There was a good deal of confusion, which eventually was straightened out."

He added that there was "confusion in communications procedure and an indication of lack of training" in that field.

Fireman's Criticism.

Another criticism of the emergency control center was made by Capt. James Harvey of the University City fire department who said, "There was inadequate personnel at the control center and a lack of communications essential for fire service."

Dr. Curtis Lohr, director of St. Louis County Hospital and co-chief of hospital and casualty services for the local civil defense organization, said, "We had detailed plans worked out for the A-bomb, but now with the H-bomb, we're back in the first phase which is evacuation, and we haven't quite worked that out yet."

Francis P. Hardaway, St. Louis director of civil defense, said, "This exercise proves that the evacuation technique is the only thing at the present time which offers an opportunity to save the lives of the people."

"Weapons now are of such size that shelter won't save lives within five or 10 miles of the drop of an H-bomb. Nobody knows how well evacuation will work, but even if under actual conditions it's only partly successful, it's preferable to starving put and awaiting certain death."

U.S. HOLDS SHARECROPPERS SUBJECT TO SOCIAL SECURITY

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Internal Revenue Service generally considers sharecroppers as self-employed persons subject to the Social Security tax. The service has issued a statement in answer to what it said were numerous inquiries about coverage for share croppers and farm owners.

The service said coverage applies to any individual who has an ordinary crop-sharing arrangement to produce a crop or livestock on land owned by someone else in return for a proportionate share of the production or the proceeds from production.

But, the service said, a land owner with an ordinary crop-sharing arrangement is considered as receiving rentals and is not subject to the self-employment Social Security tax for the crop shares or proceeds he receives.

BABY DIES IN PARENTS' BED

Karen, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cook, died yesterday apparently of suffocation while asleep with her parents at their home, 2320A Howard street, police reported.

Cook, who works at night, and his wife awakened and found the 3-week-old child, who was lying between them, face down in a pillow, police said. Artificial respiration failed to revive the infant.

The STRUGGLE for PEACE

Bishop Sheil Says Peace Must Be Waged in Positive Christian
Way if Mankind Is to Survive

Catholic Leader Asserts Peace 'Does Not Just Happen' but Requires Constant Work to Achieve a 'Social Order Based on Justice and Charity.'

By BERNARD J. SHEIL

Auxiliary Bishop Chicago Archdiocese of Catholic Church.

Copyright, 1955, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.

IT IS becoming increasingly evident that most people in the world are desperately desirous of peace. More than ever before, people are conscious that peace is the one indispensable condition for living a human and humane existence. More than ever before people are aware of the incalculable price that we all pay for war. This price is not only measured in terms of the past; it is being measured more and more within the framework of the future.

War, like so many things in our modern world, has radically changed. Total warfare implies as a necessary consequence that no one, neither man, woman nor child, can escape its devastating effects. By a strange and ironical twist, modern war has pinpointed the truth long neglected, that we are all committed inescapably to the total human venture; that if we refuse freely to join together in peace, then we must of necessity join together in war.

There is no longer the possibility of observing war from a safe distance. Our cities, our neighborhoods, our very homes are now part of the battlefield. The sound of the siren is not so much a call to battle as it is a warning that war has come to us and that there is no escape.

Peace, Survival Synonymous. Is it any wonder that mankind is so concerned with the question of peace? Peace, in terms of modern warfare, has become synonymous with survival. Scientists who have made nuclear warfare possible have warned us repeatedly of this truth. Recently, a high ranking military man has bluntly told the world that, if life is to be preserved, war must be abolished. This is a completely honest statement of a bitter, but salutary, truth.

Faced with such a situation, everyone feels inadequate. Everyone wishes he could present a simple, workable formula that would insure peace on earth. Unfortunately, our given situation is not a simple one, and thus not amenable to simple solutions. Rather it is woven out of a number of conflicting strands. Complexity is characteristic of our age. Any attempt to deal with it in simple fashion is doomed to failure. Perhaps the best one can do is to offer some principles that may serve as an approach to peace, that may help to create what has been termed the climate for peace.

Peace is not a negative thing; it is not merely the absence of war. Peace is something positive, and it implies of its very nature that man has the moral responsibility to strive after it.

Peace is the fruit of justice. For mankind to live in peace means to live in harmony, with each one's interests falling into its proper place. Saint Augustine defined peace as the "tranquility of order." This means that peace is based on order and there can be no order without justice. Every social injustice in the world, every hungry child, every ill-housed family, from Calcutta to Chicago, may represent a potential threat to world peace.

It has been a life-long conviction of mine that the best climate for peace is a social order that is constructed upon the firm basis of justice and charity, one in which the individual person would be given the opportunity to achieve some kind of decent human existence. This, I think, has always been the ideal goal of Western society.

True, the goal has often been obscured or temporarily lost, but never completely surrendered. Perhaps the crisis through which we are passing may well serve to remind us once again of the goal and of our obligation to strive toward it.

Obviously such an ideal makes serious demands upon us. It bids us once again to realize that we do not stand alone in isolation, but that we are members of a community of peoples who are dedicated to the idea of human freedom, a freedom that carries with it strict responsibilities for its proper exercise where the natural rights of others are involved.

Spiritual Values. Again, the goal forces us to acknowledge that the spiritual values innate in Western civilization are not mere catchwords to be pronounced glibly and to suit a particular public occasion. They are intended to be guides for conduct in our public as well as our private life.

The world shall largely gauge our sincerity according to the measure that these spiritual values are realized concretely in every sphere of living, whether that be social, political or economic.

It may be well for us to remember that the corruption or collapse of spiritual values may be more devastating to the spirit of man than any atomic destruction. Nations have generally been able to survive physical catastrophes; they have never survived spiritual collapse.

We speak of waging war but we consider peace as if it were something that just happens without any effort on our part. I think the time has come to talk of waging peace, not merely with empty words but with meaningful acts. Our world-wide attempt

Who's Who Note

THE MOST REV. BERNARD JAMES SHEIL, Senior Auxiliary Bishop of the Chicago archdiocese of the Catholic Church, has spent a lifetime as an exponent of social justice and a worker for youth. Founder and, until last year, director of the Catholic Youth Organization, the 67-year-old prelate recently became an incorporator of The Bishop Sheil Foundation, dedicated to fighting Communism among youth, affording educational opportunities and curbing juvenile delinquency. In 1945, Bishop Sheil investigated youth problems in Europe as the personal representative of President Truman.

A champion of labor, Bishop Sheil was the first member of the American Catholic hierarchy to support the CIO, appearing on a platform with John L. Lewis in 1939.

Bishop Sheil has announced he would devote his future life to the "fight against tyranny as represented by international Communism." He was born in Chicago.

to feed the hungry and to give people of all lands the means to build for themselves those social structures so necessary for the better life has been part of our waging the peace. To wage peace is to thirst after justice for all. To wage peace is to labor for the triumph of God's justice on earth. It is to give, rather than to receive; to share rather than to hoard; it is to be concerned for our fellow man rather than to be indifferent.

Practically, this means sharing our abundance, passing on our technical knowledge, in order to help develop the hitherto fruitless areas of the world.

It is in this sense that peace depends on the hearts of men. The simple goodness expressed in the love played out in action, the unheralded attempt to leave the world a more just place than it was when one came into it, are all peace-waging acts. This is Christianity's great message of peace, which is the divine heritage given her by her Founder.

In this complex age peace demands leaders who are attuned to the grim realities of a world in tension and uncertainty. But however gifted these leaders may be, their work will not be effective if it lacks the co-operation of the average man. We must be convinced that peace shall not be given to us as a free gift. We must work for it unflinchingly.

Appeasement Leads to War. At the present time we are forced to work against great odds. A large part of the world is in the power of a few men who believe in implement an inhuman and godless philosophy of life. In our dealings with them we must avoid the extremes of unbending bellicosity and spineless appeasement. We completely reject appeasement, not because we accept war as the only solution to our problems, we reject it because we desire peace. And if there is one lesson that we have learned from recent history, it is that appeasement leads not to peace but to war. This should not surprise us because appeasement, in the last analysis, is complicity with injustice, and peace can never be the result of injustice.

Faced with the fact of Communism, we have been forced to accept a new kind of war, the cold war. For the most part, this has been fought by statesmen and diplomats, rather than by military men. This notion of a cold war is new to us, and it has been difficult to accept. We have had little or no experience with its weapons. In such a war there are no clear-cut victories, no unconditional surrenders. It is a difficult battle, fought on the ever-shifting terrain of diplomacy, and daily demanding new tactics. It has achieved one thing—it has kept the world from plunging over the abyss of total destruction. Its successes and failures must be measured according to that standard alone.

Now, more than at any other period in our history, there is urgent need for leaders of informed and independent mind, men sharply conscious of the limits of the possible in mundane affairs.

Pre-Army Life of Returning Turncoats
Gives Clues Why They First Chose Reds

WILLIAM A. COWART LEWIS W. GRIGGS OTHO G. BELL

Billy Cowart and Lewis Griggs Were Odd, Aloof and Virtually Friendless Boys—Otho Bell's Father Boasts He Could 'Scare Him Into Anything.'

By the United Press.

Three young Americans have turned back to their native land after first choosing to cast their lot with Communism. Whatever motivated them in the first place? Virginia Pasley, a reporter for the Long Island newspaper Newsday, traveled 15,000 miles into 23 states to find the answer for her book, "21 Stayed." Here is what she found out about the three turncoat G.I.s who have chosen to return.

(Publication rights approved by Farrer, Straus and Cudahy, New York.)

Pfc. William A. Cowart. Dalton, Ga. Born Jan. 10, 1933, three years high school.

Billy Cowart pestered his mother incessantly until she let him quit school and enlist in the Army. Shipped to Japan, he was with the first soldiers thrown into the front lines when the Korean war began. Within three weeks he was wounded and captured by the Communists.

For a time he wrote letters from prison camp to everyone he knew in his home town. Gradually the letters fell off. And then the news came that Billy had abandoned his native land, decided to stay with the Reds.

"I've gone too far; I can't go back," he told the only man in the hut still on speaking terms with him since he had become pro-Chinese.

"He came over and told me that he had just been to regimental headquarters and had agreed to refuse repatriation," said James Wilson of Chattanooga, Tenn., a returned prisoner-of-war. "I tried to argue him out of it. But he said it was too late; that he didn't have any friends anyway; that no one would talk to him."

What kind of a boy was Billy Cowart?

Only Child. He was an only child, adored by his mother. His parents were divorced when he was 6. He saw his father only once more, when he was 14. Friends said his stepfather "did everything he could for the boy and treated him as though he were his own." In school his I.Q. was rated average but he was in the lower fourth of his class. "He pretended not to care about people but he really one who has not been subjected to imprisonment and torture is not in a position to condemn those who cracked under it.

"Bill was just a kid and he was wounded," Calloway said. "Remember that. Even those who came back didn't know what they were fighting for. As for Billy, he hardly knew who was President."

Billy's mother broke down under the strain of worrying over her son. For a long time she clung to the thought that this boy is really not her boy, not really the Billy Cowart who marched off from Dalton so proudly in 1949.

She thinks maybe the news his girl married affected him. "And then if they told him he would be arrested when he came back to this country, he would have stayed over there because Billy had a horror of being arrested," she said. "He was afraid of the police."

Looking back, Mrs. Green feels that she left him alone too much and depended on him too much.

"He did most of the housework after school because my husband and I were at the mills. And then he worked too, at the mill and at a sandwich shop because he wanted to earn his own money."

Pfc. Otho G. Bell. Hillsboro, Miss. Born Jan. 23, 1931; Eighth grade.

Otho Bell was 23 on Jan. 23, 1954, the last day he had to change his mind and go back to his wife and the daughter he had never seen, the farm in Mississippi where he had been raised.

Otho's mother was 23 the day she died—the day he was born—and Otho grew up feeling that he had "killed his mother" to the point where he got the idea

Issue Blocks
Aid to Schools

Bill Might Pass if Negro Leaders Would Change Their Minds.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON, July 8.

A SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION bill at this session is still a possibility if the principal Negro spokesmen here do not insist upon putting an anti-segregation amendment into it.

Senate leaders assert that the Senate would pass a "pretty good bill" if the House will give them a framework to build on. Influential members of the House who deeply want such a measure believe that if the threat of a segregation fight on it were lifted, they could oblige.

A world of work has been done on the issue of school construction. Minus a segregation controversy, the votes are there because of a real understanding that the situation is critical. The fact is that very many members of Congress are ashamed of their past inaction and would welcome the chance to improve their records on the issue.

Liberals are Critics Now. In their present efforts to force segregation amendments in school legislation, the Negro leaders who demand it have lost much of the sympathy that they held before the Supreme Court spoke so clearly and emphatically. Critics of their actions are not the southerners now but the liberals.

This group, which is the moving force also behind the attempt to get more and better schools, charges privately that the Negroes are now copying the "rule of ruin" policy by which reactionaries so long impeded Negro progress. They believe the Negro leaders do not realize that nothing now can stop the final realization of minority rights which the anti-segregation decrees of the Supreme Court set in motion.

The liberals label it sheer waste to stop the advances that can be made in other fields right now in order to carry on a fight that has been already won.

They are private conversations. Members of the Senate from the great industrial states and members of the House from industrial districts and cities are not going to vote now when the roll is called on a clear issue of

ALSOP Superficial Contact With Soviet People Produces Scant Results

Language Barrier, Fear Limit Conversations—Russians Aware of Shortcomings When Compared With Others.

By STEWART ALSOP

MOSCOW.

THE VISITING American here can make some kind of contact with the Russians on three levels—with officials, with people encountered by chance on the streets or elsewhere, or with such semi-official persons as interpreters and guides. But the reporter soon learns that it is highly dangerous to draw large, striking conclusions on basis of such tenuous contacts.

A rather astonishing example of official contact between Americans and Russians was provided by the Fourth of July party given by the American embassy here. The party was certainly a success.

All the most important Russian leaders attended, despite the absence of Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen. A French diplomat here attributed this triumph to the fact that "the entire Presidium is in love with Mrs. Bohlen"; and certainly Mrs. Bohlen was the heroine of the occasion.

The contact established at the party, moreover, was nothing if not close, since the crowd around the great men approximated mob scenes. At one point, I found myself between the bulky Mr. Bulganin and the massive Mr. Khrushchev, with powerful Mr. Kaganovich pressing hard on the flank. Yet this East-West contact, close as it was, was not really very revealing.

Indeed, the conversation between the Russian rulers and Western diplomats oddly recalled the talks at the first "grown up" party I attended well over a quarter of a century ago. There was the same agonizing attempt to think up small jokes, the same nervous laughter, the same long, embarrassed pauses. There was even the same tendency of the boys—a role queerly played in this case by the Russians—to wink and poke at each other.

Determined to be Nice. Aside from the fact that the Russians were so obviously determined to be nice, even if it killed them, there was only one really significant moment at the party. This was just after Khrushchev had made his small speech about how the Russians were not going to Geneva "on our knees."

Khrushchev was waxing rather vehement, gesturing violently with his short, thick arms, when he seemed to catch a warning glance from the beetle-browed Kaganovich. He broke off and

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mere Custodial Care

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Congratulations on your editorial regarding Gov. Donnelly's veto of the mental health bill to set up a five-man commission to govern our state hospitals.

The Governor has shown his true colors as usual in putting politics first and the patients' welfare second.

He cites the record appropriation for the coming two years as a major step in cure of patients, but with rising costs and rising salaries, this will still give only custodial care.

He is advocating a building program which is not the solution. We have had building programs before and this only afforded more beds for seniles and nursing home patients from influential families.

Gov. Donnelly is going true to form right down the line.

A STATE HOSPITAL ATTENDANT.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

We note that Gov. Donnelly has vetoed the bill which would have established a commission to appoint and advise the Director of Mental Diseases. In his veto message he states the desirability of having the Chief Executive of the state maintain his administrative authority.

However, the need for this highly technical field still remains unmet. With the added responsibility of the mobile mental health clinics it would be advantageous to the director to have the advice of a committee regardless of where the authority lies. We believe the appointment of such a committee would be helpful in handling the complicated problems of the Division of Mental Health.

THADDEUS B. CLARK, President Health Association of St. Louis.

Help for Carondelet

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It is strange indeed that so-called pilot areas for neighborhood rehabilitation have been designated on the north side (Hyde Park) and south central (Cherokee), but that the very old section of Carondelet seems to have been bypassed altogether in respect to this very desirable civic improvement program.

Likewise it is strange that the St. Louis Public Housing Authority, the Land Clearance for Redevelopment Agency or Civic Progress, Inc., have not made one move for slum clearance in Carondelet, which to a large extent is in a sad state of decay, and where major housing projects would provide decent living for thousands of deserving citizens in the low income brackets.

It will be interesting to find out what the new bond issue funds will do for Carondelet.

JACOB C. GAMACHE.

Off, Please

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am moving soon and will have a new telephone number. I have seriously considered a paid newspaper announcement to the business men of St. Louis and county giving them my new number and asking them to mark it off their list for telephone solicitation.

M.E.A.

Lay It on Thick

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If you must make a case, better make it strong.

When Reader Gutting said "No" to More Daylight, and blamed daylight saving for increased juvenile delinquency, more car accidents, higher electric bills and more drought, he may have overlooked the increased number of children, cars, freezers, air conditioners and perhaps the independence of weather in general from time-measuring devices.

But he also overlooked other serious consequences of the time change: trouble in Korea and Indochina, desegregation, Dixon-Yates, and the perils of Pauline (Cioin).

All this and much more happened during the last eight years of daylight saving. So let's get back to earlier darkness and see all this evaporate (if you can see in the dark).

JERGEN DE RIEL, University City.

Foreigners on the Phone

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Some newcomers to the United States, old and young people, for various reasons don't speak the English language, but they, like other human beings, wish to contact their friends by phone once in a while.

Is there any way to stop the horrible, vulgar remarks they constantly experience from their party-liners?

Were not these people or their predecessors foreigners at various times? Was it very easy for the old people then to learn a new language?

Hindered by the State

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am afraid to think what will happen to the bond issue St. Louis county must pass for badly needed roads, health and hospital services, schools, and sewer projects. We are hearing so much about it, if the new tax program of the state is heaped on our shoulders this year.

Unless the state sees fit to give more time to get a new program worked out, I am sure county residents are going to balk at voting any more burdens.

I, for one, do not think the state is co-operating to solve this big problem here in our county.

M. MEDEARIS.

Five Against Progress

Five members of the St. Louis County Council are standing in the way of progress on one of the most important of metropolitan issues. They are the five councilmen who voted Wednesday against a contract to permit the state to go ahead with purchasing right-of-way for the Daniel Boone expressway. Here is the list:

Frank L. Martini (Rep.), Maplewood, Fifth District.
Harold D. Carey (Rep.), Webster Groves, Sixth District.
Thomas Dunne (Dem.), Jennings, First District.
James J. McNary (Dem.), Pine Lawn, Second District.
Maurice Abramson (Dem.), University City, Third District.

These five councilmen opposed a resolution introduced by Councilman L. Gordon Davis (Rep.) of Kirkwood, and supported by Chairman James A. Singer (Rep.) of Ladue.

By that action they blocked progress on the vitally important plan to connect the Express Highway with the presently dead-ended Highway 40 at Brentwood boulevard and Eager road, and then develop the whole route into a modern expressway providing badly needed relief for traffic congestion to the west. Almost all of the expense would be borne by the state, with federal aid. The county needs to put up only one-half of the cost of right-of-way, and the state is even willing to carry that on the cuff until a bond issue is passed. But the five councilmen listed above said "No."

Councilman Martini, leader of the opposition, is frankly speaking for the narrow local interests of a small group in Richmond Heights and Maplewood which prefers another route for the expressway. The four councilmen who joined him are not even serving their own districts well.

Webster Groves should be standing with Kirkwood in favor of the expressway, for it would greatly relieve the congestion which Webster motorists now fight every day. Why should University City, having successfully kept the expressway away from its own door, now object to the present route? Why should Pine Lawn, Jennings and other communities in the north part of the county, which are to get an expressway of their own, object to one in the densely congested central western area?

Our belief is that they do not object. If the people who elected Messrs. Carey, Dunne, McNary and Abramson could speak out, our belief is that they would speak in favor of the Daniel Boone expressway.

The controversy over the route has already gone on too long. It has been threshed out again and again. The Missouri Highway Commission has held extensive hearings, heard all sides, conducted surveys of suggested alternatives, and has plainly put it up to St. Louis county: this route, or none.

Five of the seven councilmen voted on Wednesday for none. They voted against the best interests of the county as a whole and of their own districts. They need educating by their constituents.

Toward D. of C. Home Rule

A worthy home rule bill for the District of Columbia has been passed in the Senate and is now in the House where a somewhat similar bill has been pending since April. We trust President Eisenhower will put some White House steam behind it and get adequate support in the lower chamber.

This bill is, as Senator Morse said, "a step forward in providing the citizens of the District of Columbia with first-class citizenship." It would grant local suffrage in elections for Mayor and Council members. It would not provide for voting in national elections. That would need to come later.

To their credit, 33 other Senators joined with Chairman Neely of West Virginia in introducing the bill. The sponsors were divided as evenly as possible—17 Republicans and 16 Democrats. When the vote was taken 59 members answered Yea and only 15 Nay. Most of the 15 were Southerners who presumably do not wish to have the ballot distributed to all citizens of the national capital.

Senators Hennings and Symington of Missouri and Senator Douglas of Illinois (Senator Dirksen is in Europe) served the cause of popular government by voting for the bill. We hope House members will see to it that the bill comes up in their chamber and is passed before the summer recess.

Opportunity for Lon Hocker

Lon Hocker, a member of the bar of St. Louis, has been appointed chief counsel for the hearings to be conducted by the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights. This is a compliment not only to the professional bar of the city, but to the entire community.

No impending hearings in Congress are more important than those that will be conducted by the subcommittee consisting of Senators Hennings of Missouri, O'Mahoney of Wyoming and Langer of North Dakota. For while there are welcome indications that the pressure to conform is abating and that constitutional rights are coming back into their own, still there is ample cause to survey what Senator Hennings calls "their possible erosion."

Mr. Hocker has demonstrated within the bar his deep interest in the citizen's rights by his connection with the American Bar Association's project for a source book on American liberties. Now he will have the opportunity to extend this to the area of public affairs. May he make the most of it to the benefit of us all!

A Chill After a Freeze

A report on television industry profits last year reflects the influence of the 1948-1952 freeze on new stations, and the image of a bubble that burst.

Industry profits in 1954 rose 33 per cent from the previous year. Revenue of the four TV networks and 16 stations which they own amounted to 52 per cent of the total industry revenue. The 92 stations in existence before the freeze increased their profits by 12 per cent. But the 302 stations which came on the air after the freeze lost money as a group.

In general what happened was that the early bird got it. The stations arriving after the freeze had difficulty in getting network connections and more popular air channels, and competition was fierce.

From these figures it appears that the long freeze imposed by the Federal Communications Commission was a mistake which encouraged a considerable concentration of wealth in TV. But who was to blame for the freeze? Looking back to 1948, the FCC ordered a halt and study of industry expansion to provide more air space for all those who wanted to build TV stations. Too many applicants in those boom days believed that television had not only endless possibilities for art but endless prospects for profit.

A little more caution all around might have prevented considerable red ink, but television's early history was little different from that of other burgeoning industries. Now the gold rush days are over.

Reserve Bill in the Senate

Senator Russell of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, makes some interesting comments on the Administration's new military reserve bill which is now before his committee for hearings. Mr. Russell, always a firm believer in military preparedness, is displeased with the new plan, which had rough sledding in the House.

He is particularly displeased that veterans, some of whom have been called into service two and even three times, are, as he puts it, "the only men available in this great nation of ours to shoulder the heavy burden of an active combat-ready reserve." What he wants is universal military training. There is little doubt that universal military training would take much of the burden off the veterans and transfer most of it to the growing backlog of youths who have not yet been drafted.

Mr. Russell worked hard for such a bill four years ago. He saw it pass in the Senate and then die in the House. He cannot be blamed now for chiding the House over the comparatively weak bill it passed after prolonged and prodigious efforts. If he finds a way to strengthen the present measure and then get the House to accept it, that would be splendid.

Mr. Russell asserts that an erroneous impression has been "created in the public mind that the reserve has been deteriorating" whereas "it is larger and more efficient than at any time in our history." It is impossible to agree with him in this respect.

President Eisenhower has several times said that the reserve is not what it should be. Secretary of Defense Wilson said last August that if war came the reserve setup "would be a scandal." Col. C. M. Boyer, executive director of the Reserve Officers Association, told the House Armed Services Committee in June 1953 that: "From the standpoint of having a reserve trained and capable of being ordered to duty to neutralize with success the effect of a sudden attack, I can state definitely that we do not have such a reserve at this time."

Franklin L. Orth, the Army's civilian specialist on reserve forces, called them "far from the caliber needed" in an address before the Reserve Officers Association at Indianapolis on April 24, 1954. The National Security Training Commission reported to Mr. Eisenhower in December 1953 that the condition of the reserve was "dangerous" and its lack of readiness "extremely serious."

The nation has been deprived of an adequate military reserve for too long a time. The need grows more pressing as the regular Army and Navy are reduced in strength and the Air Force barely holds its own. What the House has sent to the Senate is half a loaf—which is better than none.

If this can be passed, then a new foundation will have been laid and improvements can be added later. Mr. Russell has not said that he will oppose this bill. Is it too much to expect that he will give it his strong support? The nation cannot afford to be left with nothing more than the reserve setup it now has.

Neighbors in the Park

That was a fine neighborly occasion at Benton park Wednesday evening. Seven hundred residents of one of the city's first pilot-plant projects in neighborhood rehabilitation gathered to hear Mayor Tucker and other speakers tell them about the program. They also sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and chatted with their neighbors while their children played on the swings.

It was a warming demonstration that St. Louis neighborhoods are really neighborly. This particular area of 66 blocks is going to spend some $750,000 of its own householders' money and the city will spend some $500,000 of its money improving the neighborhood.

The old town meeting which once did so much to keep democracy in America vital, particularly in New England, is pretty much gone. But its spirit was surely abroad under the trees of Benton park Wednesday evening.

Credit to the Tax Commission

Both the State Tax Commission and the St. Louis County Council have accused each other of being arbitrary in the dispute over real estate tax assessments. The fact is that both agencies are only doing their duty, but the state commission has done its job and the county has not.

It is the plain duty of the Tax Commission to equalize tax assessments between counties of the state. St. Louis county's assessment level was too low, so the commission has ordered a rise to 30 per cent of true value. Commission Chairman James M. Robertson and his colleagues deserve credit for their performance.

While the commission's duty is to the whole state, the County Council's first responsibility is to taxpayers within St. Louis county. There the problem is to equalize haphazard assessments, so that a blanket increase will not multiply injustice for citizens unfairly assessed. But an equalization program requires time. The council proposes to challenge the state order in the courts, presumably as a way to gain time.

The present assessment situation in the county is unfair to state and county alike. County officials have wasted words in criticizing the state commission for doing what it was supposed to do. Now that the commission has performed its duty, the burden of clearing up the county's assessment mess rests with the County Council.

Electronic Hijacking

Police investigating the murder of J. Fred Koenig hear that he planned to tap the wires of Frank (Buster) Wortman's rival racing information service. This is the sort of enterprise which makes a man persona non grata in gangland circles, and always has.

Raiding another mob's products developed in the prohibition era and was known as hijacking. Not every gang could afford a distillery, and the easiest way to get liquor was to take it from another gang. Liquor operators even hijacked themselves to get their whisky out of government-inspected warehouses and on the market.

In St. Louis, for example, a distiller and some politicians worked together to milk a warehouse in the '20s. Investigation finally disclosed that of 894 barrels in the plant, 893 contained colored water. Only one contained whisky, and that was the one nearest the entrance.

In principle, if principles are involved in underworld business, there is not much difference between hijacking for liquor and wire-tapping for gambling news. The Koenig case is simply indicative of a continuing business trend among racketeers. The goods may change from one decade to another, but merchandising techniques remain much the same.

"NICE TRY, ANYWAY"

Sabotage of the Civil Service

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Trend away from patronage has been reversed and merit principle is being undermined in Eisenhower Administration, editorial says; challenges partisanship in White House; says President acts as hidebound Republican though he owes little to party.

From The Louisville Times

Friends of the federal civil service have been increasingly alarmed during President Eisenhower's Administration. One of them, Herbert Hollander of Washington, has written a book. Its title is indicative, "Crisis in the Civil Service."

According to Mr. Hollander: "Through the years, by dint of prodigious effort, the percentage of federal positions subject to patronage appointment—to the spoils system—was steadily reduced."

"Today that trend is being reversed and the undermining of the merit principle goes forward on a much larger scale than is generally recognized and by various means. The need for a new effort to combat the rising tide of spoilsmanship cannot be doubted."

Here is one aspect of the greatest oddity of politics in our time. Nobody had reason to believe that President Eisenhower would countenance a spoils system at the expense of the merit system in the government service.

His predecessors, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman, were both adepts in the school of politics. Mr. Eisenhower had never been to that school. The last thing that might have been expected of him was that he would turn out to be a hog for patronage.

But in this and other ways he sometimes makes Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman look almost nonpartisan. At the outset Mr. Eisenhower appointed a few Democrats to office—conspicuously Mrs. Hobby of Texas.

But these were Democrats who had bolted their party in Mr. Eisenhower's behalf in 1952. They were rewarded in accordance with an ancient patronage principle.

For the appointment of an actual Democrat to any place of consequence,

Mr. Eisenhower waited until last month. He made Gordon Gray an Assistant Secretary of Defense for international affairs. Generally in positions having to do with foreign relations, Mr. Eisenhower's aversion to Democrats has become notorious.

And this in spite of the fact that his own Secretary of State, Mr. Dulles, was more than once called upon by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman.

Mr. Eisenhower's whole outlook was probably indicated when he appointed his campaign manager of 1952, Arthur Summerfield, as Postmaster General.

To put a politico in this position was the traditional thing to do. President Truman had set a different and refreshing example.

When Robert E. Hannegan quit the office, Mr. Truman selected in his place a career man of the postal service, Jesse M. Donaldson. But Mr. Eisenhower cast aside this heartening precedent.

Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Mr. Truman ever made such a campaign for the election of a Democratic Congress at mid-term as Mr. Eisenhower made for the election of a Republican Congress in 1954.

It was a campaign spectacular for partisan exaggeration. It was conducted in the face of the fact that, even if it had been successful, Mr. Eisenhower would still have needed Democratic votes for his program on Capitol Hill.

Many of the members, even some of the leaders, of his own party in Congress consider themselves under little or no obligation to give him legislative support.

Why is the President in so many ways such a hidebound Republican, even to the point of undermining the civil service? He has no reason to be grateful to the party.

The obligation is the other way around. The party could not have won without him in 1952 and could not conceivably hope to win without him next year.

Yet he repeatedly acts as if he were somehow beholden to its ward heelers and job brokers.

We repeat, this is the greatest oddity of politics in our time.

The Big—and Less—Muddy

From The Dayton Daily News

The Missouri river, long a pack rat for silt and clay that floated 150,000,000 tons of sediment past Omaha yearly, is flowing clearer as the big dam-building program progresses.

A catfisherman above Omaha can now see his oar tips in the water. A lake trout was found below Fort Randall dam in South Dakota. Garrison, Fort Randall, Oahe, Fort Peck, Gavins Point—the big barriers already built or soon to be completed are not so much trapping the sediment in their own reservoirs as they are slowing the Big Muddy's pace so that more silt drops out. And the blessings, including the primary one of flood control, are not unmixing. No longer will the river deposit much of its load against pipe dikes, wire barriers set up to stabilize the channel. And there will be less Nile-style deposit of rich silt in the flood plains when spring waters recede.

What is happening along the mainstream Missouri in no way compares with what is planned along the tributary Miami river. Here we hope, with upstream storage dams, to create stronger and more vigorous river flow, not less. Here we seek to trap the rains of spring not just for flood control—our downstream dams long ago solved that problem for us—but for adding to the river in the months when it is shallow and sluggish, too low to carry our waste on to the Ohio and too laden for effective recharge of underground water supplies.

Yet something of value to us is being learned along the Missouri, something more, each year, of the ways of rivers with sediment and silt. We already know that cool water high in oxygen content carries a larger load than warm water low in oxygen content. On this principle we approach pollution control.

But we need ever-increasing knowledge as well as practice of erosion control in all its many forms to save our proposed water conservation dams from the silting in that could destroy their usefulness.

It cannot be impressed too strongly upon the people of the Miami valley that the Conservancy machinery by which we conquered flood control must be modernized to conquer a new kind of problem. The law itself provides for that modernization. But it can come about only through the boldness of visionary men.

Between Book Ends

Skulduggery in Texas

THE WINE OF YOUTH, by Robert Wilder. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, 377 pp., $3.75.)

This is a novel of Texas that can stand up to any that have been written. It is not pioneer stuff, not cattle and cowboys, not folkways. It is the Texas of the past quarter century, with its booms, its industrial expansion, its problems. Yet it is essentially the story of people—one family, one man, and how he came up in the modern world of Texas. It is also a love story, yet its dominating theme is the social and economic relations between Texans and Mexican-Americans.

Mr. Wilder knows his Texas, geography, atmosphere, social mores. He has drawn a composite of some of the specific problems and definite political machinations placing them out of time as he placed his locale, the town of Vega, out of its actual geographical position. But anyone who has lived in Texas or read of recent suspect goings on will get the idea.

He has handled the development, advancement and final maturity of one man—Kevin Costello, whose boyhood begins the book. For all the oil and building booms, the growth of towns and highways, it is not a story of labor and sweat, but of the people who lived through the era. There are murder and skulduggery, but little sweat. The descriptions are accurate, the atmosphere correct. It is a vastly better novel than Edna Ferber's "Giant."

Occasionally Mr. Wilder goes off into a sort of verbal montage, to cover a period or set the framework for a situation, as in his chapter on the beginnings of the great depression, and on the influx of the military in the Second World War. But mostly the writing is specific, lucid, graceful, yet strong. His pictures of the Mexican quarter of any South Texas town, or of an abandoned army post are true and biting. He is not so fortunate in conveying the visual images of people, but he makes them understandable and convincing. His women may all be too beautiful, but his portraits of Texans at a political convention and the Mexican politicians are terrific.

The ending of the story seems a little weak, too romantic, and unresolving, and several characters—two women and one pistolero—are left dangling. But this is not too upsetting in view of the generally excellent, serious, yet highly readable novel.

Who's Who in Rocketry

THE ROCKET PIONEERS, by Beryl Williams and Samuel Epstein. (Julian Messner, 241 pp., $3.75.)

The library of a rocket enthusiast isn't very large—at least in the field of rocketry. As contrasted to the speculative field of space travel, factual information on rockets can be covered pretty well in perhaps a half-a-dozen books. The score of books on space flight have nearly all drawn on the few basic references.

This has been true not only for the scientific data, but for the historical aspects as well, and Willy Ley's "Rockets, Missiles, and Space Travel" has been the prime source book. It was assumed that "The Rocket Pioneers" would likewise be found to be a rehash, but the book pleasantly proved otherwise.

Williams and Epstein, husband and wife, are a pair of professionals with some forty books to their credit. The job they do in telling the story of the development of rockets is polished and well-researched. They also draw on Willy Ley, but as he is the only member of the original German rocket society still handy, it could hardly be otherwise. Much of the data the authors have obtained from original sources.

"The Rocket Pioneers" does a worthwhile job. JOHN S. HARRIS.

THE SPORTS BEAT

Special Dispatch, Copyright 1955

THE anvil chorus is in full cry over some of the All-Star selections or lack of them. Why did Leo Durocher leave off Richie Ashburn? Why did Al Lopez pick six of his Indians after the fans gave them the brush-off?

Durocher explained he needed some right-handed hitting to offset a preponderance of left-handed power. He also might have added that Willie Mays, in addition to being as good a centerfielder as Ashburn, wields a stronger bat, even if Richie is leading the National League hitters on percentage.

From a statistical standpoint, the Glens manager has all the best of it in splitting the center-field assignment between Duke Snider and Mays if he so chooses. For instance, Mays, batting .298, has driven in 63 runs to Ashburn's 21. Mays has 27 homers for a total base aggregate of 188 to Richie's three homers and 127 total bases, although the Phil star is batting .345.

It is just one of those situations in which Ashburn, having a fine year at the plate, is overshadowed in effectiveness by two other men who play the same position. With the advent of the home run in bunches, dating back to Babe Ruth's era, sly-sly hitters began to lose caste. Go back to 1947, for instance, when Harry The Hat Walker, now Cardinal manager, led the National League with 363, the second-highest percentage in the last eight years.

Walker made 186 hits (in 140 games) of which 140 were singles. One was a home run. He batted in 41 runs.

The Homer Derby Left 'The Hat' Far Behind

That same year Bobby Thomson of the Giants batted .277, but hit 29 homers for 273 total bases. Willard Marshall hit 36 homers and batted in 107 runs with a .291 mark. Ralph Kiner had 51 homers for 361 total bases with a .312 average. . . . and Stan Musial's 183 hits (three less than Walker), were good for 296 bases.

This isn't the first time . . . and won't be the last . . . that All-Star selections fail to get unanimous approval. Here are the Indians, for example, who won 111 games in '54 for an all-time record, yet the fans didn't think enough of them (the same team) to put even one man on the '55 honor squad.

That sort of put Lopez in a spot. He may have reacted in "rebozo" fashion by picking six Triplemen on his team, but he had no choice but to pick one . . . or two . . . or three.

Otherwise he would be confessing to himself, and to his players, that the championship last year was a fluke and there wasn't a guy on the team worthy of All-Star consideration.

Did Durocher favor his own pitching staff by not putting a single member on the team, thus giving them three days' rest over the All-Star period? Or did he do the National League team a favor by leaving them off?

The position of the Giants at this state of the flag would seem to indicate that The Lip acted wisely in letting somebody else's hurlers shoulder the load for next Tuesday afternoon.

As Time Marches On, Some Stars Fall Out

The absence of other perennial All-Star players is only an indication that time keeps a-marching. Who could "Pee-wee" Reese or Joe Judge, son out from All-Star berths, based upon current play? Where is a legitimate challenge to the rights of Nellie Fox or Mickey Mantle or "Toots" Berra or Harvey Kuenn or Al Kaline to positions on the American League team?

Ted Williams and Stan Musial are showpieces of baseball. They are living legends of that something called all-time class. Had Musial been playing right field, his accustomed position, this year, he would have won the job by vote instead of managerial selection.

But he was competing against Ted Kluszewski for popular acclaim at first base. . . . So the only alternative was to name both of 'em.

Williams has a glamorous All-Star past. He has played in 10 games, posting a combined batting average of .379. Twice he has won All-Star games single-handedly with tremendous hitting. It wouldn't be fair if Milwaukee didn't get a chance to remember that Ted Williams played there!

William K. Lanning of Rolla, Mo., was substituted for Eugene A. Rolfe of St. Louis as first-round opponent for Tom Nielsen, Racine, Wis. Steve J. # Moon, Eyeing Batting Title, Faces Biggest Obstacle in Minner

Birds Play Cubs Here; Took 5 of 9 on Trip

By Bob Broeg

Wallace Wade Moon, his shining ambition and his 13-game hitting streak run headlong tonight into another soft-throwing, lollipop lefthander. The Cardinals' sophomore star must learn to solve that kind of lefty if he hopes to lead the league in batting and base hits.

When the Redbirds open a three-game series and home stand at Busch Stadium against the cantankerous Chicago Cubs, it'll be lanky Paul Minner, a nice guy with a nasty slow curve who'll seek a fifth straight victory over the Cardinals, this year.

And it's Minner the 25-year-old Moon mentioned as the most troublesome pitcher in the league for him—and for the Cards, too, he might have added—while talking about his twin hitting ambitions last night at Cincinnati's Crosley Field.

There, engaging in one of their characteristic slugfests with a hard-hitting Cincinnati ball club that doesn't have enough pitching, either, the Redbirds reeled to a 9-8 victory that enabled them to rush for a mid-night train with their best road record of the season. They won five out of nine on the short western swing.

Moon Hitting .320.

Moon, for once in his surge from nowhere to somewhere, was only mildly active on the offense with just a double in five trips, but he still came back to St. Louis with a .320 average after returning here 24 games ago just shading .260.

Over that stretch of nearly a month, the bushy-browed 25-year-old square-shouldered outfielder has failed to hit safely in only two games and has rapped lefthanders as well as right-handers. A year ago when he was National League rookie-of-the-year, hitting an over-all .304, southpaws trimmed his sails by holding him to .255 compared with a husky .335 mark against right-handers.

Even now Moon is only .248 against southpaws, a robust .367 against right-handers, but, as he said and Manager Harry Walker confirmed, the former Texas Aggie has been hitting porters harder except—

"Except for a soft-throwing guy like Minner with his slow, swinging curve," Moon said. "I could hit him and a few others I'm sure I really could contend for the batting championship and the lead in base hits, too."

Cardinals Get to Nuxhall

Moon's confidence in his own hitting ability must be contagious because the youngest of the young Redbirds recently have done the heaviest hitting. Last night it was Ken Boyer, Bill Virdon and even banjo-battering Alex Grammas who led a timely attack that combined once more with the Cardinals' speed to offset the powerful Cincinnati bats and give the Redbirds two out of three over the Redlegs.

Beating big Joe Nuxhall in what proved to be a sorry exhibition in the rain by two all-star pitching choices—Harvey Haddix also failed—the Redbirds stretched to considerable length their 11 hits, which included Boyer's twelfth homer and a double, Virdon's eleventh circuit smash and two timely hits by Grammas good for three R.B.I.s.

A special citation for achievement above and beyond the expected of a Redbird relief pitcher these days, youthful Larry Jackson of the slender starting staff first time this season, choked on a Redleg uprising in the seventh

Boom Times for Willie Mays, 10 Homers in Last 10 Games

NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—Say hey! Willie Mays is thumping, not slumping, these days. It was a long spring for the New York Giants' 24-year-old phenom, but now that the weather has turned hot, so has Willie.

With two home runs in the Giants' 8-5 victory over Philadelphia, yesterday, Mays has hit 10 in the last 10 games after going without a homer in the preceding 11. The spree leaves him just one shy of the National leaders, Brooklyn's Duke Snider and Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski, who have 28.

Big Klu has hit five in the last 10 games, Snider four.

Mays now has hammered two home runs in one game six times this season, putting him within reach of the league record of 10, set by Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh in 1947, and the major league mark of 11 set by Detroit's Hank Greenberg in 1938.

Neither Greenberg nor Kiner had as many as six "pairs" at this stage of the season. Greenberg didn't make it for the sixth time until July 29. Kiner's sixth two-homer game came on April 15. Mays hasn't been going exclusively for the homer, however. Willie, who hit 41 homers and took the National batting crown with a .345 mark last season, has been hitting at a .390 clip in the last 10 games. That's upped his average from .283 to .298.

With Mays hitting one of three Giant homers in a six-run sixth, New York overcame a 5-0 deficit to beat the Phillies and strengthen its hold on fourth place. Half of the Giants' 10 hits were home runs. Windy McCall won in relief after the rally chased Murray Dickson, who had held the Giants on one hit for five innings. Reliever Jack Meyer was tagged with the loss.

Brooklyn extended its league lead to 13½ games again, beating Pittsburgh 4-3. Milwaukee moved a percentage point ahead of third place Chicago, defeating the Cubs, 3-2.

With New York idle in the American, Cleveland clipped the Yankees' lead to four games, beating Kansas City, 9-1. Third-place Chicago whipped Detroit, 12-1. Boston won its seventh straight, 6-5, over Washington. Art Cecarrelli held Cleveland to one hit for six innings, but the Tribe got rolling in the last three frames for all its runs. Larry Doby homered twice and Al Rosen once in the prolonged rally. Winner Mike Garcia and Don Mossi gave the Athletics just six hits.

Boston scored three in the first on Norb Zauchin's eighteenth homer, but had to break a 3-3 tie with three more in the seventh. George Susse saved it for reliever Ellis Kinder, shutting off a two-run Nat rally with none out in the ninth. Singles by Jackie Jensen and Grady Hatton sparked with the winning rally, while Zauchin's blast off loser Bob Porterfield tied him for the A.L. lead with New York's Mickey Mantle and Detroit's Al Kaline.

16 Hits for White Sox. The White Sox saved a game behind Cleveland and 1½ up on Boston with a 16-hit attack behind Dick Donovan's five-hit effort. Wait Dropo drove in five Chicago runs, smacking a grand slam homer in a six-run sixth. Rookie Duke Maas was the loser.

Brooklyn's Billy Loes won his ninth, but had to close down a two-run Pirate rally in the ninth inning. Junior Gilliam homered and tripled for the Braves, who scored their runs off loser Ron Kline. Johnny O'Brien had a double and three singles in four at-bats for the Bucs.

Bobby Thomson's single drove home the winning Milwaukee run in the eighth at Chicago after Andy Paiko, an ex-Cub, hit his first 1955 homer in a pinch-batter role with a man on to tie it 2-2 in the seventh. Bob Buhl was the winner, with All-Star pitcher Sam Jones losing his tenth.

N.B.A. Honors Suspension of Boxer Johnson

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 8 (AP)—Light Heavyweight Harold Johnson is under a nationwide six months suspension today as an aftermath of his May 6 fight with Julio Mederos.

Tony Petronella, president of the National Boxing Assn., announced in Providence, R.I., last night that the N.B.A. would honor the suspension of Johnson by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission.

Meanwhile, the Illinois Athletic Commission said it would automatically recognize the suspension if approved by the N.B.A. and James A. Finnegan, Pennsylvania's secretary of the commonwealth, said that Connecticut and New York have "an unwritten gentleman's agreement with Pennsylvania to go along with each other on suspensions. New York is not an N.B.A. member."

Johnson was cited for his showing against Mederos in their Philadelphia bout. The Pennsylvania commission charged that Harold was drugged before he entered the ring. Mederos was awarded a knockout win when Johnson failed to come out for the third round.

In addition to suspending Johnson for six months, the Pennsylvania commission ordered that his $4,113.33 purse be forfeited and turned over to the state treasury. The commission also revoked the matchmaker and promoter licenses of Pete Moran and suspended Johnson's manager, Thomas Loughran, for six months.

The Johnson-Mederos fight result touched off a commission boxing in Pennsylvania that is expected to end in a new state boxing code. Gov. George M. Leader banned all professional fights in the state for 90 days—until Aug. 9—but is expected to extend his edict.

Lopata Picked To Replace Campanella

CINCINNATI, O., July 8 (UP)—Catcher Stan Lopata of the Philadelphia Phillies today was named to replace Roy Campanella of Brooklyn on the National League's all-star team for the game with the American League in Milwaukee Tuesday.

President Warren C. Giles of the National League said the selection was made by Manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants. Durocher will manage the Nationals in the Tuesday game.

Lopata was named to replace Campanella who will be unable to play because of an injured left knee. Campanella had received more votes from the fans for the All-Star team than any other player in either league.

Both Campanella and Lopata are right-handed batters.

40 White Teams in Kid Tourny Quit Over Entry of Negro Club

COLUMBIA, S.C., July 8 (UP)—All but 15 of South Carolina's 55 white Little League baseball teams have withdrawn from competition because "it is impractical for a Negro team to participate in the state Little League tournament this season."

The withdrawal of the 40 teams was revealed last night by Danny Jones of Charleston, director of the state program. The resolution stating the participation of the Negro team—the Cannon Street Y.M.C.A. of Charleston—"is impractical" was drawn up at a meeting Wednesday night.

A copy of the resolution was sent to the National Little League headquarters in Pennsylvania.

Should the 15 other white teams follow the others out of the national competition, the Negro team could claim the state championship by default and compete in the regional tournament.

Mack and Griffith to Attend Old-Timer Game

NEW YORK, July 8 (UP)—Connie Mack and Clark Griffith, two "hardy perennials" at the annual New York Yankees old-timer games, accepted invitations today to appear at the salute to the Hall of Fame at Yankee Stadium on Saturday, July 30.

Both members of the Hall of Fame, Mack and Griffith have contributed a total of more than 125 years to the game of baseball. Mack is in virtual retirement after more than half a century as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics and later as president of the Washington Senators. He formerly played with the Yankees when they were known as the New York Highlanders.

Australian Peter Thomson Retains British Open Golf Title

All Five Americans Far Back

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 8 (UP)—Peter Thomson, 25-year-old Australian star, won the British Open golf championship today for the second year in a row by shooting rounds of 70 and 72 for a total of 281 strokes.

By winning, Thomson became the fifth golfer to make a successful defense of his Open title since the turn of the century. Bobby Locke of South Africa won in 1949-50; Walter Hagen in 1928-29; Bobby Jones in 1926-27; and James Braid of England in 1905-06.

John Falloon of England, with final rounds of 73 and 70, finished second with 283—two strokes behind Thomson. Frank Jowle of England, who won the 36-hole qualifying medal for the tournament, was third at 284.

The five Americans who survived for today's final two rounds fared poorly on the sun-bathed St. Andrews "old" course.

Ed Furgol of Clayton, Mo., the 1954 United States Open champion, made the best American showing by shooting 72 and 73 for a 292 aggregate. That put him 11 strokes behind the winner.

Conrad Low Amateur.

About the only consolation for the United States contingent was the low amateur medal won by Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., who last month won the British Amateur crown. Conrad shot rounds of 74 and 71 for a 292 aggregate. That put him 11 strokes behind the winner.

Byron Nelson, 43-year-old Roanoke, Tex. pro, carded 78 and 71 for a 296 aggregate, while Johnny Bulla of Pittsburgh blew up with a final round 80 after shooting a 73 in the morning and finished with a 298 total.

Thomson, who has played the United States pro circuit for the past few years, appeared to be breezing to the championship when he completed the first 13 holes of the afternoon round in two-under-par. But he had a momentary fright when he ran into trouble on the next hole and took a seven.

He bunkered his tee shot, and after blasting out, he pulled a wood shot into another bunker to the left of the green. Thomson had to hit out sideways because of the steep pitch of the bunker face, and after pitching to the green, he two-putted for a double bogey.

That put him even with par again, but he won back a stroke on the 15th by knocking his approach 12 feet from the pin and holed out. He missed a birdie on the 16th when his 18-foot putt lipped the cup.

Gallery of 15,000.

On the 17th hole which had proved a nemesis for Furgol, the young Aussie played it safe. He drove short of a road, pitched short, and ran the ball up for two putts and a bogey. Thomson then hit a good drive on the 18th, approached to within 30 feet, and two-putted for a four. The crowd of 15,000 at the 18th green let out a roar.

On the outgoing nine, Thomson had birdied the first by knocking his approach shot to within three feet of the hole; bogeyed the long fifth when he bunkered his second shot, blasted short, pitched 25 feet past the pin, and two-putted for a six; and gained back a stroke by sinking a 60-foot putt on the eighth. He reached the turn in 35.

Furgol, who has been severely critical of tournament conditions since his arrival in St. Andrews, said this was his farewell to British golf.

"I'm not coming back," he said. "There are too many good tournaments in the states. And the British title is not worth spending all that money."

Furgol in Trouble on Greens.

Furgol, rated the leading American hope for the title at the start of the tournament, went out in 35, but required a two-over-par 37 on the incoming nine holes as the day's final two rounds began on the ancient St. Andrews course.

The American pro's drives were long but he still found it difficult to solve the baffling greens and missed several short putts. The largest gallery of the morning round followed Furgol, who despite criticism of the sacred soil of the Royal and Ancient Club, was still popular and hailed admiringly by the Scots as a "bonnie hitter."

For the fifth straight day, the weather was warm and sunny and only a slight breeze blew from St. Andrews bay as the 49 survivors teed off on the morning round.

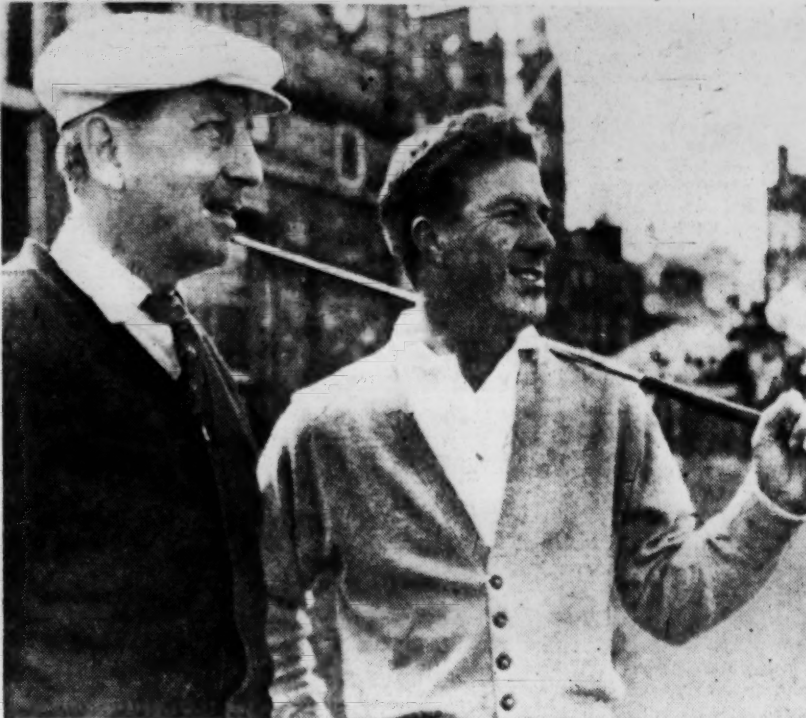

Furgol started off with a birdie on the first hole. He drove 300 yards, pitched to within 12 feet of the cup and holed out for a three. He then matched par all the way through the tenth hole, although he narrowly missed putts on the second, third and sixth holes that might have reduced his score. He went three under par with birdies on the eleventh and twelfth holes, but he came to grief in the yawning paws of "hell bunker," which is probably the most menacing bunker in golf.

Into the Chasm.

Mindful that he had shot a seven on the same hole yesterday, Furgol tried to skirt the left-hand edge of the hazard en route to the green. But the ball rolled into the chasm, landing against the face of the bunker.

There was no hope of blasting out, so Furgol took one shot

Fifth British Champion to Repeat

Mangum Medalist in Colonial Golf Event

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 8 (UP)—Lanky Hillman Robbins of Memphis today opened his bid for an unprecedented fifth straight Colonial invitational crown over a field of 31 crack southern golfers.

Posing as one of the biggest threats was Jolting Jim Mangum of Shreveport, La., who took medalist honors with a two-under-par 68 yesterday and a qualifying total of 141. Mangum forced Robbins to go three extra holes before bowing in the 1953 tournament.

Robbins, still trying to shake a lingering virus flu, blasted off against Frank Edens of Lumberton, N. C., in the 18 holes of opening match play today.

Don Bisplinghoff of Orlando, Fla., a semifinalist in the recent British amateur, finished two strokes behind Mangum at 143 in qualifying, carding a 70 yesterday. Bisplinghoff shared second place with Ed Brantley of Chattanooga, Tenn., who added a 71 to his opening round 72.

Three St. Louis Soccer Stars to Play in Iceland

By Dent McSkimming

Three St. Louis soccer players today were digging through their wardrobes looking for earmuffs, overcoats and mittens. Harry Keough, Herman Wecke and Bill Looby were notified that they have been selected to play on the United States team in its two-game series at Reykjavik, Iceland, next month.

Actually, however, mid-summer temperatures in Iceland are moderate. Sponsorship of the State Department, a representative soccer team will be flown from Boston Aug. 22 for the exhibition matches at Iceland's capital. The group will return Aug. 30.

The squad selected by the international games committee of the United States Soccer Football Association is made up of almost entirely of players from the New York-Philadelphia area. Center Forward Ed Murphy of Chicago, Goalie Don Malinowski of Pittsburgh, and the three St. Louisans are the only non-easterners picked on the first team.

Keough, Wecke and Looby, along with their Kutz teammates, Ruben Mendoza, all performed creditably in World Cup matches at Haiti last summer. Fifteen players have been selected for the Iceland trip, according to an announcement by U.S.S.F.A. secretary J. J. Bariskill, and a sixteenth probably will be named shortly.

Following is the list: Goal,

Barber Shoots 63 to Lead in St. Paul Open

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 8 (AP)—Keller Golf Course, which held up pretty well for the National PGA last year, was left a shambles yesterday by the nation's top golf professionals in the first round of the St. Paul Open.

Little Jerry Barber of Los Angeles knocked nine strokes off the par 72 with a 63 to take the lead. Barber teed off today only a stroke ahead of Fred Hawkins of St. Andrews, Ill., and Art Wall Jr., Peconic Manor, Pa., who finished with 64.

Two strokes off the pace are Tommy Bolt, Chattanooga, Tenn., Walker Inman, Augusta, Ga., and Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., the national amateur king in 1954.

No fewer than 50 professionals in a field of 140 starters shattered Keller's par of 72 and 24 of the players broke 70 in the greatest opening day scoring burst in the 25 years tournaments have been played here.

Lloyd Mangrum's course record of 62 withstood the first withering assault. But the first nine record of 6-under par 30, held jointly by Joe Coria of St. Paul and Mangrum, was equaled twice.

The first to do it was Barber and a few minutes later, Palmer also matched it. Coria missed the second nine record of 29 set by Herman Coelho, by a stroke. Hawkins and Wall both shot 5-under-par 31s on the second nine.

Coria, the tournament's early leader with a morning round of 66, had slipped back to seventh by nightfall. George Bigham of Kansas City, Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Texas, and Jimmy Clark of Laguna Beach, Calif., are deadlocked with 68s.

Fourteen players are tied at 69, among them such tournament favorites as Mike Souchak, the nation's leading money winner, Dow Finsterwald, Bedford Heights, Ohio; Bo Winninger, Oklahoma City; Bob Rosburg, San Francisco; and Frank Stranahan of Toledo.

Sammy Snead, who won at Keller in 1937 and captured the Western open here in 1949, was in an eight-way tie at 70 as were Bud Holscher and former national open champion Julius Boros.

The tournament's 72-hole record is a 22-under-par 266, shared by Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff.

THURSDAY'S STARS

PITCHING — DICK DONOVAN, White Sox, scattered five hits, retiring in order the first nine and the last 10 men he faced, to win his tenth game 12-1 over Detroit.

HITTING — WILLIE MAYS, Giants, hit two home runs in one game for the sixth time this season, and made it 10 homers in 10 games, in an 8-5 victory over Philadelphia.

Thomann-Boothe Gains Legion Title, 3-2

Creve Coeur Bubbling Over With Talent Beaten, 11-2; Tie Averted

By John J. Archibald

You needed more than a scorecard to keep track of things at Heman Park yesterday. A fan's best bet was a bicycle, or at least a pair of binoculars, because a Legion baseball championship was being decided on two adjoining ball diamonds at the same time and the moon had supplanted the sun for illumination before it ended.

Thomann-Boothe Post won its first title in the Zera-Smith League, and thereby qualified to play Kirkwood for the county championship next week, on two eleven-inning errors on the same play by Oliver-Guy-Vassar players. With Thomann-Boothe Pitcher Andy Reed on second and one out, Vassar Hurler Dick Gunter tried a pick-off throw, but it went into center field, and when the ball was fumbled there, Reed came in with the game-ending run. The score was 3 to 2.

Creve Coeur missed a chance to finish in a first-place tie by losing to Pine Lawn, 11 to 2, on the other Heman diamond.

All the while Pine Lawn was winning, its coaches, players and fans were keeping long-distance eyes on the other game. If the last-place Vassar team had defeated Thomann, that result, coupled with a Pine Lawn triumph, would have put the teams in a three-way tie for first place. There would have been a quick playoff then.

As Vassar repelled repeated scoring efforts by the favored Thomann-Boothe club, the hopes of Pine Lawn and Creve Coeur rose. Sometimes there's a cheer for an Oliver-Guy-Vassar BARBARA BREIT, seeded No. 1 in the Western-Tri State tennis tournament at Cincinnati, is also acclaimed No. 1 hubbie blower. Barbara chews the game as she plays, saying it relaxes her. She has attracted almost as much attention as Tony Trabert, Wimbledon champion, who is present as a spectator.

player from the Pine Lawn bench a quarter mile away, and somebody unfamiliar with the situation would be considerably puzzled.

The Pine Lawn and Creve Coeur followers saw their hopes die prematurely in the tenth inning of the other game. Thomann-Boothe's Bob Burda doubled with two out. There was a long fly to left field, but it was dropped and the game was apparently over. Burda thought he missed third base, however, and to the amazement of people all over the park, went back to tag it. A throw from the outfield nailed him at the plate and the game went into the eleventh.

Gunter went all the way for Vassar, allowing the champions just eight hits, before losing on the unearned run. Bob Wichman pitched the first nine innings for Thomann-Boothe, but was removed for a pinchhitter, Reed, regarded as Thomann's No. 1 starter, fired the last two frames.

Rite-nour Provides Talent. The Thomann-Boothe team, which will meet Kirkwood in two-out-of-three series at Ballwin Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, is drawn from Rite-nour High School. Bill Schaeffer is the coach and Charles Cordes the manager.

John Jones, Pine Lawn's all-around handyman, pitched remarkably in relief for his team. Taking over from starter Al Sona in the third with the bases loaded and nobody out, he retired three successive batters without a run scoring, and then pitched hitless ball for a total of six innings. The game was called because of darkness after eight innings.

Jones played first base until he began pitching. He had a single and a triple in five times up. Dave McKnight gave Pine Lawn its first substantial lead when he tripled with the bases loaded in the third.

Meaux Wins Twice, Tightens Jockey Race

He Has 29, One Behind Sanabria

Clarence Meaux, Fairmount's leading jockey until he had to sit out a 10-day suspension, got back into the thick of the fight for honors last night when he won two races to bring his total of firsts for the campaign to 29. Rafael Sanabria had one winner and now has 30 to remain in first place.

Meaux was up on J. W. Norwine's Deville, which won the fifth race for its fourth success of the meeting and then rode home U. S. Mickey ($9.80) in the sixth.

Sanabria's only winner of the night was Burma Girl, which scored by a length and a half in the seventh race. Miss Night was second and Mint Branch, third. Burma Girl, winning its fourth straight at the track and its eighth victory of the year, paid $4.80 for $2.

$97.40 Payoff in First. The second highest payoff of the meeting, $97.40 for $2, came in the first race when Bobby White brought Pappas Puddin into the winner's circle. This ranks next to Akboy's $105.40 for $2 on May 2.

Pappas Puddin and First Return, the favorite in the second race, made up a double worth $356.40 for $2. Twenty-nine bettors held the winning combination of 7 and 2. Two of the tickets sold were of the $10 variety and 27 were for $2.

Owner-trainer Arthur S. Moore, Assistant Trainer John V. Bero and Groom Peter Koger have been suspended and their cases referred to the Illinois Racing Board as a result of the findings of Y. T. Oester, chief chemist of the board. An examination of Demand Note, winner of the fifth race last Monday afternoon, disclosed the presence of a drug of the nature of caffeine. All the horses owned by Moore also were suspended.

The purse won by Demand Note was forfeited and the new order of finish of the race shows Theonotobest, first; Pen Name, second; Sorority, third and Little Father, fourth.

Jockey Clemens Set Down. In another decision the stewards suspended Jimmy Clemens, who piloted four winners Wednesday night, for 10 days for interfering with horses in the back stretch during Wednesday's second race. Clemens was up on the winner, Night Fog.

Dale Dew, thrown at the three-eighths pole while riding Easter B in the seventh race, suffered a dislocated shoulder and will be out of action for some time. The 4830 fans present wagered $184,250. There were three claims. Cleatsie went to Mr. and Mrs. R. Connors; Pete Maxwell claimed Donald Sea and Mrs. T. M. Pruet took DeVille from Norwine. A. A. Arno's Brown Smoke broke down during the running of the second race. The seven-year-old pulled a tendon. Owner Arno was undecided as to whether the gelding would be destroyed.

Lapps Baseball Team's Winning Streak at 52

The Lapps, 1954 atom division (7 to 9 years of age) champions in Khoury baseball, have grown up, but haven't lost their winning touch in the bantam class (9 to 11).

After sweeping their 35 games last season, the Lapps have won their first 17 this year to run their streak to 52. Hank Holtzman, a former basketball star, coaches the team whose ace pitcher is Lefty Kenny Holtzman, Hank's son. Young Holtzman has 15 no-hitters, 12 one-hitters and a 15-per-game strike-out average.

The Lapps play on Saturday at Shaw Park.

Dittmer Injured, To Miss Several Games

CHICAGO, July 8 (UP)—Jack Dittmer, Milwaukee Braves infielder, injured an ankle in pregame batting practice yesterday and will be sidelined for several days.

Dittmer was taken to Illinois Masonic hospital, where X-rays showed no fracture. He was struck on the ankle by his own batted ball.

Danny O'Connell replaced him at second base for the game with the Chicago Cubs.

Westborough Women Win 12-Team Event

The Westborough team topped a field of 12 with 37½ points in a St. Louis Women's District Golf Association event at Normandie Country Club. Westborough players were Mrs. W. Anderson, Mrs. Allen Schmidt and Mrs. Don Reid.

The Rock Springs team of Alto was second. Its members were Mrs. M. K. McBrien, Mrs. A. G. Goveia, Mrs. H. G. Wickenhauer and Mrs. Paul O'Neill.

St. Louis Country Club leads for the season with 220½ points, followed by Sunset with 208½ and Westborough with 200½.

Michigan State Player Is Added To Hawk Roster

Al Ferrari, voted the most valuable basketball player at Michigan State University, the last three seasons, has signed with the St. Louis Hawks, club officials announced.

The six-foot, three-inch, 190-pound guard was the National Basketball Association team's third choice in this year's draft of college players.

Ferrari scored 442 points last season for a 20.1 a game mark, and tallied 1109 points in his three-year varsity career.

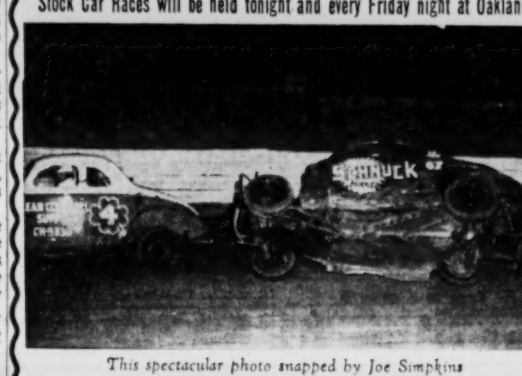

The New York City athlete set a new Big Ten mark for free throws, sinking 21 charity throws in a game against Indiana. The previous mark was 17 set by Indiana's Don Schlundt in 1953.

The Hawks' first two choices, Dick Ricketts of Duquesne and Jack Stephens of Notre Dame, signed last month.

Massachusetts Boxing Commission has placed lightweight Champion Wallace (Bud) Smith of Orange, N.J., and former champion Jimmy Carter of New York on the unavailable list. They were to have met on June 29. Eye cuts were the reasons for the commission's action.

New Champions to Be Crowned in Municipal Junior Tennis Meet

New champions will be crowned in next week's Muni junior, boys and girls tennis tournament at Tower Grove Park. Entries are to close tonight, it was announced by Joe Karl, president of the Muni Tennis Association.

Earl (Butch) Buchholz, who won both the junior (18 age limit) and boys (15 age limit) titles last year, will be in Atlanta, Ga., competing in the National Clay Courts championship. He and Rod Susman won the boys doubles title last year and Buchholz teamed with Neil Drury to capture the junior doubles.

Drury, if he enters, would be the probable No. 1 junior player after recent city and state jaycee victories. Carole Boshard is not defending her junior girls' title, so another new champion will be crowned in that division. Jane Pratt, director of the junior events, said play would start Monday morning at 9 o'clock at Tower Grove.

JUNE JOBS IN U.S. HIT PEAK OF 64,016,000

Unemployment, meanwhile,
Rose by Only 190,000 to 2,679,000.

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—More than 64,000,000 Americans were employed in June, the greatest number in the nation's history, the Commerce and Labor departments reported today.

Unemployment, on the other hand, increased by only 190,000 to a total of 2,679,000. This was one of the smallest increases for the month of June since World War II.

Young job seekers were dumped on the labor market by the closing of schools, as is usual in June, but this was offset by rising adult employment on farms and vigorous rehiring in booming industries.

The June employment total of 64,016,000 compared with 62,073,000 in May.

The number of job holders has climbed by 4,000,000 from the winter low point, about 1,000,000 more than the normal spring expansion.

Manufacturing employment continued its sharp rise, climbing by 148,000 to 16,500,000 in spite of scattered work stoppages in metal products plants.

The total of workers in trade, services and industrial production rose by 400,000 to 49,300,000, described by the departments as an unusually large increase for the season.

The length of the factory work-week was equal to the previous record of 40.7 hours, but the usual increase over May did not occur because of strikes.

Farm employment, at 7,700,000 last month, showed only a seasonal gain.

The seasonally adjusted index of unemployment, based on the 1947-1949 average as 100 was

ARCHITECT CALLS AIR SCHOOL DESIGN 'WAYSIDE MARKET'

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Architect Frank Lloyd Wright said yesterday that "half baked" designs for ultra modern buildings would turn the new Air Force Academy into a "wayside market."

The 86-year-old pioneer of modern architecture urged Congress to postpone work on the academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., until new plans can be prepared.

Wright testified for 45 minutes behind closed doors before a House Appropriations subcommittee, which among other things, is considering a request for $79,000,000 this year to continue work on the academy.

Representative Scrivner (Rep., Kansas, later told the reporters air officials have advised the subcommittee that "nothing final" has been decided on the design of the new air school. He said published sketches of proposed buildings, which already have created controversy, were "only a picture of a picture."

Wright declined to tell reporters specifically the kind of architecture he had suggested to the committee. He said the published design "is utterly without a soul, utterly without a spirit."

down to 99 in June, the lowest point in 18 months.

The statement by Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell and Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks added: "Also noteworthy was the further reduction in the number of relatively long-term jobless. The group out of work for 15 weeks or longer dropped by 200,000 for the second consecutive month, reaching a level of 650,000 in June."

The previous high water mark of employment was in August 1953, when 63,700,000 men and women held civilian jobs.

Secretary Mitchell said yesterday that the amount of overtime work in factories in May and June was as high as it has been since World War II. The lengthening of overtime normally precedes increases in hiring.

CAFE MAN ROBBED OF $210 WHEN HE STEPS FROM AUTO

Joseph Parisi, 8648 Annetta street, operator of a restaurant and tavern at North Grand boulevard and Hebert street, was robbed of $210 early today as he stepped from his automobile after parking it at Annetta and McLaran avenue, he reported to police.

Parisi said a man approached from the rear and warned him not to turn around. The robber ordered him to throw his money on the sidewalk. Parisi said he took $210 from his pocket and dropped it and then also tossed his wallet, containing only personal papers, to the sidewalk.

He reported the robber fled west on McLaran to Riverview boulevard and then north on Riverview.

Turncoats' Early Life Gives Clue to Actions

he himself would die on his twenty-third birthday.

It isn't necessary to presume that Otho's decision to stay with his Red jailers was a decision to die so far as home and family and country were concerned. Otho had other strikes against him too.

He had not been educated, as one teacher put it "to the point where he would be a good citizen of a democracy or would be capable of judging what the Reds told him."

"On the other hand, he had learned to do what he was told—and no backtalk."

Could Always Scare Him.

"I could always scare him into anything," his father, Elbert A. Bell, said. "And if I had the chance I could have scared him into coming back home."

But it was the Chinese Communists, not Otho's father, who had the chance to scare him into doing what they wanted him to do—and they succeeded well enough so that Otho, though the only one of the 21 with a wife and child, went behind the Iron Curtain with the others. Otho's father remarried when the boy was seven months old and there were six more children by this marriage.

"He was just the same as my own, I had him so young," the second Mrs. Bell said. "Seems like I thought more of him at times than the others."

"Otho was a good little boy. He didn't fight with the other children—he got along too good with them."

Bell worked his boys hard on their farm. He says Otho was "a real good worker," strong and healthy. The boy liked to hunt for possum and squirrel in the woods, fish the streams for catfish and trout. He didn't like school and spent three years in the eighth grade.

Enlisted Twice.

He enlisted shortly after his seventeenth birthday, lying about his age. He didn't like it and his father managed to get him out but then he enlisted again a year later. He still disliked Army life. He phoned home constantly—constantly wrote for money to come home on weekend leave. Three times he was A.W.O.L. and was sentenced to 77 days' hard labor.

Then he was sent to Fort Lewis, Wash., where he met his future wife, Jewell. They were married a few months before the Korean war started. He was shipped overseas and their daughter, Paula, was born just before he was captured in November of 1950.

"He was real good to me," Jewell said. "He wouldn't let me do any heavy work after we knew the baby was coming. After he got overseas he wrote me five letters a week even if it was only a line."

Jewell has been waiting for her husband. One of the last messages she received from him asked if she and Paula still loved him and added, "I am wondering if you are planning to marry someone else or still want to be my wife."

Jewell wrote back that he would always be her husband and that Paula prays for him every night.

Pfc. Lewis W. Griggs, Neches, Tex. Born Aug. 2, 1932; two years high school. Mention Lewis Griggs in Neches and they shake their heads.

"He was a strange one," a neighbor said. "He stood aloof. Didn't speak if he didn't care to. Town like this everyone knows everyone else. Speaks to everyone else. But he'd just go along with his head in the air. Wouldn't speak. Wouldn't even look at you."

As in many rural communities, most of the young people who were children with Lewis have scattered and gone. Those that remain remember him as a "lone wolf."

"He didn't mix much with the other kids," one girl said. "His father was strict with him. Only place he could go was to church. He wasn't like the rest of us."

Played Football.

Lewis went on a bus 18 miles to a consolidated high school. His last year, at 16, he was big for his age, six foot two. He played on the football squad, made the B team and got a letter. He got an 82 in algebra but barely passed his other courses.

One teacher said she thinks "we didn't do everything we could have for him."

"He seemed to be a boy you couldn't reach," she said. "He was quiet, withdrawn, polite and bored. He was just there. He didn't do his work. He just came and that's all. He was... not at all boyish. He gave me the feeling as I watched him from day to day that he felt this was all unnecessary."

Lewis's father was an electrician. He died while his son was in prison camp. The family was considered well-off in tiny Neches but somewhat underprivileged by standards of the nearby affluent town of Palestine.

The town and rural children seldom mix well in these consolidated schools and Lewis was no mixer anyway. He was never seen with anyone else around the halls of the school; he "never paid the slightest attention to girls."

After an incident on the school bus where some of the other students picked on him and teased him—no one remembers why or what about—he left high school. His family sent him to a military academy but he left after six weeks. The day after his seventeenth birthday he enlisted in the Army.

Became a Stretcher Bearer.

He became a stretcher bearer in a medical company and saw Korean fighting until the disastrous withdrawal from the Yalu when he was captured.

He wrote a letter to the Palestine high school, urging the students to help end the Korean war. But it was phrased in rather stilted language and no one at the school thought that Lewis had actually composed it.

His mother, a tall, spare woman, has refused to believe that her son became a Communist of his own free will. For months she has refused to discuss him.

Returned prisoners of war who were in camp with Griggs agree that he was a "peculiar egg."

"I felt kind of sorry for him in spite of everything," said one. "I don't think he was quite right."

men who are acutely aware that we do not live and act in an ideal world, but one in which evil and terror move in the threatening shadows of destruction and annihilation; men, above all, who know that the life of a nation, like that of an individual, may be an uphill journey all the way. Hence, they recognize the need for patience and prudence and grace. It is certain that an atmosphere of sterile criticism and simplistic formulas cannot and will not insure the emergence of such men.

Once more mankind is faced with a decisive choice. Shall it be war or peace, or, more accurately, shall it be survival or annihilation?

Man and man alone can and must make the decision. There is nothing but the evil lurking in his own heart that would force him to choose the easy way of collective suicide. It is our inescapable duty as free and responsible moral agents to use every good means within our power to prevent such a terrifying choice.

SEGREGATION ISSUE BLOCKS SCHOOL AID BILL

segregation. They may feel the issue ought not to be drawn. But they cannot take the heat. They do not want to spend their campaigns explaining the situation, especially as it would involve criticism of Negro leaders.

None Have Retreated.

These leaders should know better, it is argued. So far, despite much private effort, to get some of them to change their minds, they have not retreated.

President Eisenhower was faced with a similar problem in connection with his reserve bill. He was outspoken in his insistence that the segregation issue was extraneous and should not be permitted to hamper a program vital to the national defense.

The President's record on minority rights has been outstanding—so good, that Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, New York Democrat, wrote an article in praise of it which is G.O.P. campaign ammunition.

Issues that involve controversy are unlikely to be the subject of legislation any more this session. Bills that pass from now on in will be compromises: so that the July 30 adjournment date can, if humanly possible, be met.

CONTACT WITH RUSSIANS SHOWS SCANT RESULTS

ade, aggression in Korea and the size of the Red army. But the mask of smug incomprehension instantly descended. There was a pause. I pointed to a well-dressed woman walking by, and said, for conversation's sake, "Look at the foreigner. I wonder where she's from."

She caught the tactless implication right away: "You mean the foreigners are dressed so much better than us Russians?" I smiled and said "yes," for there was nothing else to say. She smoothed her print dress with her hand—it must have cost her many hundreds of rubles—and said quietly: "Oh, the poor Russian ladies."

In those five words there seemed to me an echo of all the sadness of the war and of the long years of simple longings unsatisfied and hope deferred again. Perhaps this was mere sentimentalism, and certainly the hard facts which I had tried so futilely to explain remain unchanged. But I shall remember the words, and the look of the woman's tired face, long after the memory of being squeezed by Messrs. Khrushchev, Bulganin and Kaganovich fades.

U NU TELLS WHY HE SAID U.N. WILL SEAT RED CHINA

Says It Is Merely Own View That U.S. Will End Opposition to Communist Regime.

DETROIT, July 8 (AP)—Prime Minister U Nu of Burma explained yesterday how he got the impression in Washington "that most of the responsible people are not against" the admission of Red China to the United Nations and that it was a matter of timing. U Nu said it was his own "view" and nothing that was specifically by anyone.

Announcing a policy of answering no more questions by newsmen during his stay in the United States, U Nu issued a prepared statement to explain his remark on Red China at a news conference in New York. U Nu's statement said:

"I would like to clarify the statement made by me yesterday (Wednesday) at a press conference in New York on the question of the entry of the People's Republic of China into the United Nations.

"The question did not come up specifically as an item of discussion during my stay in Washington. The matter of the easing of tensions between the United States and China was discussed generally, my view being that the seating of the People's Republic of China in the United Nations would contribute toward the easing of tensions. When what was mentioned, the response I got was that China should first behave.

Assumes Sole Responsibility.
"From this I formed the impression, for which of course I assume sole responsibility, that the entry of the People's Republic of China into the United Nations was, therefore, a matter of timing.

"At the press conference I made it abundantly clear—not once but twice—that no official of the United States government told me this specifically and that it was only an impression that I had gathered."

U Nu issued his statement at a news conference and turned aside any questions about it. His remarks in New York had stirred up a number of members of Congress and led to a demand by Senator Bridges (Rep.) New Hampshire, that the Prime Minister name the "responsible officials" who gave him that impression.

No Change in Policy.
In Washington yesterday, the State Department authorized a statement that "there has been no change in United States policy to oppose the seatings in the United Nations of a representative of the Chinese Communist regime." Press Officer Henry Svydan told newsmen he hoped this "flat, unequivocal statement" would disabuse U Nu of any idea to the contrary.

At the White House, Presidential Press Secretary James Hagerty told newsmen the subject of Red China's U. N. entry did not come up in U Nu's talks with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles. U Nu acknowledged this in his statement.

At his Detroit news conference, U Nu said "I think it would be an irony of fate if the friendship built up between Burma and the United States would be smashed to pieces" because of a wrong interpretation placed on his remarks.

Ohio Housewife Tells of Striking Rich Uranium Vein in Ontario

Had Bought Geiger Counter and Explored Area With 2 Other Women—Her First Prospecting Venture.

AKRON, O., July 8 (AP)—"It's a pipe dream," John Madigan told his wife. "Too good to be true."

But Mrs. Dorothy Madigan, 48 years old, of nearby Silver Lake, has prospector's blood in her veins. She bought a geiger counter and set out for Canada. Last night Mrs. Madigan said she had struck it rich—a uranium find.

Atomic Energy Commission spokesmen told her it was the "second best (uranium) assay they have found in the world so far," she said.

The AEC in Washington said it could not immediately check the assay's standing in comparison with other uranium finds.

But William H. (Bud) Reynolds, deputy manager of the AEC plant at Piketon, O., told the Associated Press: "apparently she has some pitchblend ore of very high assay, about 25 per cent U-308, a uranium chemical compound."

Reynolds said he told Mrs. Madigan the assay was the second best yet discovered. However, the AEC plan official said he could not verify definitely the assay's standing.

"I know 50 per cent (uranium) assays have been found in the Belgian Congo (in Africa)," Reynolds added.

The AEC in Washington said Jesse Johnson, director of its raw materials division, had told Mr. Madigan that a single sample does not necessarily indicate the commercial value of a deposit of ore.

Mrs. Madigan, mother of two sons, had never done any prospecting before. She said she received a call from two close friends in Sharbot Lake, Ont., last month. Harvey Adams and Dr. C. J. Whytock told her they had come across what they believed was uranium ore in an abandoned mine about 40 or 50 miles northeast of Bancroft, Ont.

Mrs. Madigan purchased a geiger counter to check the find. A few days later, she set off for Bancroft with Mrs. Betty Cliff and Mrs. Ruth Wileman, both of Akron. The geiger counter proved Adams and Whytock were right.

They filed claim to an area three miles in radius from the strike center. Mrs. Madigan has 16 claims, Mrs. Cliff six, and Adams and Whytock and some of Whytock's relatives brought the total number filed to about 40.

Bancroft, about 40 miles from Sharbot Lake, was the scene of a uranium strike recently, Mrs. Madigan said. That's why Adams and Whytock were looking for the abandoned mine.

The AEC in Washington, Mrs. Madigan said, told her it was interested in the uranium but dealings would have to be made through the Canadian government.

PAIR SEIZED IN DETROIT IN CLEVELAND BANK HOLDUP

DETROIT, July 8 (AP)—A man and a 17-year-old girl wanted in a $23,000 Cleveland bank robbery were arrested in a Detroit apartment house by FBI agents last midnight.

Captured were Louis Emery Teller, 27, and Lora Lee Ritenour, wanted in the Jan. 14 hold-up of a Cleveland Trust Co. branch.

Miss Ritenour is accused of driving the automobile for three armed, masked men in the Cleveland holdup.

CONSTRUCTION AWARDS NEW RECORD IN JUNE

NEW YORK, July 8 (AP)—

New records were set for the month of June and the first six months of 1955 in dollar totals of contract awards for future construction in 37 states east of the Rockies, F. W. Dodge Corp., construction news and marketing specialists, reported.

This indicates a high rate of construction expenditures in the last half of the year, Dodge reported.

The June total, highest in Dodge's 64 years of reporting, was $2,555,209,000, up 30 per cent over June 1954.

The six-month figure was $11,982,771,000, a 30 per cent gain over last year's first half. Midyear totals for residential contracts were $5,456,730,000, 37 per cent ahead of 1954's first half; non-residential, $4,132,513,000, 21 per cent ahead; and heavy engineering projects, $2,393,528,000, 29 per cent ahead.

For June, residential awards were $951,104,000, up 32 per cent over June 1954; non-residential, $842,618,000, up 23 per cent; and heavy engineering, $461,487,000, up 29 per cent.

BUS DRIVERS STRIKE AGAINST NECKTIES IN 90-PLUS HEAT

DETROIT, July 8 (AP)—A strike of AFL Great Lakes Greyhound bus drivers, complaining about having to wear neckties in the hot weather, stranded thousands of commuters today.

The Greyhound's Pontiac division, including Royal Oak and other communities between Pontiac and Detroit, was affected. The division handles about 30,000 riders daily.

William C. Marshall, president of Local 1303 of the Streetcar and Motor Coach Employees Union, said the strike was unauthorized.

Marshall said the drivers complained because they have been required to wear their neckties in 90-degree plus temperatures. He said they also were critical of a new downtown Detroit routing that adds nearly a mile to the bus run without compensating operations time.

U.S., BONN SIGN AIR PACT, SOME LINES PROTEST

State Department Says
Agreement Was Approved in 'National Interest.'

WASHINGTON, July 8 (UPI)—The United States yesterday signed an air transport agreement with West Germany over the vigorous protests of some American air carriers.

The State Department said the agreement was signed in the "national interest."

Under the agreement, the German Lufthansa airline is given the right to fly these routes:

1. From West Germany to Boston, New York and Philadelphia and beyond to points in the Caribbean and South America.

2. From West Germany to Chicago.

3. From West Germany to San Francisco or Los Angeles. The terminal will be determined by West Germany later.

American Routes.
United States airlines were granted authority to fly:

1. From the United States to Hamburg and beyond to points in Europe north and east of West Germany.

2. From the United States to Dusseldorf-Cologne, Bonn, Frankfurt, Stuttgart and Munich and beyond to points in Europe east and southeast of West Germany and beyond.

3. From the United States to Frankfurt and beyond to points in Europe south and southeast of West Germany and beyond to North Africa, the Middle East and beyond.

United States airlines now have temporary authority which would have expired within a year to fly the three routes granted under the new agreement. Lufthansa now flies only to New York.

The agreement signed yesterday is the identical one which was to have been signed June 11. Some United States airlines complained about it and the signing was postponed pending Senate and Civil Aeronautics Board hearings.

Several United States airlines denounced the agreement as a "bad precedent."

Eastern, National, Braniff, Panagra and Pan American Airlines complained that the Latin American routes granted Lufthansa would cut into their business to Latin American points. They said the German airline got even more than it sought.

Robert Ramspeck, vice president of Eastern, said the agreement gives Germany a "blank check" in the transport of traffic from the northeast United States to the Caribbean and South America, particularly because the agreement does not specify any terminal points.

Most Effective Line.
Alexander G. Hardy, senior vice president of National, said the treaty would make Lufthansa "again the most efficient and most effective airline in the Western Hemisphere as it was before World War II."

At the formal signing ceremony, Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr. said the agreement permits "the normal operation of air transport" between the United States and Germany and places "them on a reciprocal basis."

United States officials said Germany did not threaten retaliation against United States airlines in the negotiations, but State Department officials said in hearings on the agreement that the possibility of retaliation should be recognized.

Germany, as a sovereign nation, would have been able to force United States airlines to give up routes temporarily authorized under the occupation statute.

30 FLEE, FIRE LOSS $4500 IN EAST SIDE NIGHT CLUB

About 30 customers were routed by fire early yesterday at the Corral Night Club near French Village in St. Clair county, Ill.

The fire, believed to have been caused by defective wiring, caused an estimated damage of $4500, according to Fire Chief Lewis McClintock. A volunteer department from French Village brought the fire under control after two hours.

COAST GUARD ENDS MYSTERY VESSEL HUNT OFF JERSEY

NEW YORK, July 8 (UPI)—The Coast Guard called off today a 31-hour sea and air search for a phantom fishing vessel whose purported report of disaster at sea appeared to have been a hoax.

Coast Guard Capt. Julius F. Jacot said Coast Guard and Navy planes and ships had searched an Atlantic area of approximately 3700 square miles without finding any trace of the mysterious "Blue Star."

Coast Guard investigators sought to track down the phantom vessel in more than an hour of radio-phone "distress" calls early yesterday told a tale of sea terror which mobilized all coastal rescue forces. The radio message said the "Blue Star" had hit a floating log, exploded and was ablaze and sinking with 21 persons aboard or overboard without life preservers. The caller signed off after saying a foreign submarine had surfaced nearby and "I don't think they'll let me talk any more."

Coast Guard officials, although suspicious of such a detailed report from a vessel supposedly in such dire straits, nonetheless continued searching until today. Cost of the search was estimated at $50,000.

An oil slick and floating life preserver were found around noon yesterday near the supposed disaster site, but officers said an oil slick was not necessarily an indication of accident and the damaged but unburned life preserver might have been discarded by any passing ship.

REPUDIATES CONFESSION OF DIVORCEE'S MURDER

LOS ANGELES, July 8 (AP)—John R. Crocker Jr. repudiated yesterday his five-page handwritten statement that he killed a wealthy divorcee when she rejected his love. He charged police had forced him to make the statement and that it was not true.

Crocker's denial, made through his attorney, came shortly after he appeared for arraignment on charges that he murdered Mrs. Norma McCauley last Tuesday. Preliminary hearing was set for July 19.

Attorney Raymond C. Simpson conferred with the man for 20 minutes and then told reporters: "Crocker asserts that the confession was obtained by coercion. He is definitely not guilty of killing Mrs. McCauley."

Simpson charged that Crocker underwent 14 continuous hours of questioning.

MINNESOTA BOY, 3, KILLED BY TORNADO; 10 OTHERS HURT

MARSHALL, Minn., July 8 (AP)—A 3-year-old boy was flung into a tree and killed late yesterday by a tornado which raked a wide area west of Marshall. At least 10 persons were injured, some seriously.

The body of Clifford Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlow Larson, was found in a tree on the farm of August Waabema, where he and his four brothers and sisters were playing when the tornado hit.

The four other Larson children suffered injuries, but were believed not to be seriously hurt. Mrs. Waabema and her son Gary, also were hurt. Every building on the farm was destroyed.

The twister first hit near Arco, Minn., moved northeast for a few miles, then circled around and went toward the southwest.

$6,000,000 PENTAERYTHRITOL PLANT FOR LOUISIANA, MO.

A new $6,000,000 plant for the production of pentaerythritol will be built by Hercules Powder Co. at the site of its ammonia plant at Louisiana, Mo., the company announced today at its Wilmington (Del.) headquarters.

The company said the new plant, to be completed late next year, will double its annual capacity and make it the world's largest producer of pentaerythritol, used in paints, varnishes, lacquers and other products.

Construction will start immediately, the company said. Last year, the concern purchased the existing ammonia plant from the Government, including all facilities on the 400-acre site, about 90 miles north of St. Louis on the Mississippi river.

RED DESERTER REUNITED WITH BROTHERS IN SEOUL

SEOUL, July 8 (AP)—Two former Red Korean pilots who recently fled the Communists in an old Russian-built fighter plane were telling a crowd of 10,000 of their experiences today.

While Lt. Lee In Sun was speaking, two men appeared out of the crowd and mounted the stand in front of Seoul City Stadium. Lee recognized them instantly as his brothers, Lee Ki Sun and Lee Eun Sun. He had given them up for dead four years ago.

They had not seen each other since 1951, after the first Chinese winter offensive in the Korean war. Lee In Sun joined the North Korean air force, while the other two fled south to Pusan. A fourth brother was killed by the Communists in the war.

MANY REPORTED DESERTING FROM RED CHINESE ARMY

HONG KONG, July 7 (AP)—The pro-Nationalist newspaper Kung Sheung reported today that wholesale lots of Red China's soldiers in Kwangsi province have deserted because they were forced to work in the fields and on flood control projects.

The paper, quoting "first hand reports" from across the border, said more than 800 deserted in May and at least 110 were caught and executed.

The report said the Reds ordered troops to dig wells and irrigate fields during a drought in April, then forced the men to turn to flood control when May downpours washed out the dikes.

EUROPE ASSEMBLY PROPOSES MEETING WITH U.S., CANADA

STRASBOURG, France, July 8 (AP)—European legislators yesterday took the first step for a joint meeting with members of the United States Congress and the Canadian Parliament early next year.

The European Consultative Assembly unanimously adopted a proposal from Frode Jakobsen, Danish Socialist, for such a meeting in Strasbourg, Washington or Ottawa. It instructed Assembly President Guy Mollet of France to confer with American and Canadian officials to arrange it.

It would bring together a delegation of the Consultative Assembly, the United States Congress and Canada's Parliament in a manner similar to the joint Assembly-Congressional debate here in November 1951.

Jakobsen said there would be no question of establishing permanent institutional links between Europe, Canada and the United States, but simply an opportunity to "clear away the stumbling blocks to mutual understanding in a discussion of cold war problems."

Earlier the Assembly began a study of steps to bring other nations, including Red satellites in eastern Europe, into the Council of Europe.

ADMITTS BLACKMAILING EX-WIFE, SENTENCED

Man Who Got $100,000 in 8 Years Given 8 to 16 Years in Prison.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 8 (UP)—John F. Huber of York, Pa., was sentenced to eight to 16 years in the State Penitentiary today after pleading guilty to blackmailing his former wife for $100,000 in the last eight years.

Huber, whose former wife is charged with embezzling the money from a store where she worked for 26 years, was also fined $300 by Judge Joseph Wisler in Lancaster county court.

Detective S. K. Cliff testified that the woman, Mrs. Kathryn Rita Hassel, began giving money to Huber during their marriage so he would agree to a divorce because he was running around with other women.

Huber and Mrs. Hassel were married secretly 10 years ago. They were divorced in 1947.

Cliff testified that Mrs. Hassel continued paying her former husband money because he threatened to tell her mother of the secret marriage and two alleged illegal operations.

Mrs. Hassel is charged with larceny and conspiracy.

BOY KILLS WOMAN WHO TEASED HIM, THEN SEES MOVIE

ATLANTA, Ga., July 8 (UP)—Police today held a 16-year-old boy who admitted he "stomped" and shot to death a neighbor woman "because she was always teasing me."

The youth was arrested on a movie date with a girl soon after Mrs. Sarah White was found in her front bedroom.

Mrs. White was always teasing me," he was quoted as saying. "I hit her and she was laying there screaming, so I got her gun and shot her."

Detectives said the boy then led them to a pistol belonging to the housewife, which was concealed under a tree. One cartridge had been fired, police said.

Mrs. White, wife of a construction worker, lived diagonally across a street from the high school student. The two families were "extremely close friends," detectives said.

PROMISED SENATE HEARING, FINN TWINS END PRISON FAST

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP)—Senator Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, said today the Finn twins had broken their prison fast after receiving his assurance that a senate subcommittee would look into their complaint they had been deprived of their constitutional rights.

George and Charles Finn are serving one-year jail sentences after being convicted of interfering with a federal officer by attempting to make a citizens' arrest of a United States attorney.

The Finns are serving time at the United States Medical center at Springfield, Mo. Prison officials have fed them by force.

The case of the twin brothers stems from their purchase of a surplus C46 airplane, which the Government later seized from them.

Langer last week went to the Springfield penitentiary to interview the Finn twins, World War II pilots, and he said he assured them that a senate judiciary subcommittee on constitutional rights would give them a public hearing as soon as possible.

URGES HIGH SCHOOL STUDY OF RADIOACTIVE MATERIALS

Work with radioactive substances in high school science classes was urged here yesterday by Conrad E. Ronnenberg, chairman of the chemistry department at Denison University, Granville, O.

He told the summer institute for the teaching of chemistry at St. Louis University that little is being done in high schools "with teacher demonstrations or with individual student laboratory work" with radioactive substances. "This is to be deplored," he said, "since there are many types of experiments dealing with radioactivity that are simple and safe to perform and arouse great interest in high school students."

Ronnenberg said that "high school science teachers who are familiar with radioactivity and gamma rays are the logical persons to be entrusted with the responsibilities of using radiation detection devices in civilian defense."

3 INDICTED IN UNION TELEPHONE CAMPAIGN

Flood of Calls Allegedly Obstructed Business of Drug Stores.

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch.
NEW YORK, July 8—Three union officers were indicted yesterday on charges of using telephones to obstruct business calls at seven drug stores in the city and on Long Island.

The union, Local 1199 of the CIO Retail Drug Employees, has been involved for several months in organizational disputes with drug stores in the metropolitan area.

District Attorney Frank S.
Hogan's office said the three defendants are believed to be the first prosecuted under a section of the penal law enacted in 1951 which makes it a crime to make calls "in a place of business for the purpose of keeping busy a telephone line or lines in an effort to injure such business by preventing, obstructing or delaying bona fide business calls."

Hogan's office said that "hundreds of calls daily" were made at times to the seven stores. On some of the calls, it was said, a druggist would be greeted by whistling or clucking sounds over the wire, rapping against the mouthpiece, occasional abusive language or a voice repeating, "Why don't you settle? Why don't you settle?"

The three defendants are Leon J. Davis, president of the local, George Glotzer, division director, and Henry Plotnick, the local's employment manager.

The indictment charges the three with conspiracy, a misdemeanor, and 35 violations which are felonies. The penalty can be up to one year or an indeterminate term not to exceed three years for conspiracy and up to two years on each of the other counts.

Davis, Glotzer and Plotnick pleaded not guilty before Judge Abraham Geller in General Sessions Court and were released in $1000 bail each.

DEMAND FOR FREE RELIGION IS MADE IN RED GERMANY

BERLIN, July 8 (AP)—Evangelical Church leaders of East Germany voted yesterday to demand that their Communist government insure religious freedom.

The decision was made at a conference presided over by Bishop Otto Dibelius, titular head of the church throughout Germany.

No specific complaints were listed, but church leaders have become deeply concerned recently over Communist efforts to wean youth away from religion. There have also been incidents involving seizure of church newspapers and interference with church rallies.

AMERICAN BANKS TO FINANCE NEW POWER PLANT IN SPAIN

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, July 8—The Export-Import Bank said yesterday it would join with a group of American manufacturers and the First National City Bank of New York to help finance a new electric power plant in Spain.

The Government-owned bank said it has agreed to lend $8-500,000 as its share of the venture. First National City Bank will participate by advancing $1,469,000 of the Export-Import bank's share.

The loan is being made to S.A. Hidroelectrica Espanola, which will use the funds to help buy three generators for a thermal electric plant it now is building in Cartagena.

WEEK'S BIG STORE SALES HERE 9 PCT. OVER A YEAR AGO

Dollar volume of department store sales in the St. Louis area for the week ended last Saturday was 9 per cent higher than in the corresponding period a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

The large sales increase here was responsible for the 2 per cent gain for the entire Eighth Federal Reserve District. Sales in other cities of the district, notably Little Rock, declined.

For the four weeks ended last Saturday, compared with the same period last year, sales dropped 1 per cent in St. Louis and 2 per cent for the district.

For the nation as a whole, sales were 4 per cent higher. Thus far this year there has been a 6 per cent national sales increase over 1954. For St. Louis, the increase has been 5 per cent.

A colonial office statement did

GANGSTER TONY CAPEZIO DIES ON A GOLF COURSE

'DEAN OF LIFERS' DIES IN MICHIGAN PRISON

Tony Duley, at 77, Had Served 48 Years for Murder.

JACKSON, Mich., July 8 (AP)—Tony Duley, "Dean" of lifers and reportedly the "loneliest man" in Southern Michigan prison, died yesterday.

At 77, Duley was the oldest inmate of the world's largest walled prison and had served the most time—48 years.

Death ended a fight for freedom which Duley had waged for most of his adult life and seemed finally to be winning. He frequently was considered for parole but always was turned down for lack of a sponsor.

He was said to have gone 10 years in one stretch without receiving a letter or a visit.

Then three years ago Mr. and Mrs. Marion Baron of Grand Haven, Mich., read a story that called Duley the "loneliest man in prison." They became interested in the case.

At their urging, the corrections commission last March ordered Duley's case processed for possible parole. While Duley waited for his freedom, death intervened.

Duley was convicted of killing a ticket agent at Osceola during a quarrel about the price of a boat ticket to Detroit.

"I was leaving when he came at me with a gun," Duley said. "We wrestled and it went off."

Duley admitted, however, that he fired two shots into the agent's body before he dropped the weapon. He got a life sentence in 1907.

Despite his age, Duley looked hopefully to life outside prison walls. He said recently he was leading a clean life, and added, "It wouldn't surprise me if I lived to be 100."

Scene of Jet Crash In St. Louis County

Joe Tarto, a member of the Cities Service Band of America, playing an eight-foot-long tuba which is claimed to be the biggest in the world. The player rests the huge instrument on the floor so that the mouthpiece is at a convenient height for playing. Band leader Paul LaVelle says the giant tuba gives his brass section more penetration.

Spectators crowding the barrier on Florissant road as they watch firemen work to extinguish flaming wreckage of jet fighter plane which crashed on the Bellerive Country Club golf course yesterday. Members of a golf foursome, playing about 75 yards from where the aircraft first hit the ground, said that the plane was burning when it struck the trees.

NEW ADDITION TO BUSCH ZOO

Baby elephant, still bottle fed, which arrived here by air from California yesterday, is loaded on truck at airport to be hauled to Grant's Farm, home of August A. Busch Jr., on Gravois road. The elephant, tentatively named Peggy, had been resting on an animal farm near Los Angeles after a flight from Thailand, where it was born. Busch obtained Peggy as a companion for Tessie II, a three-year-old elephant at the farm. With Peggy, from left, are Frank Parko, trainer; Moody Lentz of the St. Louis Zoo, and Fred Huenergarth, general manager of Grant's Farm.

A Big Order

'New Agriculture' And the Farmer

By Leonard Hall

IT SEEMS to me there are few callings today which are changing faster than agriculture. Change overtakes the farmer to such an extent that if he isn't constantly on his toes, he may find himself off the farm and working on a production line in town. And this "new agriculture" is certainly a thing to be considered by anyone from the city who contemplates buying farm land for either investment or recreation. Even in the last 10 years, for example, there have been changes in the size of farm which can be operated economically, the amount of money which must be put into machinery and equipment, the kind of help which can be counted on to work intelligently and efficiently.

A great many changes that have taken place in farming are all to the good; but whether this is true or not, most of them seem to be inevitable in this world of techniques, gadgets and super-salesmanship. Some of them tend to make life easier for the farmer and his family; at least, as far as the long hours and drudgery which we usually associate with farm life are concerned. Yet there are others whose real value is open to question and which will probably fall by the wayside as time goes on. There's no doubt, however, that major agricultural revolution is under way, and that a big problem right now is to guide it into channels that will create a better life—socially, physically and economically—for all of America's farmers. Moreover, if it is at all possible, we want to do this without losing the values which good rural living undoubtedly contributes to the over-all pattern of democracy.

THIS IS A BIG ORDER. People often ask me, "What do you think of our farm program?"—a truly staggering question. Yet it does seem to me that the whole farm program tends to be controlled by a very small number, percentage-wise, of big farmers who produce the bulk of our basic commodities such as wheat, cotton, corn and a few others. Rather interestingly, these crops make up perhaps less than a fifth of all farm production. The result is that the "peace support" part of the farm program touches comparatively few farmers.

It isn't easy for the farmer out bucking the daily problems of earning a living from the land in the face of costs that climb steadily and show no sign of leveling off, to do much thinking or act effectively in the field of farm economics at the national level. He is too busy figuring out ways to cut production costs, to reduce the amount of labor needed in his operation, to find the extra capital for new and bigger machines and more efficient buildings. And when these problems don't fully occupy his mind, he must be studying up on new weed and pest killers, antibiotics in livestock remedies and feeds, new crops and more streamlined farm animals. Then somewhere along in here, he has to put in the 10- to 12-hour days that are still necessary to keep up with the field work and the chores. For no matter how modern farming becomes, these are things that remain on the average-sized farm.

WITH ALL THIS, if a man wants to be a really good farmer, he must be constantly weighing the new techniques against the age-old, unchangeable facts of good land use.

When does the insecticide start killing more helpful life forms—insects and birds and animals—than harmful ones? When does the herbicide start to short-circuit the land in its needed supply of complex organic matter? What amount of fertilizing merely turns out a larger tonnage of grain with poorer feeding value from soil that has long since been robbed of necessary and valuable plant nutrients? Is any mechanical "soil conditioner" a substitute for conditioning the soil through the natural use of organic matter? When properly handled legumes can store nitrogen in the soil to the equivalent of a ton of nitrogen fertilizer annually, is it actually "time-wasting" not to do away with legumes altogether in favor of smaller applications of the manufactured product?

QUESTIONS LIKE THESE are not always popular with either the agricultural scientists or the manufacturers who become impatient with any query which isn't concerned with the fast dollar return from the land. Yet they are constantly putting themselves forward in the minds of farmers who believe there is a sort of eternal rightness in the patterns worked out on the land by Nature through countless centuries. These few, at least, grasp the biotic view of land; that it is a totality of earth and sun, wind and rain, which Nature manipulates to create the greatest possible life producing and supporting capacity. They also know instinctively that all the marvelous techniques and discoveries are to use Aldo Leopold's expression, merely improvements in the pump—and not in the well of soil fertility on which all life depends. Their ultimate value, then, is whether they are used to support and complement Nature, rather than to supplant and controvert her.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER tells me: "A young woman friend of mine has a very good position. She is a very intelligent person; in fact she has gone far in the business world, and I admit she deserves a lot of credit. Her one fault is that she talks about nothing else but her job. Frankly, I'm sick to death hearing about it and I'm afraid she is making herself very unpopular, not only with me but with all her friends. Is there a polite way to get her to stop talking about herself and her job?"

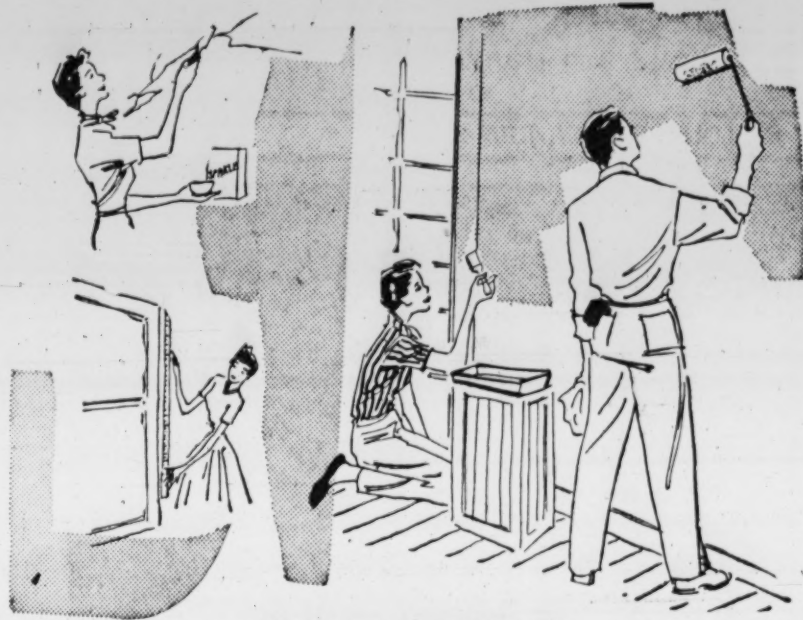

There is not much you can do about this unless there happens to be someone else you both know who has this same fault of constantly talking on one subject—her children, for example—whom you could criticize to your friend by saying that Mary is such a lovely person but she doesn't realize how boring she can be by everlastingly talking about her life's one interest—in her case, her children.

DEAR MRS. POST: Is it wrong to wear a fur neck-piece after hot weather really sets in? I have a very pretty mink scarf which I wore to a wedding recently and was told that a fur neckpiece was out of place during the summer months. Will you please give me your opinion on this?

Answer: On a cold day it is entirely proper; but in very, very hot weather, certainly not, because your reason for wearing it would obviously be to show it off.

Don't Just Start Painting

There Are Preliminaries to Doing Over a Room

YOU CAN DO A PROFESSIONAL JOB

By Elizabeth Hillier

PAINTING is never a matter merely of deciding on a good color, buying the paint and falling to. The difference between a not-so-good try and a professional job begins before any brush work is attempted.

Of course color choice is all-important because the big satisfaction comes from the wonder color performs for a room. But you need supplies that are more than the paint and brushes, the right supplies in the right quantities and helpful advice from a paint dealer. Before he can help you, you must help him.

SAVE TIME AND MONEY and disappointment by taking these three make-ready steps before going to the store:

Make sure of what is already on the walls. Try a damp finger on paint, and if color comes off, the paint must be removed. If the paint is high gloss, it may need sandpapering to make flat paint adhere. If wallpaper covers the walls, unless there are too many layers, they can be painted successfully if a coat of primer sealer is applied first.

SURVEY THE WALLS with an eagle eye to make sure of its condition. Cracks, rough places, and nail holes will still be there if they are painted over. Look under pictures, around the ceiling moldings, window frames and baseboards and behind radiators to see if paint is peeling or wallpaper is pulling away.

Now, measure the walls. Then measure the doors and windows. Deduct door and window areas from wall areas. If semi-gloss is to be used on the woodwork instead of the flat wall paint, deduct the frames from the measurements of doors and windows and measure the wood-work areas themselves.

AT THIS POINT, and not before, you are ready to go to the store.

Give the paint man complete information, and he will provide the right paint, in the right amount, and the exact tools and materials needed for the repairing and conditioning jobs that must come first if the final paint job is to be a success.

Today's a good day to send for Elizabeth Hillier's new booklet, "Furniture Refinishing—How to do it Yourself." Plan to reclaim and restyle old furniture with its valuable help—and find out, too, what to do about finish repair. Address your request for this booklet to Miss Hillier at the Post-Dispatch and enclose 15 cents, please, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

Loose Veneer.

NOW and then, usually for a very sound reason, the veneer on a piece of furniture will come loose around the edges. If you just sit back and wait, eventually the veneer will become broken and then to try and patch will be really tough. The best idea is to fix up the loose veneer at once.

The first thing to do is to remove the finish from the loose portion of the veneer and this can be done with fine sandpaper. After this has been done you want to remove the old glue from the underside of the veneer and also from the base. The way to handle this job is to slip a piece of sandpaper between the veneer and base and work it back and forth.

IT'S IMPORTANT that you remove all the old glue for not only will it prevent the new glue from making a good bond but the thickness of the old glue plus the new will prevent the veneer coming down perfectly flat.

After the old glue is out of the way and the area has been dusted, steam the loose portion of the veneer so it can be pressed back into place. Just put a damp cloth over the veneer and run an iron over it. Now work glue under the veneer and over the base with a flexible knife blade and then push the veneer back down.

Put a weight on the veneer or use a clamp to hold it down until the glue is hard. Wipe away any excess glue that comes out through the joint and then, when the glue is dry, touch up the finish on the sanded portion of the veneer to match the rest of the finish.

Remarriage Is Discussed By a Widow

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

SOMETIMES a widow feels very virtuous in asserting that her love for her first husband was too great to permit her to remarry. I believe it is a mistaken point of view. Such a love is not a perfect love but a neurotic love.

That's the blunt answer I'll have to give to Mrs. E. who writes me: "When you advise widows to remarry, you must be assuming that they were very unhappy in their first marriages. Dr. Popenoe, I want to tell you that some of us were very happy indeed. We have no intention of destroying our beautiful memories. The 11 years that my husband and I spent together were beyond anything that some wives can imagine, I'm sure. It would be absurd to suppose that I could make another marriage that would be equal to my first, and I'm certainly not going to try. The happiness I found in my marriage is enough to sustain me all the rest of my life."

YOU ARE CERTAINLY entitled to make your own decision on that point, Mrs. E., and since you feel that way about it, I'm afraid that if you did remarry, it would only make your second husband unhappy.

But for the benefit of others who are facing this problem, I want to argue the point for a minute. If a marriage makes either partner so dependent, so unable to get along with other people, that the idea of remarriage is intolerable, I claim it was not a satisfactory marriage. It did not represent two adult personalities in a situation that permitted their continuous growth. It represented two personalities creating for themselves a situation which prevented them from growing.

HUMAN BEINGS are so organized that they need to give and to receive companionship, mutual comfort, and physical partnership. They need to help others to develop and make the most of themselves. They need to build up the self-respect of their partners and so on. They live more fully and usefully than they could have lived alone. If a marriage fails to reach these goals and becomes a sort of self-imposed mutual admiration society, it has not attained its full potentialities. We ourselves live most fully when we help others to live most fully. We can't do that if the others are dead. That's one reason why we should make a much greater effort on behalf of our husbands and wives right now while they are alive. It is one reason why we should go on to help some other persons if the original partner is lost.

The greatest tribute you could pay to your husband, Mrs. E., would be to show that he taught you to live so successfully that you are able to go on living and growing and helping others to do so after he is gone.

Here's a new sandwich idea: Mix cream cheese with drained crushed pineapple and chopped mint leaves and use as a spread between slices of nut bread.

Ask for That Date!

By Elinor Williams

IT SEEMS that nothing—positively nothing!—in high schoolers' date lives causes so many problems as the little word "No."

A boy sometimes doesn't ask a girl for a date because she might say "No." A girl doesn't invite a boy to her club's dance because she's afraid he might say "No."

What a waste of teen-time fun! It's silly. This little word can't hurt you. Be brave; be daring; take a chance. It's better to ask that Dream Queen or Big Man for a date and risk a "No" than to fret and mope and wish and wonder about it... and miss the fun.

Chances are good—very good—that he or she will say "Yes" in a flash. Most people like to be asked for a date, like to be invited, like to know that you thought of them.

When you do ask her or him, the very worst that can happen is that he or she will say "No." And that's nothing. It won't hurt you and needn't embarrass you, because everybody has to refuse an invitation at times... for many good reasons.

So if you do get "No" for an answer now and then, don't make a thing of it. Be matter of fact of it. Take a "So what?" attitude. She had other plans; she was going to be out of town; she was waiting for a call from a boy she'd like to have for a "steady" date...

When it happens, try again

Fine Drama, Fine Singing

M-G-M, which came up with an off-beat popular musical in "Love Me or Leave Me," brings another unusual musical to the screen in "INTERRUPTED MELODY," at LOEW'S STATE. It combines a strong and moving drama with some gorgeous and stirring operatic singing in recounting the courageous struggle of Marjorie Lawrence, Metropolitan Opera dramatic soprano, to a comeback after being paralyzed by polio in 1941 at the height of her career.

It follows Miss Lawrence's own account of her ordeal in her autobiography, rearranging some facts as to their sequence and probably heightening some dramatic moments with excusable dramatic license. It is similar in its theme to "The Stratton Story" which concerned the comeback of a star baseball pitcher after losing a leg in a hunting accident, and is equally touching and sincere.

Eleanor Parker portrays the diva in a strong and searching performance, and Glenn Young is equally as effective as her husband, Dr. Thomas King, whose encouragement in her dark hours of despair made her comeback possible. Their acting takes several key scenes out of the realm of the tear-jerking by sheer power and honesty and makes them genuinely moving—the one, where screaming with hysteria, she drags herself over the floor to turn off one of her own records as her husband, who had turned it on to irritate her into trying to use her muscles, watches in quiet anguish; another where he frustrates her intent to commit suicide with sleeping pills in their Florida cottage; and the climactic one where she comes back to the Met to sing Isolde in "Tristan and Isolde," rising magnificently to the occasion (actually she had sung Venus in "Tannhauser" from a couch at the Met the year before, in 1943, but this was her first full role in her comeback).

The voice for Miss Parker's singing is that of Eileen Farrell, Met soprano, and it registers beautifully, as blended with Miss Parker's effective operatic acting. Among the numbers are the "Seguidilla" from "Carmen," "Musetta's Waltz" from "La Boheme," "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah," the immolation scene from "Gottterdammerung," and "Un Bel Di Vedremo" from "Madame Butterfly."

Pepping Up History

Evidently the story of the Lewis and Clark expedition (1804-06), which first linked the United States with Oregon and the Pacific Coast, wasn't exciting enough for Pine and Thomas, the Paramount producers who pride themselves on being known as "the dollar bills" because of their preference for cash receipts over art. In "THE FAR HORIZONS," at the FOX, the bills and their scripters have subordinated the expedition itself to a fictitious love quadrangle—Capt. Meriwether Lewis (Fred MacMurray) and Capt. William Clark (Charles Heston) are supposed to have been rivals for the hand of Julia Hancock (Barbara Hale) who later married Clark, and Lewis resents Clark falling in love with Sacajawea (Donna Reed), the Shoshone Indian girl who acted as interpreter for the expedition.

As if this meretricious device weren't bad enough, the script has inserted a couple of bloody battles with the Indians and constant sniping by the red men, whereas actually there was only one serious skirmish and during the entire two years only one member of the expedition died. It has made Sacajawea's husband, the French-Canadian trader Charbonneau, the villain of the piece, who tries to betray the expedition to an Indian attack and attempts to kill Clark in a knife fight over Sacajawea. (Naturally, such an interesting item as that Sacajawea, a girl of 17, set out on the expedition with her two-month-old papoose strapped to her back, is omitted.)

Not only is the dialogue trite and vapid; but Director Rudolph Mate has insisted on long pauses between lines by his actors, so that the impression is given they don't know what to say next. His direction has made MacMurray, as Lewis, far from seeming the intrepid decisive leader, a confused and weak sort of fellow. This miserable effort is not redeemed by the VistaVision photography, good as it sometimes is. The effect of the process is somewhat lessened by the Fox's refusal to show it on a wide screen, as intended.

The second feature, "RUN FOR COVER," also a Pine and Thomas production and in VistaVision, is much more satisfactory, slightly better than an average Western. As a Western sheriff determined to prevent mob violence, and trying to make a man of a weak and embittered deputy, James Cagney gives a forceful performance. The plot details are at least slightly different, and the supporting cast, Viveca Lindfors, John Derek and Jean Hersholt, is competent.

What, No Piranhas?

IF "NAKED AMAZON," at the PAGEANT and RICHMOND, had been presented as a straightforward Amazon River exploration film, it might have had some mild interest, even though the ground has been gone over a number of times before. However, Zygmunt Sulistrowski, the chief cameraman, producer, director and narrator has chosen to embellish it with obviously staged scenes and tried to hype it with an over-dramatic narrative written in purple plup style that made it annoying to me.

Examples: Obviously a dead jaguar is being thrown from a limb as the man shoots. Sulistrowski and his wife wrestle with a palpably lethargic and over-fed anaconda which just happened to sneak up on them while they were asleep as the cameraman focused on them. Horrors—a shadow of doom falls over the expedition, as they sleep (in the blazing sun, for good lighting) and the camera grinds away; we are supposed to tremble at several grinning Indians, who are patently unable to contain their amusement. The small Indian village which they visit is "the lost Camayura tribe," which was "never before seen by a white man"—yet two of the Indians and several of the children have brownish-blond hair. This little group of stone-age remnants are interesting only in that they don't find it necessary to wear clothing—and don't think the cameramen or the ad writers have overlooked that.

For some reason, though the ferocious piranha fish are frequently mentioned in fearful tones, they are never shown. First Brazilian film, explorational or fictional, that ever omitted 'em. They must have lost the film.

SETH WAMBSGANN and his wife were visiting New York for the first time. Seth, impatiently waiting in the hotel lobby, called his room to urge Mrs. Wambsgann to get a move on. She didn't answer. Seth was puzzled for a moment, then a light dawned. "Give her two short rings and a long one," he instructed the operator. "My missis only picks up the phone home when she recognizes that party line signal."

Sure enough, Mrs. W. was on the wire in a jiffy, and 10 minutes later the happily reunited couple were on the way to the bus station—and home on their Pennsylvania farm.

Woman Pianist Who Became Plumber

Necessity Turned an Art-Loving Music Teacher Into a Master in a Man's Field

By John Keasler

FOR quite a while now Mrs. Charles Raby hasn't had time to do any water color painting or china painting. Also, she has left behind her first love, the piano, because she's too busy to play the piano. She's a plumber.

She started out as a piano player and now she's a master plumber and, thinking it over, she figures there's plenty of satisfaction in either field, or, for that matter, in any field if you're working hard at something you like.

We bowed to her logic but said nevertheless it seemed unusual, a woman being a master plumber.

"Well, maybe," she said, admitting that, as far as she knew, she was the only woman plumbing contractor she knew about in the St. Louis area. "However, after all, it's just a business—and it's a business I like."

How did she get into plumbing? Inadvertently is the answer to that. When she was just a little girl, he ambition was to be a musician. Her father was an artist, a painter. Also, he liked music—taught his daughter, and by the time she was four she could play the organ.

By the time she was 14, she was a music teacher, and making a financial success of it. Her father had died.

SHE was living at home with her mother here in St. Louis, where she was born, and conducting piano classes at her house. She had quit school. She's always stayed pretty busy. Her hobby was painting. She liked to paint, particularly to paint designs and scenes on chinaware.

She got married at 18, to Charles Raby, who had been in a childhood playmate in the block and who took up the plumbing trade. He was working for someone else then. His bride suggested he strike out on his own.

He deliberated and said, in effect, it would be pretty rough. She said that was all right about that part, she would help take care of the bookwork in the office end.

"I had never worked for anybody but myself," she said. "I didn't want him to, if it was possible not to."

MRS. CHARLES RABY... "AFTER ALL, IT'S JUST A BUSINESS—AND IT'S A BUSINESS I LIKE."

Raby built up his own business, and it was a good one. Mrs. Raby learned the office end of it, the nomenclature and all. In 1929, her husband fell ill. Despite everything he could do, business started falling off. One day a builder called on a job involving some 600 feet of sewer pipe.

"My husband just can't get out there," she said. "You come then," said the builder, "I know what you can do and what you know."

So she did. In brief, she jumped in and took over the business. She passed the rigid master plumber's examination, without ever having actually been a journeyman plumber.

"I SORT of started at the top," she said. Since, she's been running the business—her husband is not in good health. The Raby Plumbing Co. operates out of the Raby home at 5048 Union boulevard; the office is in the hallway, and the basement contains equipment. The firm has three trucks.

"Sometimes folks on plumb-ing jobs are surprised to find they are dealing with a woman plumber, all right," she admitted. However, plenty of customers like the idea. Mrs. Raby, who doesn't wield stillson wrenches and so on herself, although she has done so in a pinch, supervises her jobs personally, and carefully; sets high standards for her employees.

Sometimes people call up and say, "Are you that woman plumber? The one who checks everything personally?"

That set-up satisfies the most finicky. Mrs. Raby works long hours and drives long and hard from job to job. Sometimes frantic friends call up at late hours, bemoaning stopped-up pipes, and away she goes to the rescue.

As a plumbing contractor, figuring job estimates holds no fear for her. Her piled-up business correspondence is weighed down with a faucet fitting.

The piano is silent but the plumbing is fine. Business, said St. Louis's lady plumber, is very good. And, although plumbing has edged out the painting, there's one thing—she's still her own boss and she likes that.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. DO WOMEN, DEEP IN THEIR HEARTS, ENVY MEN? YES ☐ NO ☐

2. CAN YOU CHANGE PEOPLE'S HABITS AGAINST THEIR WILL? YOUR OPINION

Answer to Question 1.

YES ☐ NO ☐

3. EVERYONE SHOULD WHILE STILL YOUNG, PLAN TO RETIRE. TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

Answer to Question 2.

Not unless you put them in jail or subject them to some form of compulsion. Long-continued pressure, such as prison or army discipline, will change a person's habits to a limited extent. But, in ordinary life, unless you can induce a person to want to change his habits, no amount of lecturing will change him a particle, and it will probably make him worse.

Answer to Question 3.

True. It's foolishness to work after sixty. In his inspiring book, "How To Retire and Enjoy It," Ray Giles advises you to plan three things: (1) Where you want to live. (2) The minimum you wish to live on. (3) The house you want to live in. Don't buy a house too large and expensive to maintain. Don't buy in a neighborhood too expensive for you to keep up the upkeep. Plan a house in which you can do most of the repairs yourself. Have a studio or workshop with a good light for hobbies or light employment.

HYDE PARK. Prime Minister Nehru of India again repeated that there cannot be war in the atom age and that this must mean co-existence, and in order to exist in the same world we must negotiate with each other and try to settle difficulties by negotiation.

All of this is quite sensible and most of us would agree. In fact, it looks as though even the Soviet Union might agree that atomic war must be outlawed.

The problem, however, is how we are going to live together and whether we in the United States are going to realize that in living together peacefully we will still be fighting for men's minds and hearts. The Soviet Union will be trying to put over world Communism and if we really understand our objectives we will be trying to put over the value of democracy and the good it will do the people all over the world.

THIS WILL NOT BE an easy fight, but it will mean a great deal of education for our young people and for our older people—an attempt to put into our daily lives the principles to which many of us have only given lip service in the past.

We will not be able to get by merely by providing lip service to what we stand for, because the peoples of the world are going to want to see which ideology—World Communism or democracy—actually is more concerned about their well-being.

I think our people have got to realize this in the next few years. We are apt to find ourselves working very hard in a peaceful "war," which will deal with men's beliefs and in which I hope we will be successful, for we might find ourselves slaves otherwise.

I FIND MYSELF in considerable difficulty over the confusion which now exists in Washington on the question of Federal aid to the school system. That there is need for more schools in this country nobody should now doubt, and unless that need is met many of our children are going to lack a decent education.

The whole question has been complicated by the fact that the Supreme Court order on desegregation in schools is being fought by certain states. Therefore, we do not have clear-cut support for the program of school building and better salaries for teachers, which we should have from every state in the union.

It seems to me impossible not to accept and face the need. Eventually the South has to conform to the Federal ruling on desegregation. And to subject the children of the whole country to poor educational standards, should the South continue to rebel, I fear, will bring great resentment against those states.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THE defenders' only recourse in the following deal, was to give South the chance to slip—which he did. South dealer. North-South vulnerable and 40 on score.

♠K9865 ♠K875 ♠K863 ♠K9865 ♠K843 ♠K97

103 ♠A ♠AJ10954 ♠AJ102

South West North East 1♠ 1♠ Pass 1NT. 2♦ 2♣ 3♦ 3♣

4♦ Pass Pass Pass

The opposing vulnerability and part-score naturally spurred East-West to compete with some vigor, but they felt that they had done enough when they drove South to the four-level. Incidentally, South would have been better advised to show his club suit at some stage.

West opened the eight of spades; East put up the ace and, after a huddle, shifted to his lowest trump. Right there South went wrong. Figuring that East, who had bid one no-trump on the first round, might be leading from the king-queen of trumps for the express purpose of taking South out of finessing, declarer reacted in the usual obstinate way: he did finesse, putting in his own jack.

This indiscretion of South's would have been offset if West, after winning with the blank king of trumps and cashing the spade king, had returned a club, but even though it was a virtual toss-up between that shift and a heart shift, West guessed and led a low heart. That fixed South. If he used dummy's one entry, the club king, for another finesse in trumps, he could not get back to the table for a finesse against the club queen. Thus, having lost two spades and one diamond, he was sure to lose a club trick or another trump trick.

South's fixed idea to guard against K-Q-x of trumps in East's hand was rather silly in view of the fact that he had the means of surely saving a spade loser. The logical move was to put up the trump ace at Trick 2, then to cash the heart ace, lead to dummy's club king and discard the spade on the heart king. If a diamond honor had dropped from West, under the ace, South could now afford to give up a club along with the other trump honor; and if no honor dropped, South could now take the club finesse.

St. Louisans to Attend Out-of-Town Weddings

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

PLANS have been completed for the wedding of Miss Jean Hamilton Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton Briggs of Waite Hill, Willoughby, a suburb of Cleveland, to Richard Emeric Quandt, son of Richard F. Quandt of Washington and the late Mrs. Quandt. The ceremony, to be attended by several St. Louis relatives, will take place at 12:30 noon on Saturday, Aug. 6, in the Church of St. Francis of Assisi, Cleveland. The reception is to be given at the Briggs home.

MISS BRIGGS . . . TO BE AUGUST BRIDE.

Miss Briggs's grandmother, Mrs. Arthur B. Shepley, 54 Westmoreland place, will go east Aug. 2 for the wedding, as will her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. E. Lawrence Keyes; her cousins, Mrs. William H. Otto, Miss Emily Keyes and Air Force Lt. Edward Lawrence Keyes Jr., who is stationed in Waco, Tex., and Mr. Otto. Another cousin, Mrs. Frederick A. Hermann Jr. (Sally Keyes), will be in Michigan with her family and hence will not attend.

After the wedding Mrs. Shepley and Dr. and Mrs. Keyes and Emily will continue to Northeast Harbor, Me., where they have a summer home. The Ottos will return to St. Louis to be with their two-week-old son, whom they have named Lawrence Keyes.

Mrs. Otto, the former Miss Mary Shepley Keyes, will be matron of honor. Bridesmaids are to be Miss Cynthia Towell, Cleveland; Miss Susan Winslow, Providence, R.I.; Miss Alexandra Quandt, Washington, sister of the bridegroom-elect, and the following from New York: Miss Elizabeth Low, Miss Ann Olstein and Miss Jane Ferguson.

There are to be only two pre-wedding parties. One, Aug. 4, is to be a swimming party and supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sherwin, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Hess and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Halle at the Sherwin home. The other is a small dance the following night with Miss Briggs's uncle and aunts, Miss Jean Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. Myron Merry at Chagrin Valley Hunt Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs are in Bermuda at present for an early summer holiday. She was Miss Mary Merwin Shepley.

September Wedding in Dallas.

MR. AND MRS. RANDALL FOSTER, 6333 Ellenwood avenue, Clayton, will be away most of the summer, first in the West and later in Dallas, Tex., for another wedding of interest here. The month of August they will be in Glacier National Park, where they will share a cottage with Mr. and Mrs. John D. MacCarthy. The MacCarthys will leave here the last of next week. Early in September Mr. and Mrs. Foster will accompany Mr. and Mrs. MacCarthy to the west coast and proceed to San Francisco and Pacific Palisades, Calif., there to visit Mrs. Frederick C. Lake, a former St. Louisan.

MISS MOODY . . . TO BE MARRIED IN SEPTEMBER.

Returning briefly to St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. Foster will go to Dallas for the wedding the night of Sept. 17 of her niece, Miss Jane Moody, to Lt. Charles Robert Leader Jr. The engagement was announced last March. The ceremony, at 8 o'clock, will take place in Wynn Chapel of Highland Park Presbyterian Church.

OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:

I AM 16 years old and go steady with a boy 19. Our problem is that every time we get ready to go out on a date a bunch of kids always come over to my house and want us to go out with them. We always do because we feel we will lose their friendship if we don't. But we are beginning to quarrel about it because it seems that we can't go anywhere by ourselves. What should we do? SUGAR.

I think you'll just have to tell them that you're sorry but you have some special plans so you can't go with them. It's silly to let them force you and your boy friend into a quarrel. You won't lose their friendship or hurt their feelings by going off alone, at least part of the time.

Dear Martha:

MY DAD AND I have been having an argument over whether I can wear shorts. He says they're just for sports or picnics and shouldn't be worn on the street. I tell him all the girls wear shorts and he's old-fashioned. But I can't talk him into it. Maybe you can help me.

SORRY.

I'm afraid you've come to the wrong person if you want someone to agree with you. If your dad's old-fashioned, count me as being old-fashioned too. I realize many girls do wear shorts on the street but I can't agree that it looks good.

IN ANSWER TO Ellen: First of all, ask your mother if you can buy a birthday gift for this boy. If she approves, you might select a book or some white handkerchiefs, tickets to a baseball game if he's a sports fan, or to the Little Symphony if he's a musician. Keep it casual and inexpensive.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflets for teen-agers, "E for Etiquette" and "Popularity for Girls." Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Mature Child

By Angelo Patri

"YOU are not old enough to drive a car without one of us beside you." "You are too young to be at a late evening party." "You are old enough to know better than to let us believe you are in one place while you are at another." These are the troubled parents' admonitions and the eager youth's grief. Usually they are the introduction to an argument that will remain unsettled because every adolescent feels instinctively, and correctly, that his age has nothing to do with the matter.

It is not a young person's age that decides how much self-direction he can manage successfully. What should decide, and what does decide, is how responsible the young person proved himself to be. I know a 13-year-old boy who is more responsible while driving a car than his father who sits beside him. He has developed responsibility beyond that usually expected from boys his age and could be trusted to drive a car if the law permitted it. Not that he should, but that he could.

HOW IS ONE TO KNOW when to allow a young person the privileges of maturity? When he shows maturity. If a girl in her teens always keeps her word, always goes where she says she is going, always comes home at the time agreed upon, or very close to it, she should be granted freedom in these directions. When the young people she associates with are of sound character, not likely to press a girl to take a drink, or go to the next night spot because it is still early, she "should be trusted" to make and keep her social engagements as she wills, even though she is 16 and not 18 or 20.

When a boy makes his own decisions with sound sense he is displaying maturity. When he has the car for the afternoon game he does not overload it so that the crowd overflows to the running boards and the tonneau. He says, "Five. No more," and that is settled.

HIS FATHER AND MOTHER can feel easy about him and the car. He may be 17, or 16, but he has a mature sense of responsibility in this field of social activity and should be treated accordingly. It is not the number of his birthdays that decide this matter of personal responsibility but the quality of his character.

Parents who look ahead a number of years and treat their children so that they can achieve personal responsibility, skills, right habits, sound character, will never have to put up an argument about the car, the late party or the midweek movie. The young people will take over practically, sensibly and successfully. These young people will have machines to deal with all their lives and thoughtful parents begin early to condition them for such use.

Women Lead the Way

By Ruth Millett

HONEST now, mister, wouldn't your life be pretty drab if women weren't more daring than you about accepting change and seeking color and variety in styles? You never would have had the courage to appear in public in shorts if women hadn't made them publicly acceptable first.

And how about those loud and colorful ties you love that have pushed your somber ones to the back of the tie rack? The reason manufacturers let the rainbow be their guide is that the little woman now buys most of your ties. The manufacturers knew they had to offer her something besides the dull geometric designs.

AND HOW ABOUT THAT BABY BLUE or tangerine car you are driving? Automobile manufacturers didn't go in for exotic colors to please you but to please your wife, who is becoming more and more color conscious every year. And those loud sports shirts you love? Honest now, didn't your wife buy you the first one you ever owned? When you protest, "What crazy ideas are women going in for next?" just remember that you'll not only be accepting it without protest in just a little while, you may be copying the idea for yourself some day.

She Wants 'Day' for Grandmothers

Mrs. Terry Blalack on California-to-Congress Crusade With Her Petition

By Phyllis Battelle

NEW YORK, July 8 (INS)—And now, dear friends, it is time to bid farewell to the rock-ribbed, old-fashioned grandmother—and as the sun sinks slowly behind her silver white hair and casts its last rays on her gnarled hands and her snarled knitting—we wonder wistfully:

Where's Marlene Dietrich? Now there's a grandma with spirit! And legs.

Whether we approve it or not, the Marlene Dietrich look is the coming thing in women twice removed from babies. They are getting younger all the time. And if a crusading nanny named Mrs. Terry Blalack gets her way in Washington, D. C., there will even be a National Grandmothers' Day to remind women that they are still girls (underneath) after their offspring have had offspring.

"It's all so mental," says Mrs. Blalack, whose silver blonde hair is not whitened by worry over her eight grand-kids. "Women somehow get the idea that once their children are married they should stop caring for their looks and personalities—and what's that phrase?—Grow old gracefully."

"YOU call letting-yourself-go graceful?" whiffs Mrs. Blalack. "It is an awkward sign you are giving up!"

Mrs. B., a 51-year-old (or young, rather) Hollywood grandma, feels so strongly about this that last month she set up headquarters at the corner of Hollywood and Vine and began collecting signatures on a petition to demand that Congress put through a bill granting grandmothers everywhere a special day. With less than 1000 signatures, she took some of her savings from two decades of dabbling in real estate and set off on a nationwide 15-city tour to gather more.

"I now have 5000 names," she bubbled as she breezed through

New York on her way to Washington where she is now trying to line up an interview with the President. "Odd thing is that two-thirds of the signatures are from men. Funny, isn't it?"

We laughed but it really wasn't very funny, considering.

"I have always kept my figure," she went on, "through hard work. Then when all my four children married and moved away, I decided well now here is the time I can do all the things I wanted to do all my life."

So she took ballet lessons ("every grandmother should dance, it firms you up 100 per cent"), and drama lessons ("even got into one movie, called 'Highway Drag'"), and studied French in night school ("I am a grandmother").

So many people began asking her how she stayed so fit in her matronial years that she began giving advice. And suddenly, one day, the idea of promoting a Grandmothers' Day, "I just got sick and tired," she says, "of the world putting a stamp on a woman because she is over 50. And shipping her off, so stamped, to an elderly status."

Mrs. Blalack concedes that there are two national grandmother organizations who have already submitted bills to Congress recommending a "day" in their honor.

"But one bill—No. 205—has been shelved for over a year, and the other one—I don't know the number—has been shelved for seven years," she said. "Maybe my one-woman campaign will get fast action."

Anyway, she's going to perch outside the White House till she gets her point, or at least her petition, across. Two letters from a Presidential aide, she says, have given her little encouragement.

"But I have a firm personality, just like Mr. Eisenhower," she says, "and I didn't see him laying down his arms over in Europe till the battle was won."

She's on Her Way Up---Sky Is the Limit

THE first time we looked at the 12-foot ceilings and 11-foot windows in our new old house, we decided we'd have to get over our aversion to high places. Our acrophobia was of an acute type.

Faced with a ladder, we could get on the first step confidently, mount to the second shakily, but anything higher than that left us feeling as if we were swaying on a wire near the top of the Empire State building.

By the end of one week we had gone to the fourth step to paint the ceiling of the kitchen, one of the lower rooms. A few days later, we climbed to the fifth step to hang draperies in the living room. But even with this new confidence, we never expected to climb 15 feet up in a tree to rescue a cat.

THE CAT, a semi-Siam, belongs or belonged to our neighbors. The first night we met, we admired the cat, Siamie, a handsome creature with thick taupe colored fur and china blue eyes. "Would you like to have him?" they asked. And went on to explain that they were leaving on vacation and had been wondering what to do with the cat. We volunteered to take it on a two-week trial basis. We were dubious as to how Amber and Moonie, our slightly psychotic mongrel dogs, might adjust to a cat even though we'd had cats at one time. We soon found out when Amber and Moonie chased the cat back into its own yard.

For a week, they maintained a cold war of distance. Then one night we decided to play mediator and brought dogs and cats into the same arena. Siamie claved his way out of our arms and raced back to his yard. We retrieved him. The dogs began barking and baying and Siamie, inflicting a few more gashes on us, leaped to a fence post, sputtering and hissing. We made a third try and this time Siamie made a mad dash for a tree in the front yard and raced up the trunk to the nearest branch 15 feet above ground. The dogs, which have been known to cringe from a bluejay, acted as if they'd treed a cougar.

DISGRUNTLED and disgusted we penned the dogs up and went back to gardening. An hour later we glanced up in the tree. Siamie, blue eyes dark, looked down apprehensively and asked, "Mow?"

"The way you got up," we said coldly, and went on gardening. But we kept coming back to the tree. Finally we conferred with the man of the house. First we coaxed and cajoled the cat, pointing out a branch that could be descended. Then we coaxed and cajoled the man, pointing out a ladder that could be used.

Finally the ladder was set up but a new problem loomed. He could climb the ladder but couldn't pry the cat loose from the tree. We thought we could get the cat but couldn't climb the ladder. It was getting dark. Siamie's "Mow" became more plaintive. We took a deep breath of very cold air.

Up to the ninth step, the tenth. Clutching a branch in one hand, Siamie's tail in the other. A tug of war ending with a cat digging into scalp and shoulder. Then the chill realization that we had to let go of the branch and start down. The tenth step, the ninth, the eighth. And then solid ground.

We sat—and so did Siamie—very quietly for a while, on the front steps. Then Siamie leaned over and licked our hand.

Next week, Mount Everest.

Swing Low, Room Divider

By Elizabeth Hillyer

ONE large room is better than two small ones. This is the theory that brought about the sacrifice of the separate dining room for the sake of the living-dining room.

A low room divider separates the room areas without reaching up into that nice open space. One like the piece of furniture sketched has its especially bright side to provide room toward the dining area for dining equipment, shelves, door compartments, and drawers nicely proportioned for silver and place mats. And for all its room-ness, it has a look of being poised lightly, on its slender legs.

Congress---The Racy Set

By Betty Beale

WASHINGTON. CONGRESS is gradually becoming the racy set. I don't know why, unless it's because they're getting younger and richer all the time.

A few days ago a passel of them raced off to the races at Monmouth, N.J., had themselves a racy time, then raced right home again.

Representative James C. Auchincloss was responsible for the excursion. Every year for five years he has taken members of the Yeas and Nays Marching and Barbecue Society (that's another name for a group of the gregarious gavel-governed) to Monmouth Track to show what horseflesh can do in the stimulating air of his state.

They don't travel under their own steam either—as powerful as that may be. Auchincloss transported his 28 colleagues to his home state in two private railroad cars. They left at 8 a.m. and returned by midnight the same evening, for better or for worse financially, but in high spirits. They even serenaded him on the way home as "the host with the mostes" on the ball.

AUCHINCLOSS, who is obviously as big a wheel in the Yeas and Nays Marching and Barbecue Society as he is in the Republicans' Capitol Hill Club, says it's a secret society.

"We don't know anything, we don't hear anything, and we don't say anything." From that description, of course, you wouldn't know it originated on Capitol Hill.

Only hitch to the day's junket was that one joker sent cards to some of the wives telling them their husbands had cleaned up at the track and planned to give all their newly won mazzuma to their spouses who stayed home. Win or lose, those henpecked ones were obliged to 'pay off later. They're still looking for the colleague who did the foul deed. . . . Boys will be boys.

"SOME PEOPLE think we should give all the publicity to Asia, that Europe is just passe, but I think Europe is always good," said hostess Gwen Carritt by the cool of her pool. Of course, Perle Mesta went to Asia and Gwen is getting ready to go to Europe.

NOTHING VERY EXCITING happened at the thirty-ninth anniversary party the President and Mrs. Eisenhower gave at Gettysburg for officers and employees of the White House. Everybody, you might say, was on good behavior. Of the 150 present, most were staff officers and wives, the rest carpenters, telephone operators (and husbands), and handymen, etc. The President and Mamie sat with the carpenters and handymen during supper. Mr. Eisenhower had a Navy photographer taking pictures for their scrapbook, and he himself was moving around taking unposed snapshots. (Maybe when he's out of a job they'll come in handy.) Nobody else, naturally, so much as aimed a lens.

Biggest thrill of the whole affair seemed to have occurred when the President was showing his guests around the place. One woman in particular admired his garden.

"Don't you want to pick some onions?" the President asked casually to show his appreciation. They say you would have thought the woman had been given a pot of gold! She was beside herself with joy. . . . Or maybe she was just a gal who knows her onions.

Words, Wit and Wisdom—By William Morris.

FROM Alder Creek, N.Y., comes a note of criticism from a far-traveled reader. "Where do you get your pronunciation of Madras as MAD-ras?" he asks. "My unabridged dictionary gives only one pronunciation mad-RAS and there is no second choice. This is for all three meanings—the city, the kerchief and the cloth.

"I spent a week in mad-RAS this winter and never heard MAD-ras once. Seriously, I am always interested in words and enjoy your column. If you have an authority for MAD-ras, please advise me."

HMMM. SOUNDS SERIOUS. DOESN'T IT? Well, my correspondent is entirely correct when he says that the name of the Indian city is correctly pronounced muh-DRAS or muh-DRAS. However, in the column in question, I noted specifically that the word was being used in the mean of "a kind of cotton cloth, usually striped." The cloth, obviously derives its name from the name of the city where it is believed to have originated. Indeed, the fabric madras is still commonly used in India. However, in American usage at least, the common pronunciation of the fabric is MAD-ras and I can marshal a rather formidable array of authorities to support my point. For instance, the two most recent and most completely edited desk dictionaries are "The American College Dictionary" and "The World Webster—College Edition." Both indicate MAD-ras as the preferred pronunciation for madras, the fabric.

This isn't to say that anyone pronouncing it muh-DRAS would be in error. That pronunciation is also entered as "acceptable" for the fabric and "preferred" for the Indian city. But, in the view of the two most up-to-date lexicons, the pronunciation to which my correspondent objected is actually more commonly heard among literate folk than any other. The defense rests.

Extra Meals
Many persons feel better on six meals a day than they do on four. The extra meals should be mid-morning, mid-afternoon and before-bedtime snacks. Foods suitable for these extra meals are milk, fruit, cheese and crackers, vegetable cocktails and vegetable finger foods such as tomato wedges, carrot strips, celery stalks and cucumber sticks.

AMONG all the members of the animal kingdom, which were the first to have backbones?

A. Geologists (who study the layers of rock) say that the first animals with backbones were fish.

Q. What is a fish?

A. It is a backbone animal of the water which has fins and gills.

Q. Are lungfish true fish?

A. Yes. They have gills as well as lungs.

Q. Are oysters and other shellfish true fish?

A. No. They are without backbones. Neither is a jellyfish a true fish.

Q. Are seals and whale fish?

A. No, they are mammals. Some whales are larger than any animal on the land, or any dinosaur of past ages.

Q. Which kind of fish was the first to live in the waters of the earth?

A. The answer to that question never may be known, but the oldest fish scientist can describe at present has the name of "atrapis desiderata." Pieces of the hard covering of that fish have been dug up near Canyon City, Colo., also in the Black Hills.

More complete remains of fish of the same general type have been discovered in rocks of later periods. A nine-inch skeleton found in Germany suggests a fish with two eyes far apart.

Q. Did all the early kinds of fish die off?

A. Some kinds did, but many others have lived to the present time with little change. The ocean proved to be a safer place for prehistoric fish than the land was for dinosaurs.

Among the early kinds of fish were sharks. Some modern sharks resemble those of long ago.
